THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUN-DAY SERMON.

Subject: "The City of Blood,"

TEXT: "Our bones are scattered at the prave's mouth, as when one cuttered it the grave's mouth, as when one cutterh and cleaveth wood upon the earth. But mine eyes are unto Thee, O, God, the Lord I"-Psaims cxli., 7.

Though you may read this text from the Bible, I read it as cut by chisel into the pe-destal of a cross beneath which lie many of the massacred at Cawnpur, India. To show you what Hindooism and Mohammedanism ination human nature may go when fully let locse, and to illustrate the hardening process of sin, and to remind you how our glorious Christianity may utter its triumph over death and the grave, I preach this my second sermon in the round the world series, and I shall speak of "The City of Blood," or Cawnpur, India.

Cawnpur, India. Two hours and ten minutes after its occurrence Joseph Lee, of the Shropshire Regiment of foot, rode in upon the Cawn-pur massacre. He was the first man I met at Cawnpur. I wanted to hear the story from some one who had been here in 1857 and with his own eyes gazed upon the slauphered heaps of humanity. I could hardly wait until the horses were put to the carriage, and Mr. Lee, seated with us, started for the scene, the story of which makes tame in contrast all Modoc and Choctaw butcheries.

It seems that all the worst passions of the It seems that all the worst passions of the century were to be impersonated by one man, and he Nana Sahib, and our escort at Cawnpur, Joseph Lee, knew the man per-sonally. Unfortunately there is no cor-rect picture of Nana Sahib in existence. The interme of him sublished in the hoods of rect picture of Nana Sahib in existence. The pictures of him published in the books of Europe and America and familiar to us all are an amusing mistake. This is the fact in regard to them: A lawyer of England was called to India for the purpose of defending the case of a native who had been charged with fraud. The attorney came and so skillfully managed the case of his client that the client paid him enormously for his services, and he went back to England, tak-ing with bim a picture of his Indian client. After awhile the mutiny in India broke out, and Nana Sahib was mentioned as the and Nana Sahib was mentioned as the champion villain of the whole affair, and the newspapers of England wanted a picture of him and to interview some one on Indian affairs who had recently been in India.

Among others the journalists called upon this lawyer, lately returned. The only plo-ture he had brought from India was a ploture of his client, the man charged with ture of his client, the man charged with fraud. The attorney gave this picture to the journals as a specimen of the way the Hin-doos dress, and forthwith that picture was used, either by mistake or intentionally, for Nana Sahib. The English lawyer said he lived in dread that his client would some day see the use made of his picture, and it was not until the death of his Hindoo client that the lawyer divulged the facts. Perhaps it was never intended that the face of such a It was never intended that the lace of such a demon should be preserved amid human records. I said to our escort, "Mr. Lee, was there any peculiarity in Nana Sahib's appearance?" The reply was: "Nothing very peculiar. He was a dull, lazy, coward-ly, sensual man, brought up to do nothing and wanted to continue on the same scale to do nothing. do nothing.

From what Mr. Lee told me and from all I could learn in India, Nana Sahib ordered the massacre in that city from sheer revenge. His father abdicated the throne, and the English paid nim annually a pension of $400,000. When the father died, the English Government declined to pay the same pension to the son, Nana Sahib, but the poor fellow was not in any suffering from lack of funds. His father left him $80,000 in gold ornaments, $500,000 in jewels, $800,000 in heavens, and on that anniversary day gave the victory to His people. Therefore Nana Sahib must try some other plan. Standing in a field not far from the intrenchment of the English was a native Christian woman, Jacobee by name, holding high up in her hand a letter. It was evidently a communication from the enemy, and General Wheeler ordered the woman brought in. She handet him a pro-posed treaty. If General Wheeler and his men would give up their weapons, Nana Sahib would conduct them into safety. They could march out unmolested, the men. women and children. They could go down women and children. They could go down to-morrow to the Granges, where they would find boats to take them in peace to Allahabad. There was some opposition to signing this treaty, but General Wheeler's wife told him he could trust the natives, and so he you what Hindooism and Mohammedanism really are, where they have full swing, and not as they represent themselves in a "parliament of religions," and to demon-strate to what extent of cruelty and abom-ination buman nature may so when fulls by molestation they went out and got plenty of water to drink and water for a good wash. The hunger and thirst and exposure from the consuming sun, with the thermometer from 120 to 140, would cease. Mothers re-ioleed at the prospect of saving their chil-dren. The young ladles of the intrench-ment would escape the wild beasts in human form. On the morrow, true to the promise, ceasts were ready to transport those who carts were ready to transport those who were too much exhausted to walk.

