

SOLDIERS SHOT TO KILL

One Man Mortally Wounded in the Brooklyn Strike.

HE WAS AN INNOCENT SPECTATOR.

A Street Car Official Admits That the Company Have Been Unable to Employ Sufficient Men to Run the Cars—Strikers Have the Sympathy of the Public.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 23.—The first fatality of the great strike took place about 11 o'clock last night, when in an encounter with a few boys at the Halsey street station of the Brooklyn City Railway company a volley was fired by the militia. Henry Ahns, of New York city, was fatally shot, a bullet entering at his mouth and passing through his head. Another man, whose name is Williams, was wounded in the arm. The shooting had the instant effect of dispersing the mob.

The quiet which prevailed in the vicinity of Halsey street was suddenly broken by the shooting of a dozen boys, who made a playful attempt to break through the picket lines. The shouting continued a moment longer. It was followed by the sharp crack of a dozen rifles. Most of the shots seemed to have aimed high. A few shots, however, went low, and Henry Ahns was probably fatally shot through the lower jaw. He had just come out of a corner saloon, where he had been drinking with some friends. Ahns stepped back in the protection of the door when he heard the shooting, but he was too late.

The ball just grazed the brim of his friend's hat and hit Ahns full in the face. He was taken to a hospital, and will probably die. Richard Mitchell, a car starter, was shot through both arms.

The ninth day of the steep closed without bringing material change in the situation. It was a day of alarming rumors, which fortunately proved to have slight or no foundation. There were between daybreak and nightfall numerous brushes between the police and militia on one side and the strikers or headstrong law defying sympathizers with the other.

The strikers' strike, which was to have tied up the trolley lines more effectively than had been done by the strike of motormen, conductors and other employes, was called off before it was fairly on, and later in the day the mandate of Master Workman Connelly was promulgated, calling upon the strikers to abandon their situations this morning. What influenced the strike manager to call the strikers off thus quickly and to then order to again cannot now be told. The reason assigned for the latter act is palpably but a pretext.

The operating of the street railway lines has not been wholly satisfactory to the city and military authorities, nor has it in even a comparative degree met the requirements of the public. The admission was made by the superintendent of one line, who was asked by the authorities to explain why, with all the protection that had been accorded, so few cars had been run, that the company was crippled by the lack of men capable of managing a car.

The inference from this admission might be that the companies are waiting until experienced men can be brought from other cities or green hands schooled to their duties.

There is a strong feeling in official circles that the street railway corporations have not kept faith, for they have alleged from the first that if guaranteed protection they could operate all the cars upon all their lines. On the other hand the managers of trolley lines may allege with all fairness that the protection they have received is far from complete. It has prevented the frequent cutting of wires or the stoning of cars as they were making their run.

And right here the public might put in a word to the effect that it is not conducive to mental tranquility on the part of those compelled to ride in trolley cars to reflect that between noon and 8 o'clock yesterday there were no less than seven collisions of cars with vehicles of one kind or another.

Adjudant McAlpin, who came here yesterday as the military and personal representative of Governor Morton, had a conference late in the afternoon with Mayor Schreier. Police Commissioner Welles and Corporation Counsel McDonald. The adjutant general offered to call out the Third brigade of the National Guard of New York to aid in the restoration of order. He was assured by the mayor that at present there is no occasion for calling out more troops.

Master Workman Connelly ordered the strikers out last night. He says that this action was necessitated by the action of the soldiers at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when a company of the Seventh regiment surrounded the hall at the corner of Myrtle avenue and Palmetto street. A squad entered the hall and seized books and papers of the local assembly, which has its headquarters there. Mr. Connelly says that the troops were sent in and the strikers put in charge of the hall. Master Workman Connelly says this is the reason for the strike of the strikers. Mr. Connelly says that he was the one who sent the strikers back yesterday after they had struck. The police and troops deny the statement that they entered the strikers' hall.

An enthusiastic meeting of strikers and their sympathizers was held last night at Labor Lyceum, in Willoughby avenue. The strikers, with their families and friends, were out in full force. As each speaker came forward he was received with wild applause. Mr. J. DeLong, a business man, claimed that every man, woman and child in Brooklyn was in sympathy with the strikers. On a motion of the chairman, M. J. Bowen, a resolution was passed requesting the mayor to sign the recent resolution of the board of aldermen condemning the trolley companies.

