GATESBURG GOSSIP.

All the Important Events in Western P. Ferguson.

The cloversced is yielding well. Mr. H. McCracken, of near Rock Spring, had 76 bushels.

GOOD PRICE—Mr. A. M. Brown, the lumberman, at Penna. Furnace, sold a heavy draft horse, last week to a firm in Pittsburg, for $150. That does not look as though horses are selling below par.

GOOD TIME—Mr. J. D. Nearhood, of Rock Spring, and the Irvin Brothers, started one morning last week for Altoona, on their wheels. Arrived safe and spent three hours in the city and then left for home, and arrived in time for supper, having traveled 60 miles in 6 hours. Pretty good considering the bad roads.

Mrs. Geo. Harpster and daughter, of Pine Grove Mills, were pleasant callers last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gates.

NEW GOODS—Mr. Rider, the merchant at this place, is having his shelves filled with a new stock of goods, which he will sell at rock bottom prices. Why go away from home to buy when you have such a chance.

GOING TO KANSAS—Mrs. Mila Zwigg, of Rock Spring, will take her departure on the 10-inst. for Kansas, where her husband has located. We wish her a safe and pleasant journey to her future home.

Miss C. H. of this place, we think will soon locate in Tyrone, and save Mr. E. S. the trouble of the long trip.

Mr. R. W. Downing and wife, of Loveville, were pleasant callers last week, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Harpster, Sr. near this place.

Sale at the late residence of Albert Wilson, dec'd, 1/4 mile S. W. of Graysville, Huntingdon Co., Pa. Horses, cows and farm implements, etc., on Sat. Oct. 12th, 1895. Sale at 1 o'clock p. m.

ZION ITEMS.

APPLES PLENTY—Farmers are busy gathering their winter apples. It is an abundant crop. Wm. Clevestine has about four hundred bushels.

WATER SCARC—Water is becoming very scarce, owing to the drought. Some of the farmers must haul water for all their stock. Henry Garbrick's well, which is over two hundred feet deep, is failing.

Rev. Gearhart is having his harvest services next Sabbath afternoon. The church will be tastefully decorated.

NEW HOUSE—Mrs. Lydia Lesh and daughter Catharine, are erecting a new house at the west end of town, which they expect to occupy by next spring.

ANOTHER ONE—Daniel Grove has his new house about finished, which is quite an improvement to the property.

SCHOOLS OPEN—Our public schools opened last Monday a week, with Frank McCoy at Zion, and Cyrus Hoy, at Forest, as teachers. They are getting along very nicely at both schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry McCloskey were visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Gephart, Mrs. McCloskey's parents over Sunday.

H. H. Willits, our genial station agent, was to Jersey Shore over Sunday, suppose he went to visit his parents; how is it Harry?

Mr. McCoy and Miss May Struble attended the wedding of Mr. McCoy's sister at Potter Mills, on last Thursday. On their way home they stopped at Pleasant Gap to attend the wedding of Mr. Harry Hile and Miss Jennie Twitmyre, which took place at six o'clock in the evening.

BITTEN BY A HORSE—Mrs. Henry Garbrick was bitten in the hand by a horse, last Sunday, while in the act of cleaning the trough. It is a very painful wound, although not serious.

Mrs. Ed. Cole has been ill for several weeks, but is again able to be around.

Harry Johnson is able to be about again after a serious attack of typhoid fever.

Wonder if Bill has found out who has reminded him of the bachelorship, guess not. Torsy.

—Mr. Henry Zeigler and son, of Linden Hall, were in town on Tuesday and visited the CENTRE DEMOCRAT office.

—Dr. O. W. McEntire, of Howard, Pa., was appointed a member of medical board of examiners this week, by the Pension Department. He succeeds Dr. H. K. Hoy, who moved to Altoona.

ELECTRICITY DOESN'T KILL.

Secrets of the Death Chamber at Auburn Prison.

In an interview, Dr. P. J. Gibbons, of Syracuse, originator of the present methods of resuscitating victims of electric shock, said regarding electrical executions:

"They don't kill the subjects by electricity; they kill them by the knife or otherwise, barring cases of specific cases of weakness, aneurism of the heart or weakness in the brain, in which cases the shock might produce rupture and certain death. Ninety-five per cent. of the subjects are not killed by the current. Now in the first place they use an alternating current. The alternating current hardly ever kills. The continuous current may coagulate the blood; the alternating current never does that. If they want to kill criminals by electricity they should construct a special continuous current dynamo for the purpose with coarse winding. Then they can kill their subjects. They don't do it now."

