CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS

Their Thirteenth International Convention Held in Boston.

THE CITY A TENTED FIELD.

Thousands Camp on the Famous Common --- Mass Meetings Held Daily--- The Society's Marvelous Growth---A World-Wide Organization, With Nearly Two Million Members.

There is hardly a spot on the civilized globe that was not represented at the thirteentb Christian Endeavor Convention, which as sembled this year in Boston, Mass. The old city was decked in holiday attire to welcome her guests, most of the business houses and public resiences displaying bunting and emblems.

REV DR. F. E. CLARK. (Founder of the Y. P S. of C. E.)

A mammoth dry-goods house in Tremont street had its entire front covered by an electrical design. The Park Square station of the New Haven road was tastefully decorated. The churches were decked out with flags, and in more than fifty pulpits on the Sunday before the convocation the sermons touched on the convention.

The two great tents on the Common, with a capacity of 10,000 people each, were amply equipped with electric lights and seats arranged as in an amphitheatre. The chorus of 3000 voices was the largest ever heard in

The feature in which the general public manifested the greatest interest was the three great mass meetings held each day in Mechanics' Hall and in the tents. These were addressed by some of the most noted evangelists from all parts of the world, and the addresses were supplemented by "open parliaments," lasting for a half hour or more.

Next in general interest were the committee configuration of the state of th tee conferences, held simultaneously at fif-teen different churches, each representing a special department of Endeavor work.

Another feature which excited great enthusiasm was the State railies, receptions and general social occupations at the State in the different State headquarters in Boston. There were also several local receptions at the hotel headquarters, given by the various legations to the officers of the United

On the third afternoon of the convention an informal reception was tendered to the State and Territorial officers of the Christian Endeavor by the United Society in Cotian Hall. Over 800 invitations were issued for

A unique feature was the series of noonday meetings held at factories, stores and wharves wherever they could be arranged. More than one hundred companies of work-ers organized in various parts of the country to take charge of these meetings.

The first National Convention of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor was held in Portland, Me (its birthplace), in 1882. The membership then was 481, comprising six societies. At the twelfth conven-tion held in Cleveland, Ohio, in June, 1894. 28,741 societies, with a membership of 1,724,- 400, were represented. Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, of the Williston Church, of Portland, Me., was the origina-tor of the society. Being desirous of interesting the young people in church work he invited them to his house and talked to them about it, and their enthusiasm being aroused, he asked them to sign this pledge.

"Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ strength, I promise Him that I will strive to do whatever He would like to have me do; that I will pray to Him and read the Bible every day, and that, just so far as I know how, throughout my whole life, I will endea-vor to lead a Christian life. As an active member I promise to be true to all my duties, to be present at and to take some part aside from singing in every meeting, unless hindered by some reason which I can conscientiously give to my Lord and Master, Jesus Christ. If obliged to be absent from the monthly consecration meeting, I will, if possible, send an excuse for my absence to the society."

first name subscribed to this pledge The first name subscribed to this pledge was that of W. H. Pennell, who has ever since been prominent in the society. It was not long before every church in Portland had a similar society. A member of Williston Church moved to Lincoln, Neb., and carried the idea there. Another member moved to South Hadley, Mass., and started a society there. And so it spread, not only a society there. And so it spread, not only throughout this country, but to foreign countries, until it has reached every civilized country on the globe, and, in fact, some which are not civilized.

The Language of Flags. To "strike the flag" is to lower the National colors in token of submission. Flags are used as the symbol of rank and command, the officers using them being called flag officers. Such flags are square, to distinguish them from other banners. A "flag of truce" is a white flag displayed to an enemy to indicate a desire for a parley or consultation. The white flag is the sign of peace. After a battle, parties from both sides often go out to the field to rescue the