"Get into the carriage," said Mr. Lee, "and we will ride to the banks of the Ganges, for which the liberated combatants and non-combatants started from this place." On our way Mr. Lee pointed out a monu-ment over the burial place which was opened for General Wheeler's intrenchment, for General Wheeler's intreachment, the well into which every night the dead had been dropped. Around it is a curious memorial. There are five crosses, one at each corner of the garden and one at the centre, from which inscription I to-day read my text. Riding on we came to the Memorial Church built to the memory of those fallen in Cawnpur. The walls are covered with tablets and epitaphs. I copied two or three of the inscriptions: "These are they who come out of great tribulations ;" also "The dead shall be raised incorruptible ;

Down these steps went General Wheeler and the mon, women and children under his care. They stood on one side of the steps, and Nana Sahib and his staff stood on the other side. As the women were getting into the boats Nana Sahib objected that only the aged and infirm women and children should go on board the boats. The young and attractive women were kept out. Twenty-eight boats were filled with men, women and children and floated out into the river. Each boat contained ten armed natives. Then three boats fastened together were brought up, and General Wheeler and his staff got in. Although orders were given to start, the three boats were somehow detained. At this juncture a boy of twelve years of age hoisted on the top of the Hindoo temple on the banks two flags, a Hindoo and a Mohammedan flag, at which signal the boatmen and armed natives jumped from the boats and swam for the shore, and from innumerable guns the natives on the bank fired on the boats, and masked batteries above and below roared with destruction, and the boats sank with their precious cargo, and all went down save three strong swimmers, who got to the opposite shore. Those who struggled out near by were dashed to death. Nana Sahib and his staff with their swords slashed to pieces General Wheeler and his staff, who

But the poor young man was not satisfied, and the Cawnpur massa-the way to a summar house called the are the way to a sum house, called the assembly rooms, which had been built for recis man who had command of this city, reation and pleasure. It had two rooms, ough often warned, could not see that each twenty-nine by ten, and some windowless closets, and here were imprisoned 203 helpless people. It was to become the pri-son of these women and children. Some of these sepoys got permission of Nana Sahib to take one or more of these ladies to their own place on the promise they should be brought back to the summer garden next morning. A daughter of General Wheeler was so taken and did not return. She after-ward married the Mohammedan who had taken her to his teat. Some sepoys amused themselves by thrusting children through with bayonets and holding them up befo their mothers in the summer house, All tho doors closed and the services and ing guard, the crowled women and children waited their doom for eighteen days and nights amid sickness and flies and stench an i starvation. The butchers came out exhausted, thinking they had done their work, and the doors wors closed, but when they were again opened three women and three boys were still alive. All these were soon dispatched, and not a Christian or European was left in Cawnpur. The murderers were paid fifty cents for each lady slain. The Mohamme-dan assassing dragged by the hair the dead bodies out of the summer house and threw them into a well, by which I stood with such cellings as you cannot imagine. But after he mutilated bodies had been thrown into well the record of the scene remained in hieroglyphics of crimson on the floor and wall of the slaughter house. An eyewitness says that as he walked in the blood was shoe eces of muslin, broken combs, fragments i pinafores, children's straw hats, a cardcase containing a curl, with the inscription, "Ned's hair, with love;" a few leaves of an Episcopal prayer book; also a book entitled "Preparation for Death;" a Bible on the fly ieaf on which was written, "For darling mamma, from her affectionate daughter, Isabella Blair," both the one who presented it and the one to whom it was presented departed forever. Then Nana Sahib heard that Havelock was coming, and his name was a terror to the sepoys. Lest the women and children the sepoys. Lest the women and children imprisoned in the summer house, or assem-bly rooms, should be liberated, he ordered that their throats should be cut. The offi-cers were commanded to do the work and attempted it, but failed because the law of caste would not allow the Hindoo to hold the victims while they were being slain. Then 100 men were ordered to fire through the windows, but they fired over the heads the windows, out they first over the heads of the imprisonal ones, and only a few were killed. Then Nana Shoib was in a rage and orderel professional butchers from among the lowest of the gypsies to go at the work. Five of them, with hatchets and swords and knives, began the work, but three of them collapsed and fainted under the ghastliness, and it was left to two butchers to complete and it was left to two butchers to complete the slaughter. The struggle, the sharp cut, the blinding blow, the cleaving through scalp and skull, the begging for life. the death agony of hour after hour, the tangled limbs of the corpses, the piled up dead-only Go1 and those who were inside the summer house can ever know. I said: "Mr. Lee, I have heard that indeliants things were found written on the walls." He answord : "No, but these poor creatures wrote in charcoal and scratched on the wall the story of the brulalities they had suffered." anniversaries have been adorned with gar-lands. This with drawn swords. Others have been kept with songs. This with the dance of the gay. The solution the councel the floor of this place of massacre, this being the worst of their pun-ishnent, for there is nothing that a Hindoo. There is not only full of human bodies, but corpses plot on the outside. The soliders were for many hours engaged in covering the dead.