"I applied to Gov. Flower for permission to attempt to resuscitate victims of the electric current. At that time I was very anxious to let the world know what could be done in the way of resuscitation. They would not allow it, however. I don't care anything about it now, for the reason that the knowledge of these methods is now spread all over the world where electricity is used, and its utility has been demonstrated, and that was the object I had in view."

"I was in Auburn prison when they killed the negro Johnson. This is a chapter which has been kept secret long enough. After the current had been applied to Johnson I was allowed to apply the simple means of artificial respiration and did so.

"It was not very long before Johnson gave a gasp and showed unmistakable evidence of returning consciousness. The Warden intervened and prevented the further prosecution of the attempt, and, of course, the symptoms of returning life ceased.

"A little later they performed the autopsy on Johnson. It was agreed among those present that the facts should remain one of the secrets of the death chamber. They might as well be known now, and there they are.

"About two months before Johnson was killed, they experimented on another negro named Taylor. You will remember that in Taylor's case it was announced that the armature of the dynamo burned out and that it was necessary to obtain a current from the city lighting plant to continue the operation.

"Such was not the case. The armature burned out, but to the surprise of the current had been applied fully, but when they applied the current the second time, fifty three minutes later, they applied it to a dead man. Taylor came to himself sufficiently to move and talk and walk.

"Deadly drugs were administered to him, and he was killed by those drugs, and as I say, when the borrowed current was applied it was applied to a corpse, made such by the administering of deadly drugs. There is another secret of the electric chamber."

"Dr. Gibbons," said the interviewer, "that is a very serious charge. Do I understand you perfectly? This man recovered partial consciousness and would have lived had not the drugs been administered to him, and a second application of the current was made after he was dead from the effects of the drugs?"

"That is the statement exactly," said Dr. Gibbons. "and I am prepared to prove its correctness."

"Now about this latest case, that of Dr. Buchanan," said the reporter.

"That was the easiest case of any of them to resuscitate. Dr. Buchanan would have recovered consciousness after the first application if he had been left alone and no remedies applied. After the second application consciousness would have been restored by the simple means we are talking about, without even the use of a bellows."

A Born Diplomat.

Charlie was caught napping on the porch of the summer resort. A pair of soft little hands covered his eyes and a sweet voice commanded:

"Guess who it is." "Nothing very dreadful for Charlie in this, you think; but then you don't know that Charlie was engaged to two girls, and for the life of him, couldn't decide which voice it was, which made it a very embarrassing situation for Charlie. A wrong guess would lead to complications awful to think of. But a happy thought inspired Charley, and he announced:

"It's the dearest, sweetest little girl in all the world." "Oh, you lovely boy!" gurgled the satisfied one, as she removed her hands.

And now Charlie thinks of applying for a foreign Ministry, feeling that his talents would be wasted in any other than a diplomatic field.—Puck.

Tantalizing.

Little Rastus was reading aloud for the edification of the rest of the family from his book of fairy tales.

He began:

"Once there was a flock of chickens which wandered after dark into a watermelon patch—"
"See heah, boy!" his father interrupted. "When de preacher comes nex' Sunday I gwine ask heem ef dem words is really dar, an' ef you jes ben makin' dat up fer to tantalize me, I gwine dust yo' jacket till yo' tongue hang out!"—Indianapolis Journal.

Considerate.

"Mary we have breakfast at 8 o'clock," said Mrs. Post to her new servant girl, who was already entertaining several of her friends who had dropped in to see how she liked her new place.

"All right, man," said Mary. "If I ain't up don't wait for me."—San Francisco Post.

GOLD WATCHES.

There Are Thousands of Jewish Watch Dealers, but No Watchmakers.

The manager of one of the largest watch factories in the United States says that while his company have a very large number of Jewish customers who buy watches at wholesale for their stores, there is not in the country a single watch factory of Jewish proprietorship.

A large part of the retail trade in watches is in the hands of Jewish dealers, whose purchases from the factories amount to millions of dollars a year, but they leave to other people the business of manufacturing them, which is supposed to be a very profitable industry.

There are certain kinds of watches which can be manufactured only by existing companies, as their mechanism is guarded by patents; but there are other watches no part of the works of which is patented. In the making of American watches machinery is employed to an extent unequalled in any foreign country. The factory manager says that in the delicate and complicated processes through which a stem-wind watch is made not far from four thousand distinct mechanical operations are involved, besides other work which does not come within the scope of machinery.

