

PRINTED THE NEWS.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE SURPRISES ITS READERS.

Chronicle Facts of Increasing Business Instead of Widespread Ruin—Headed It "Good News"—If Wages Are Rising, Protection Is Wrong.

Great searchings of heart prevailed among the rural readers of the New York Tribune when their eyes fell upon a paragraph entitled "Good News from New Brunswick, N. J." Having in mind Senator Lexow's declaration that the cause of protection is lost unless evidence of widespread ruin are at once produced and his demand that Republican journals should immediately send their reporters out through the manufacturing communities in order to bring back accounts of the ravages of the present tariff, they will naturally expect under the heading "Good News" some consolatory tales of smokeless chimneys, silent forges, reductions of wages, strikes and other manifestations of distress and despair.

Instead of this they will be perplexed to learn that a large iron concern in New Brunswick has increased the wages of its workmen 10 per cent; that a rubber company has given orders to refit a mill that was closed several years ago, and which will give employment to about 1,000 men; that two wall paper factories, instead of shutting down for two months, as has been their custom, have kept running through July and will suspend only through August, and that a great hosiery company is running full time and with every department full handed. Worse than all, this hosiery company reports that it has never been so busy in its history, while the prospects for a continuance of trade are excellent. For one morning's news from one community this is a terrible accumulation of unpleasant facts.

The editorial position of the Tribune as regards prosperity is that it prevails only in particular industries. The evil disposed Democrats were balked in their attempts to create universal ruin and only succeeded in damaging things in spots. Where the tariff remained protective industries found that they were able to struggle along, but where protection was reduced nothing but ruin followed.

This is a very safe position to take so long as it is possible to stick closely to generalities and avoid all particularization of industries. But the imprudent Mr. Lexow has made this course impracticable. He says that if wages are really rising the Republicans are all wrong and have been wrong all the time, and that the production of tangible and specific cases of starvation and misery is indispensable. The Tribune owes it to its loyal readers to furnish them with a list of industries now languishing under the influence of the tariff, and the sooner it sets about the work the more likely it is to be. There are some hopeful signs of a strike among the coal miners, and they should promptly be made the most of, or the storm may blow over.—New York Evening Post.

Changes In Three Years.
Things were different three years ago this summer season in Allegheny county. Homestead was quite a center of disturbance, the McKinley style of protection was in full force, and reduced wages were the rule. In the same section today the greatest advance in wages ever known was made just a week ago, when 3,000 puddlers in the First district of Pittsburgh were given a voluntary advance and 10,000 puddlers in all shared in the increase. Later on the same benefit will accrue to 30,000 finishers. This is by no means an isolated case. The industries under the new tariff law have taken on a life and vigor perfectly amazing to the calamity howlers, and instances of wages advancing from 10 to 25 per cent are common news stories every day.—Philadelphia Times.

McKinley's Discomforts.
"The increase of wages," says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, "has given Mr. McKinley great discomfort, but as a circus was attached in Ohio the other day he begins to hope that the business revival is only a spurt, and that the return to depression of last year may not be far off." The failure of that circus is not the only failure on which the governor can base a hope that the hard times are not yet over. There is, for instance, Governor McKinley's own great and lasting failure to find out where he stands on the silver question.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Republicans of the Same Opinion.
Despite a Republican majority of 80,000 two years ago there are Democrats who hope to carry Ohio this year.—New York Sun.

The Republican plurality in Ohio two years ago was 80,000. Last year it was 137,000. If the Sun will take the trouble to look up the opinions of the good Deacon Richard Smith, it will find there are, in addition to the hopeful Democrats, some Republicans who are somewhat expectant in the same direction.—Washington Post.

Boutelle's Opinion.
"Congressman Boutelle says that the tariff will undoubtedly be the Republican issue next year, but we risk nothing in saying that he is mistaken," remarks the Boston Herald.

Anything to Get Control.
The Richmond Dispatch says that a coalition has been formed between the Republicans and Populists of Virginia to attempt to gain control of the state legislature.

Longs For the Good Old Times.
Senator Quay longs for the good old times in Pennsylvania politics when the politicians would stay bought.—Washington Post.

ENCOURAGING REPORT.

The treasury statement of receipts and expenditures show a surplus for the month of September of nearly $5,000,000. In round figures the receipts were $27,500,000 and expenditures $24,500,000. As compared with last September the receipts were nearly $5,000,000 greater and expenditures $5,000,000 less.

Receipts from customs were slightly less than those of last September; from internal revenue they were nearly double. The greatest saving in expenditures was with civil and miscellaneous accounts, which were less by nearly $3,000,000 than last September. From this it is evident that there is a general improvement in every direction.

The Burglar.