It was about 5 o'clock in the evening when leavens, and on that anniversary day gave It was about 5 o clock in the evening when I came upon this place in Cawnpur. The building in which the massacre took place has been torn down, and a garden of ex-quisite and fragrant flowers surrounds the scene. Mr. Lee pointed out to us some seventy mounds containing bodies or por-tions of bodies of those not thrown into the well A soldier stands on grant to keep the tions of bodies of those not thrown into the well. A soldier stands on guard to keep the foliage and flowers from being ruthlessly pulled. I asked a soldier if I might take a rose as a memento, and he handed me a cluster of roses, red and white, both colors suggestive to me—the red typical of the car-nage there enacted, and the white for the write of these who from that spot ascended But of course the most absorbing interest concentrated at the well, into which hun-dreds of women and children were flung or lowered. A circular wall of white marble incloses this well. The wall is about twenty feet high. Inside this wall there is a marble pavement. I paced it and found it fifty-seven paces around. In the center of this inclosure and immediately above the well of the dead is a sculptured angel of resurrection, with illumined face, and two palm branches, meaning victory. This angel is looking down toward the slumberers be-neath, but the two wings suggest the rising of the last day. Mighty consolation in mar-ble! They went down under the hatchets of the sepoys. They shall come up under the trumpet that shall wake the dead. I feit weak and all a-tremble as I stool reading these words on the stone that covers the well: "Sacred to the perpetual memory of a great company of Christian people, chiefly women and children, cruelly massacred near this spot by the rebel, Nana Sahib, and thrown, the dying with the dead, into the beneath on the 15th day of July, 1857.' On the arch of the mausoleum were cut the words, "These are they who came cut of great tribulation."

The sun was sinking beneath the have on a I came down the seven or eight steps of as I came down the seven or eight steps of that place of sepulcher, and I bethought myself: "No emperor, unless it was Napol-leon, ever had more glories around his pli-low of dust, and no queen, unless it were the one of Taj Mahal, had reared for her grander cenotaph than crowns the resting places of the martyrs of Cawnpur. But where rest the bones of the Herod of the where rest the bones of the herod of the nineteenth century, Nana Sahib? Two men sent out to find the whereabouts of the daughter of General Wheeler tracked Nana Sahib during a week's ride into the wilderdess, and they were told that for awhile after the mutiny Nana Sahib set up a little pomp in the jungles. Among a few thousad Hindoos and Mohammedans he took for himself the only two tents the neighbors had, while they lived in the rain and mud. Nana Sabib, with one servant carrying an um-brella, would go every day to bathe, and people would go and stare. For some reason, after awhile he forsook even small attention, and disap-among the ravines of the that small peared Himalayan Mountains. He took with him in his flight that which he always took with him -a ruby of vast value. He wore it as some wear an amulet. He wore it as some wear a life preserver. He wore it on his bosom. The Hindoo priest told him as long as he wore that ruby his fortunes would be good, but both the ruby and the prince who wore it have vanished. Not a treasure on the outside of the bosom, but 'a treasure inside the heart, is the best protection. Solomon, who had rubies in the hilt of swords, and rubies in the lip of the tankards, and rubies in his crown, declared that which Nana Sahlb did not find out in time, "Wis-dom is better than rubies." When the forests of India are cleared by the axes of another civilization, the lost ruby of this Cawn-pur monster may be pleked up and be brought back again to blaze among the world's jewels. But who shall reciaim for decent sepulture the remains of Nana Sahib? Ask the vultures! Ask the reptiles! Ask the jackals! Ask the midnight Himalayas

