GOVERNOR MARVIL DEAD Delaware's Chief Executive Yields

to His Long Illness.

HIS SUCCESSOR A DEMOCRAT.

Brief Life Sketch of the Dead Governor and of William C. Watson, Who Becomes Governor by Virtue of His Selection as Speaker of the Senate.

DOVER, Del., April 9.-Governor Joshua H. Marvil died at 9:20 last night, after baying been unconscious for an hour and mhalf. He was surrounded by the members of his family, and the end came peacefully and painlessly. Speaker Watson, who by reason of Governor Marvil's death becomes chief executive of the state, arrived here from his home in Milford at 9 o'clock this morning, when he was in-ducted into office by Chancellor Walcott. Senator Records, of Sussex, will probably be chosen speaker pro tem.

Joshua Hopkins Marvil was born in Little Creek hundred, Sussex county, Sept. 3, 1825. His family was originally of English descent on the paternal and French on the maternal side. He was the son of Joseph Marvil, a farmer, who was drowned in 1834, leaving a widow and six children, none grown. Joshua was the fourth child. He was obliged to work, and found the farm labor so pressing that he was only able to attend school for a small portion of the school year.

He remained with his mother until 21 years of age, and then hired a man to take his place, while he followed the water for a year. For seven years thereafter the future governor was engaged in shipbuilding, at which calling he demonstrated rare mechanical ability, and in a short time was made foreman of the yard in which he was employed.

When 28 years old Marvil established a shop for the manufacture of agricultural fuplements, and carried it on until 1865. In 1870 he invented a machine for manufacturing berry baskets, and by hand power made 25,000 in that year. The next year, steam being introduced, he turned out 600,000 baskets, besides crates to contain the same. The business gradually grew until the establisment now makes 2,000,000 baskets every year, besides other boxes for the transportation of fruits. A number of establishments in other states are using his machinery.

William Thorp Watson, who, by the death of Governor Marvil, becomes gov-ernor of Delaware, was born in Milford, Kent county, Delaware, on June 22, 1849, and is the son of Bethule and Ruth T. Watson and grandson of Governor Willfam Watson, who was chief executive from January 1847, to January, 1851.

Governor Watson was educated at Chesfactown, Md., and at the conclusion of his studies returned to his home in Milford. An uncle of the governor, Colonel C. S. Watson, was a member of the senate in 1867, and his father was at one time a member of the lower house.

Governor Watson moved to Philadelphia in 1879, and resided there about four years, after which time he returned to Milford and was nominated by the Democrats for a seat in the house of representatives in 1885. He was elected, but the question of his eligibility having been raised (he not having been a resident of the state for three years immediately preceding his election and a resident of the county for one year), Mr. Watson refused to take the In 1892 he was nominated for the sult of Anna Dickinson, the noted political speaker and tragedienne, against her sister and four others, is in the hands of the twelve for final decision. Miss Dickinson seeks to recover $50,000 damages for being confined five weeks in the Danville Insane asylum in 1891. The trial has occupied eight days, and has been attended by prominent men and women friends of the plaintiff and defendants. The crowds have been so large that hundreds have daily been denied admittance to the court Judge Acheson occupied an hour in charging the jury. His charge was plainly in favor of the defense. He brought out the strong points in the evidence which showed Miss Dickinson violent, and the peculiar actions at the time of her incarceration. When the case was ended it was the opinion of lawyers and spectators that the jury would either disagree or find a verdict in favor of the defendants.

DAMAGE BY FRESHETS.

The Delaware River Twenty-five Feet Above Low Water Mark.

EASTON, Pa., April 10 .- A freshet of unusual magnitude prevails in the streams in this locality. The Delaware and Le-high rivers and Bushkill creek have overflown their banks, and the lowlands are submerged for miles around. Many factories have been compelled to shut down. The occupants of the houses along Bushkill creek have moved their effects to the second floor for safety. The Delaware is twenty-five feet above low water mark, the highest point reached in many years, and is still rising rapidly. Thousands of dollars' worth of lumber has been carried away in the lumber region.

CARBONDALE, Pa., April 10 .- Heavy rains and melting snow have caused the Lackawanna river to overflow its banks. The amount of damage done will reach thousands of dollars. Bridges have been torn away, plers removed, and outhouses flooded, causing the death of many domestic animals. The flooding of mines will prevent resumption of work for weeks. KINGSTON, N. Y., April 10.-The great freshet in the Esopus creek has inundated a large part of the northern section of this city, and for miles there is nothing to be seen, looking northward, except a vast expanse of water. Great damage must result. The Mohawk and Sacandaga rivers are very high. Most of the mountain

Near the body was found a bloody chisel, and on the floor of the room lay several pieces of clothing saturated with blood.