The central character presented in "The Burglar" is such a novel one, and is possessed of so much two-sidedness, that the audience marvel at the author's conception. A burglar on a midnight exploit is rather pleasantly surprised at the appearance of a little tot, who amuses him in a very astonishing way all the while he is preparing his plunder. Before his departure from the house he discovers in Editha his own child, whose mother he has cruelly wronged and deserted. The scene of recognition is one calculated to evoke no end of interest and to keep the audience absorbed until the climax of the play. During the unfolding of the plot a comedy vein of gentle quality prevails. It may thus be said with impunity that "The Burglar" lacks no elements necessary to acceptance by all classes of theatre-goers.

At Garmans opera house next Wednesday evening, Oct. 9th.

For the Ladies.

Mrs. J. A. Aikens has just returned from an extended visit through the Eastern cities with a selection of the latest in Ladies' Capes, Coats and Suits. Call and keep in the front. You must see the imported Golf Cape—it wears. Prices to suit the times.

Killed the Cat.

When the big storm passed over Centre Hall, a bolt of lightning struck a tree near the house of John Moore, west of town. A cat on the porch was killed, but no further damage was done.

Serious Fall.

George P. Miller, who resides near Hoys' school house, along the Boalsburg road, arose early Wednesday morning, 25th, and by mistake opened a door leading to the cellar instead of into the dining room. He fell into the cellar and when found was insensible. He is 80 years old and it is feared he will not recover.

Gratitude.

During the great flood at Johnstown in 1889 Buffalo Bill contributed $1,000 to the sufferers.—The other day he had his wild west show there and they assessed him $200 license. There's nothing like gratitude.

Y. M. C. A. Anniversary.

Next Sabbath evening the Y. M. C. A. of Bellefonte, will hold its 26th anniversary in the Presbyterian and Methodist churches. Among the prominent speakers of the evening will be R. H. Gilbert, of Tyrone.

Backed Out.

John Brown and his father-in-law, Samuel Shaeffer, will not engage in the hotel business at Lock Haven, as was intended. The proprietor of the Columbus backed out when Mr. Brown went down to complete the transfer.

Chestnut Crop.

During the past week ripe chestnuts were on sale about town. They are quite small, owing probably to the early frosts. There will be an abundant crop this year.

Snake Story.

A child of barber Brady, of Coburn, was playing in the yard of its home last Friday when a large copperhead snake wound itself around its leg. The child screamed and the mother ran to the rescue, killing the snake before it had bitten the little one.

Laying Pipe.

Mr. George B. Johnston will go to State College this week where he will superintend the laying of four miles of water pipe for a local company. The pipe is 12, 10, 8 and 6 inches and will be laid from Shingletown Gap, in the Seven mountains, to State College in order to give the town a sufficient water supply.

One Week Yet.

Next Friday, October 4, is the last day on which voters can pay taxes. Only one week yet remains for those who have not yet done so, to attend to this important matter. Democrats see that your taxes are paid.

Sale of Real Estate.

In another column will be found an advertisement for the sale of 82 acres of woodland, Henry McAuley tract, at Jacksonville, Pa., October 25, 1895.

John M. Keichline, adm'r., of the John Wagner estate, Milesburg, will again offer the flouring mill, a farm and property for sale Saturday, November, 2nd.

ABRAHAM MILLER has no clerical ability or business capacity, an undisputable fact. Do the people want such an official in the prothonotary's office?

BUT ONE month remains until the annual Fall election takes place.

Arbor Day.

Dr. Schaeffer, superintendent of public instruction, has designated Friday, October 18, as Arbor day, and has prepared a proclamation urging those connected with the schools of the commonwealth to observe the day with appropriate exercises.

Office Seeker.

MR. MILLER, the republican candidate for prothonotary, for years was known as a constant office seeker. He held the position of gauger at the Pleasant Gap distillery for many years, receiving about $800 salary per year. In addition to $3,000 pack pension, he gets $24 each month regularly and now makes the plea that he "needs the office. Candidly, is this not smearing it on pretty thick?"

—George M. Rupp, aged 58 years, died at his home in Aaronsburg, on Tuesday of last week. He was a veteran of the late war and had been ill for several years. Deceased leaves a wife and seven children. He was a member of the G. A. R. of Millheim, which organization buried him with the honors of war.

All That's Claimed

"I had a poor appetite, that tired feeling and was run down, but Hood's Sarsaparilla has done me a great deal of good. I have a better appetite and do not feel tired. I can recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as an excellent spring or fall medicine to keep the blood in order. Myself and three daughters have taken over six bottles, and it has done us much good. We do not now have to call upon a doctor, as formerly, in the spring time, and I can say that Hood's Sarsaparilla is all that is claimed for it. I most heartily recommend it, and shall always keep it in my house." ALBERT KINSEY, Auburn, Pa.