These were marched away under the guard of the sepoys. "Which way?" I inquired. "I will show you," said Mr. Lee. Again we took seats in the carriage and started for the climax of desperation and diabolism. Now we are on flesh would be found flying through the air, Commentary.

2. "The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light. They that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them bath the light spined." The Spirit, brough Matthew, says that there was a ful-filment of this when Jesus left Nazarath and went to dwell in Capernaum (Math. iv., 13-

Jesus can say, "God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined light," and there was light. God is light. Jesus said, "I am the Light of the world."

to His disciples, "Ye are the light of the world" (Math. v., 14). We know that we have no light in ourseives any more than the moon, which appears to be a ruin of nature.

as man is. But if the sun shining upon the moon can give us such light then we may imagine how the Lord Jesus might make us thine for Him if we were only willing to reflect His light and give Him all the glory, After we have shone for Him a little longer, and He has gathered out His body, the church, then in the midst of gross darkness covering the people the Lord shall arise upon Israel, and His glory shall be seen upon them, and the nations shall come to their light.

a. "Thou has multiplied too hadon and not increased the joy. They joy before Theo according to the joy in harvest and as men rejoice when they divide the spoil." The R. V. gives for the second clause, "Thou hast increased their joy." This is certainly more in accord with the rest of the verse and with the context. The light would give them low.

in accord with the rest of the verse and with the context. The light would give them joy. Compare Isa. Ix., 20, "The Lord shall be thine everiasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended." Even in the days of Mordecal "the Jews had light and gladness and joy and bonor" (Est. vill., 16). As the entrance of God's word giveth light, so also we become filled with joy and peace by believing, and we are commanded to "Re-presence is fullness of joy. At Thy right hand are pleasures forevermore."

4. "For Thou hast broken the yoke of His burden, and the staff of His shoulder, the burden, and the staff of His scoulder, the rod of His oppressor, as in the days of Midian." All past deliverances of Israel, whether in the days of the judges under Gideon. Sampson, Jeptha and others and even the deliverance from Egypt under Momes, were but foreshadowings of a greater and final deliverance from anti-Christ ere the kingdom shall come. The deliverance from

Midian under Gideon, as recorded in Judg. vl. and vil., is one of the most interesting and instructive of Bible stories, showing how God uses the weak things and things that

INITIAL LETTERS,

INTERNATIONAL LESSON FOR An easy way of putting large initial letters on pillow-cases, pillow-shams and towels is to use white carnation braid to cover the stamped lines. The braid is so woven that when applied it has much the effect of raised or padded embroidery. It should be wet and dried before using to prevent shrinking. It is applied to the pattern by sewing it "over and over." The same braid is very pretty when used to outline a pattern on the border of a tea-cloth, either on white or colored linen or denim .- New York

THE BREAKFAST OATMEAL.