In several of the largest American watch factories the operatives are numbered by the thousand, and include both men and women. It is surprising for one who is unacquainted with the business to learn that there are single factories in the United States which have manufactured as many as half a million watches in a year, and sold them, too.

Canine Knowledge of Human Speech.

No dog lover requires proof that his canine friends understand human speech, and he is always ready to accept new evidence in favor of a theory already held. Knowing this fact, a correspondent relates the exploits of a sailor dog appropriately named Jack.

His master was the captain of a fishing vessel sailing from Provincetown. Jack had often been his master's companion in his voyages, but on one occasion it was decided that the dog must be left at home. The eve of the captain's departure had come. The dog lay dozing beside the fire, and gave no sign of interest when his master said in ordinary tones: "We must shut Jack up in the barn to-night, or he will try to follow me in the morning."

Presently Jack barked to be let out, and no one thought any more about him until bedtime, when he was to be made prisoner. Then no Jack was to be found. In vain were whistling, calling, coaxing and scolding, and at last the puzzled master gave up the search.

The next morning the captain started before dawn on his long tramp to the neighboring port. There his sailors were waiting to row him to his vessel, which was one of a large fleet lying in the harbor at some distance from the shore. As they drew near his own vessel the captain was astonished to see the familiar head of Jack watching his approach with evident interest, and probably with varied emotions.

The dog's appearance had been as great a mystery to the sailors during the night as it was now to the captain. Shortly after midnight they had been startled by a whining and scratching at the vessel's side, and had been delighted to find their friend Jack begging to be taken from the water to the deck.

There is no reason to doubt that the creature had fully understood his master's purpose, and determined to forestall it. How he accomplished his long tramp to the port, swam across the harbor, and, in the darkness, selected his master's vessel from the large fleet of similar craft, I leave it to some master of canine psychology to explain. I simply state the facts as I know them to have occurred.—Youth's Companion.

Nature's Beverage.

The weary teetotaler riding along a dusty white hot turnpike in Kentucky came to a farm house with a well sweep in the front yard and a man sitting in the shade by the gate.

"Good day," saluted the traveller.

"Can I be accommodated with a drink here? I am very thirsty."

"Certainly," was the hospitable response. "What would you like to have?"

"Nature's beverage, of course," replied the teetotaler, somewhat shocked.

"All right," said the native, taking a bottle of corn juice from his pocket and handing it over. "There's about a pint in there and plenty more in the house. Help yourself."

Public Office for Riches.

The honorarium which the Chinese Government paid Mr. John W. Foster for his diplomatic services is said on excellent authority to be between $50,000 and $60,000, and not $250,000, as first reported. On the occasion of Mr. Foster's first meeting with Li Hung Chang, the latter asked the American ex-Secretary of State:

"You have held many offices?"
"Yes, quite a number."
"And you are not rich?"
"No."
"You have a queer country," replied the vicerey, "I cannot understand you."

The Bicycle and the Piano.

There is one redeeming feature about the bicycle craze; the father who buys his girls one each has no money left to buy a piano.—Acheson Globe.

Sure of Him.

"Isn't he rather fast?" asked the anxious mother.

"Yes, mamma, in one sense of the word. I don't think he can get away."—Indianapolis Journal.

Kansas's corn crop this year will be about 400,000,000 bushels, the biggest the State ever had. Nebraska, too, expects to make a record, if present indications hold out, with the largest crop ever raised in the State.

Well Recommended. From Findlay, O. Republican, Oct. 1, 1892.

Al. G. Fields' latest minstrel success, "Darkest America," drew the first large house of the season to the Marvin Theatre last night. "Darkest America" is fitted out in gorgeous style and the stage settings and trimmings of the first part are magnificent. The singing and other features of the opening part were of a high order, the music being especially good. The plantation scenes and songs given took with the crowd, as did also the many good specialty acts with which the program abounded. The big audience present voted "Darkest America" the best minstrel party that has been seen in Findlay for several seasons. "Darkest America" will be presented at the Garman opera house on Wednesday evening, Oct. 16.

Fire at Milesburg.

Mrs. A. McCollum's house burned to the ground Wednesday morning about 11 o'clock. The fire occurred from a defective flue. The writer does not know, at present, whether there was any insurance on the property or not. The property was occupied by Mr. David Wiland, at the time of the fire. But from what we can understand he got all his household goods out in time.