JUDGE RICKS EXONERATED.

Charges Against Him Dismissed by the House Judiciary Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The attempt to impeach Judge Augustus J. Ricks, of Cleveland, failed in the house judiciary committee by an adverse vote of 9 to 7, and instead of the resolution for impeachment which Mr. Baily, of Texas, had prepared to report to the house one will be presented denouncing the fee system, which, in the opinion of members, has made the proceedings possible.

The resolution adopted by the committee is as follows: "Resolved, That while the committee is not satisfied that Judge Ricks has been guilty of any wrong committed while judge that will justify it in reporting a resolution of impeachment, yet the committee cannot too strongly condemn the practice under which Judge Ricks made up his accounts."

Judge Ricks gave a personal explanation to the committee of the accounts in the Biedell cases, which he had handled as clerk of the court, and which furnished ground for the investigation, and testimony against him was given by Martin W. Sanders, who had been his deputy clerk and succeeded to the clerkship when Judge Ricks was promoted to the bench.

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE.

Over Eight Hundred Proposed New Laws Already Introduced.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23.—The legislature reconvened last night, and, according to custom, considerable business of importance was transacted in both bodies. In the house upwards of 800 bills were introduced, while in the senate the number was almost half as great. In both branches bills were read for the first time, after which an adjournment was taken until today.

In the house Mr. Lawrence, chairman of the joint legislative committee, appointed to wait upon Colonel A. K. McClure, of the Philadelphia Times, and invite him to deliver an address to the legislature on the life and public services of the late ex-Governor Curtin, reported that he had accepted, and would make the address on the 30th inst. in the hall of the house of representatives.

Bills were introduced: Making unlawful an assembly of idle and boisterous crowds upon public highways; authorizing street railway companies to carry freight; making it compulsory on the part of school directors to prevent male and female teachers from wearing any religious garb or uniform of any civil, military or political organization while on duty in the public school rooms; providing for the condemnation of land by municipalities for public parks, water works and dams; making it a misdemeanor to sell, or to milk or cream; empowering cities and boroughs to appoint inspectors of food, cattle, slaughter and market houses.

In the senate bills were introduced to fix licenses at $500 in cities of the first class; $300 in cities of the second class; $75 in cities of the third class and $30 in boroughs and townships; providing for a site and erection of a state asylum for chronic insane, to be located at Titusville, the cost of ground and building not to exceed $500,000. The papers in the Lanich committee election case were referred to the committee on elections. A communication was received from the governor recalling the nominations of Governor Pattison, and laid over by the senate.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23.—Yesterday was a busy day in the legislature. In both branches much routine business of general interest was transacted. New bills continue to pour in, and it is thought that upwards of 800 have already found their way into the two bodies. Many of these have been brought out of committee and read the first time; others have passed finally in one branch or the other, and will soon be turned over to the governor for his action. The nominations of Alexander Port, of Huntingdon, and ex-Judge Augustus S. Landis, of Hollidaysburg, as managers of the Huntingdon reformatory were confirmed by the senate.

Bills were put through the house finally providing for additional law judges; Washington and Westmoreland counties; providing for biennial organization of councils in second class cities; requiring accounts together by husband and wife for injury to the person wrongfully inflicted upon the wife.

The Clarence bill, for the relief of firemen disabled in the performance of their duties and for the families of firemen killed in the service, was read the first time. The bill provides that 1 per cent of the tax paid by foreign fire insurance companies shall be paid by the state treasurer to regularly incorporated firemen's relief associations which are placed under the supervision of the insurance commissioner, to whom they must make report annually.

Among the new bills introduced were: To license pool rooms in cities; amending the marriage license act by providing that persons must be married in the county in which the license is issued; increasing the license fee to $1,000 for bottlers, brewers, etc.

In the senate the bill to create a banking department, enlarging the scope of the existing system and fixing the annual salary of the commissioner to be appointed under the act at $6,000, passed finally. Among the bills introduced were: For the annexation of cities of the second class and cities, boroughs and townships, to cities of the second class; authorizing school boards to direct instruction to be given by means of pictorially illustrated works in any branches of study.