16). Wherever Jesus is not known it is cer-tainly darkness and ofitimes "deep dark-ness," as the expression, "shadow of death," is translated in the margin of the R. V. both here and in Ps. xxiii, 4, and elsewhere. This darkness can only be driven away from an individual, or a nation or a land as Jesus, the Light of the world, is revealed. Those who have heard of and have received these on say. "God, who commanded the Mrs. Rorer gives a succinct and simple formula that is infallible if carefully followed : Add four heaping tablespoonfuls oatmeal to one quart of boiling water, add a teaspoonful of In our hearts to give the light of the knowl-edge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ" (II Cor. iv., 6). That makes us think of the darkness that was over the deep in the beginning of the Bible story, when the Spirit moved upon the face of the waters, and God said, "Let there be light" and there was light. God is light salt; mix, and put the whole in a double boiler. Fill the lower boiler with boiling water, stand the inside boiler in this, and boil rapidly twenty minutes, then push the boiler to one side of the range, and cook slowly over night. The oatmeal must not be It is written that the entrance of His word giveth light, and we know that His words are spirit and life (I John i. 5; John vii., 12; Ps. cxix., 130; John vi., 63). Jesus said stirred after the first mixing- it cannot burn in a double boiler, unless the under boiler becomes dry-as the stirring makes the mush starchy or waxy, and also spoils its flavor. Oatmeal made after this receipt will be light, each grain separate, but swollen to three times its original size, and will have a delicious flavor. Turn it out carefully into the dish, without stirring or breaking the grains .-American Cultivator.

DUSTING.

The ideal maid is the maid who dusts properly. But where do we find our ideals? Not in our own parlors, as a rule, but in parlors of other women, who do the dusting themselves.

The careful housekeeper will have faded upholstery, dull woodwork and badly defaced carving unless she is willing to pay the price of eternal vigilance. She must go over everything herself when she has a new maid and insist on that worthy looking and listening attentively. She must give her a feather duster, soft silk old handkerchiefs for the piano and the polished mahogany, and cheesecloth duster for ordinary use. The marbles and ornaments must have a separate duster from the furniture, and a large soft piece of muslin can be used to polish the picture glasses with. A chamois and a listle oil do for finishing touches for the mahogany and polished oak and a soft brush must be used to penetrate the crevices of carving. A whisk broom is also necessary for the upholstered furniture, and a cane dust beater is well used twice a week .-- New York Advertiser.

THE SOURING OF MILE.

A professor in the Michigan Agricultural College speaks of atmospheric microbes from the foul air of stables getting into milk and causing it to "sour and spoil." This language implies that the souring of milk must of necessity result from its contact with air that is impure. Instead of this the souring is always the result of contact of the milk with the oxygen of the atmosphere. There are always some inpurities in air, and these cause it to spoil, the oxygen making this spoiling more rapid. If all impurities could be kept out of milk, it would sour without spoiling. But when milk is in contact with air no matter how pure it may seem, this is impossible. Souring thus necessarily means that the milk will continue to ferment until it becomes rotten or spoiled. The Michigan professor, however, makes a mistake in suggesting the possibility of milking through tubes into close cans, in order to keep out the injurious microbes always found in the air. The air always fills the open space in the cows' teats, and thus the milk even before it leaves them must have some impurities. The only way to have milk entirely pure is to sterilize it by subjecting it to enough heat to destroy all injurious microbes. No care in milking can ever entirely prevent their entrance into it .- Boston Cultivator.

Her appetite is better, she looks better and there has been improvement in every way." J. W. ROBERson, Greenfield, Tennessee.

Ohio's Indian Names.

Ohio has more counties bearing Indian names than almost any of the older Western States. Even Delaware County is said to derive its name from an Indian word now corrupted beyond recognition. Coshocton comes from the Indian name Goschochquenk. Geauga is from the Indian word sheauga, meaning raccoon. Hocking is from Hock-hocking, Indian for bottle river, the name bestowed upon the Hocking because of some peculiarity of its falls. Mahoning is a corrupt ed Indian word, meaning "the lick." Miami is the Ottawa word for mother, and it closely resembles in sound the word "mamma." Muskingum means "the glare of the elk's eye, and seems to perpetuate an interesting fact as to the fauna of Ohio. Ottawa means "trader," and Sandusky "cool water." -Chicago Herald.

cre was his revenge. General Wh lor the although often warned, could not see that the sepoys were planning for his destruction, and that of all his regiments and all the Europeans in Cawnpur.

Mr. Les explained all this to me by the fact that General Wheeler had married a native, and he naturally took her story and thought there was no peril. But the time for the procamation from Nana Sabib had some, and such a document went forth as mever before had seen the light of day. I give only an extract :

"As by the kindness of God, and the good fortune of the emperor, all the Christians who were at Delhi, Poonah. Sattara and other places, and even those 5000 European soldiers who went in disguise into the former city and were discovered, are destroyed and sent to hell by the pious and sagacious Groops who are firm to their religion, and as they have all been conquered by the presgovernment, and as no trace of them is left in these places, it is the duty of all the subjects and servants of the government to re-joice at the delightful intelligence and carry on their respective work with comfort and As by the bounty of the glorious Almighty and the enemy destroying fortune of the emperor, the yellow faced and narrow minded people have been sent to hell, and Cawnpur has been conquered, it is necessary that all the subjects and landowners and government servants should be as obedient to the present government as they have been to the former one; that it is the ncumbent duty of all the peasants and landed proprietors cf every district to rejoice at the thought that the Christians have en sent to hell, and both the Hindoo and Mohammedan religions have been confirmed. and that they should, as usual, be obedie to the authorities of the government and never suffer any complaint against themselves to reach to the ears of the higher authority.

"Mr. Lee, what is this?" I said to our escort as the carriage halfed by an embank-ment. "Here," he said, "is the intrench-ment where the Christians of Cawnpur took It is the remains of a wall which refuge. at the time of the mutiny was only four feet high, behin1 which, with no shelter from the sun, the heat at 130 degrees, 440 men, 560 women and children dwelt nearly a month. A handful of flour and split peas was the daily ration, and only two wells near was the daily ration, and only two weils near by, the one in which they buried their dead, because they had no time to bury them in the earth, and the other weil the focus on which the artillery of the enemy played, so that it was a choice between death by thirst and death by build or shell. Others dropped under accelere a straight multipad under apolexy. A starving, mutilate i, jevered, sunstruck, ghastly group waiting to die ! Why did not the heathen dash down those mud walls and the 10,000 annihilate the now less than 1000? It was because they seemed supernaturally defended.

Nana Sahib resolved to celebrate an anniversary. The 231 of June, 1857, would be 100 years since the battle of Plassy, when, unier Lord Clive, India surrendersi to Eugland. That day the last European in Cawnpur was to be slaughtered. Other anniversaries have been celeorated with wins. This was to be celebrated with blood. Other anniversaries have been adorned with garYou may do your o ism, I here express no opinion. however, that that most finally treating the sepoys broke the back of the mutiny. The Hindoos found that the Europeans could play at the same game which the Asiatics had started. The plot was organized for the murder of all the Europeans and Americans in India. Under its knives and bludgeons American Presbyterianism lost its glorious missionaries, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. MacMuilin, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Freeman. The work of slaughter had been begun in all directions on an appalling scale, and the commanders of the English army made up their minds that this was the best way.

The Black Hole prison has been torn down, but a stone pavement twenty feet by down, out a store present twenty teet by twenty indicates the ground covered by the prison. The building had two small win-dows, and was intended for two or three prisoners. These natives of India crowded into that one room of twenty feet feet by twenty feet 145 Europeans. The midsummer heat, the sufficient on, the trampling of one upon another, the groaning and shricking ad begging and praying of all, are matter of history. The sepoys that night held lights to the small windows and mocked the sufferers. Then all the sounds ceased. That night of June 20, 1756, passed, and 123 corpses were taken out. Only twenty-three people of the 146 were alive, and they had to be pulled out from under the corpses. Mrs. Carey, who survived, was taken by the Indian nabob into his harem and kept a prisoner six years. Lucknow in 1857 was only an echo of Calcutta in 1756. During the mutiny of which I have been speaking natives who had been in the service of Euro-peans and well treated by them, an t with no cause of offense, would, at the call of the mutineers, and without any computetion, stab to death the fathers and mothers of the household and dash out the brains of the children. These natives are at peace now, but give them a chance, and they will re-enact the scenes of 1756 and 1857. They look upon the English as conquerors and them-seives as conquered. The mutiny of 1857 occurred because the British Government was too lenient and put in places of trust and in command of forts too many of the natives

I call upon England to stop the present at-I call upon England to stop the present at-tempt to pailiste the natives by allowing them to hold positions of trust. I am no alarmist, but the only way these Asiatios can be kept from another mutiny is to put them out of power, and I say beware, or the Luck-now and Cawnpur and Delhi martyrdoms, over which the hemispheres have wept, will be eellpsed by the Lacknow and Cawnpur and Delhi martyrdoms yet to be enacted. I speak of what I have seen and heard. I give the opinion of every intelligent Englishman and Soutchmun and Irishman and Americar whom I met in India. Prevention is better and Septemain and Irishman and Americar whom I met in India. Prevention is better than cure. I do not say it is better that England rule in India. I say nothing against the right of India to rule herself, but I do say that the moment the native population of India think there is a possibility of driving back Europeans from India they, will make the attempt, and that they have enough cruei-ties for the time suppressed, which, if let loose, would submerge with carnage every-thing from Calcutta to Bombay and from the Himalayas to Coromandel.

Himalayas to Coromandel. Now, my friends, go home, after what I have suid, to see the beauties of the Mo-hammedanism and Hindooism which many think it will be well to have introduced into

5. "For every battle of the warrior is with confused noise and garments rolled in blood, but this shall be with burning and fuel of fire." The R. V. is more clear and reads, "For all the armor of the armed man in the tumult and the garments rolled in od shall even be for burning for fuel of fire. The Spirit's own comment and light nre." The spirit sown comment and light upon this is found in Ezek. xxxix., 9, 12, where we read that the weapons of the slain shall provide fuel for Israel for seven years, and they shall be seven months burying the dead. The church, the body of Christ, the history of which is not fully revealed in the old." Old Testament, having been completed and caught up to meet Him in the air, shall afterward return with Him when He comes to the earth in His glory for the conversion of Israel and the overthrow of her enemies. These will be the days of recompense for Israel and vengeance upon her enemies, so often referred to (Isa. xxxiv., 8; xxxv., 4; 1xiii., 4). 6. "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given, and the government shall be upon His shoulder, and His name shall be upon his shoulder, and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, the Mighty God, the Everiasting Father, the Prince of Peace." This verse, with the follow-ing, is one of those many passages in which we have a summary of the suffer-ings of Christ and the glory that shall follow if Det is the other more the (I Pet. i., 11), or, in other words, His first coming in humiliation to suffer and His second coming in Bunnardon to Suffer and His second coming in glory to reign. The Christmas lesson which only looks back to His coming as a babe in Bethlehem teaches only half the story. There was no government on earth given to Him at His first coming. They gave Him a stable or His birthnace a manger for His cradle? for His birthpace, a manger for His cradle' not where to lay His head during His life, a cross and a grave with the wicked for His reward. But God raised Him from the dead and gave Him glory, and when He shall come again in that glory then shall he be seen to be the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. He was in-deed wonderful in His humiliation, in His love and patience and faithfulness unto death, but it shall be seen yet more fully that His name is Wonderful (Judg. xill., 18, margin). 7, "Of the increase of His govornment and peace there shall be no end upon the throne of David and upon His kingdom, to order it and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even forever. The geal of the Lord of Hosts will perform this." zeal of the Lord of Hosts will perform this." It is a learful perversion of Scripture to speak of Jesus being now on David'sthrone, as if David ever had a throne in heaven. David reigned seven years at Hebron and 33 years in Jerusalem, and Jesus is to sit on David's throne at Jerusalem and reign over the house of Jacob, according to the simplest meaning of plain words, as in Jer. iii., 17; Luke 31, 32, 33, etc.—Lesson Helper.

Gotham's Parcel Post System.

A few days ago the parcel post system, which is popular in London, was introduced by the Postofiles Department in New York City as an experiment, and it has proved a great success. Seventy large tin boxes with patent lids were placed in convenient localities in the shopping district during one night has week, and at the first collection, which was made at 8.30 o'clock the following morning, they were found to contain over a thousand package, and there was an increase at every collection during the day. This trial having demonstrated the convenience and popularity of such facilities, the Postmastor-General has decided to extend them through the city of New York and introduce the system among the larger cities and towns of the United States. The parcel post in Lon-don handles about eight million packages a year, or one and three-fourth packages for every inhabitant.

Cost of the House of Representatives. The report of James Kerr, Clerx of the House of Representatives, shows that for the year ending June 30, 1594, the salaries of members and other expenses of the House amounted to $930,830, of which total $256,-$39 was for the hire of members' clerks.

tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live bet-ter than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs. Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative ; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it it manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.
