A GREAT LOSS TO CUBA

The Wreck of the Steamer Watkins, with Filibusters Aboard.

ONLY SIX OF THE MEN WERE LOST.

The Balance Rescued by Passing Vessels. The Watkins, Which Left New York at Midnight, Carried a Big Supply of Arms and Ammunition.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 .- At no time since the beginning of hostilities has there been such excitement at the headquarters of the Cuban revolutionists in this city as there was yesterday when it was learned that the steamship J. W. Hawkins, which had been fitted out at great trouble and expense as a filibuster, had been wrecked off the eastern end of Long Island on Sunday night and had been abandoned by the revolutionists and the crew on Monday morning.

The news came as a thunderbolt among the leading spirits in the revolutionary camp here, for the evening papers in their late editions published a report to the effect that the steamer Hawkins had been fitted out at One Hundred and Thirtyeight street and the East river, this city, with arms and ammunition, and, if proved, was likely to get the leaders into trouble with the government.

The story was to the effect that the revo-Intionary party had recently purchased the steamer in Baltimore. She had been engaged in the fishing trade, and was of 125 tons net and 188 tons gross. She was com-manded by Captain Hall, and her mate was C. H. Crowell. Jose C. Hernandez, one of the filibusters who arrived in this city, was credited with having called at the revolutionary headquarters and with having made a full report of the accident to the revolutionary minister Palma.

Hernandez reported to Minister Palma that the filibustering party left on the J. W. Hawkins from One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street and the East river at midnight on Saturday. They number about 120 men and the crew number sixteen. Early Monday morning rough weather was encountered and the steamer began to leak badly. Hernandez, or whatever the young man's name is, who reported to Minister Palma, said that there was over $80,000 worth of arms on board the steamer besides two Hotchkiss guns, 1,200 Remington rifles and 1,000,000 round of ammunition. The water had gained so much by Monday morning that the fires were put out in the engine room and the revolutionists helped at the pumps. Finally all the arms and ammunition, including a lot of dynamite, were thrown overboard, but even this was of no avail and the ship had to be abandoned.

In command of the revolutionary party was Calisto Garcia Iniga, and his son, Carlos Garcia, was second in command. The reports at the Cuban headquarters are conflicting as to whether every one escaped or not. It was said that Hernandez had reported that he had escaped from the sinking ship in one of the first three boats to leave her, and that the inmates of the three had been picked up by the schooner Leander V. Beebe. Later the revolutionists were transferred from the Baeba to the tug Dalziel and landed in this city.

Those not taken on board the Beebe wer picked up by the schooners Helen H. Ben-edict, of Boston, and Elisia Crosby, of Portland, Me., and taken to Woods Holl, Mass., and Boston.

Minister Palma at first refused to see reporters, and his associates were evidently afraid to do any talking. At first blank that any filibustering expedition had left here in the steamer Hawkins or any other steamer and been wrecked. A man, who refused to give his name and who was afterwards pronounced a Spanish spy, said that Hernandez had received a large sum of money from Minister Palma to assist those of the stranded filibusters who might be in need.

It was not until 7 o'clock last night that about a score of newspaper men succeeded in getting an interview or statement from Minister Palma personally. He said that in his official capacity he knew absolutely nothing about the alleged filibustering expedition. He declined to say anything about the wreck of the Hawkins, but admitted that he had received a dispatch from Boston. He also admitted that a young man had called upon him who was in need of financial assistance, and that he had given money to him. What his name was or what he wanted the money for Minister Palma would not state.

"Gentlemen," said he, becoming excited, "you surely can't expect me to tell you all that I know or may have heard. I have told you all that has come to my official knowledge, but about this filibustering business I know nothing. You don't want me to say I am a filibuster, do you? Well, I can't say any more. We have nothing to do with filibustering here.'

The World publishes a statement from Jose C. Hernandez in which he declares that six men were drowned while getting into the last two boats. He says the ves sel left the city at midnight on Saturday last, and that she sunk soon after those who escaped took to the boats.

Nothing can be learned of the whereabouts of the men who were landed by the Dalziel at Pier 40. Where they went to seems to be a mystery.

At 100 Broadway, where the Spanish party in New York has an office for the dissimination of news, it was said that they had no information concerning the filibustering expedition to give out, but that doubtless there would be an investigation, and that lively times might be

A WEEK'S NEWS CONDENSED CRIMES OF THE TURKS.

The Story Told in Reports of the Consular Delegates.

MASSACRES MUCH EXAGGERATED

While the Death List Is Smaller Than Reported, the Brutality of the Sultan's Soldiers and the Neglect of His Government Is Clearly Shown.

LONDON, Jan. 29 .- Blue books have been issued containing all of the official dispatches relative to Armenia between July 24, 1894, and Oct. 16, 1895, and the reports of the consular delegates attached to the Sassoun commission.

The report gives the history of the Armenian agitation for several years, and records the obstacles thrown in the way of the commission by the Turkish delegates. It also acquits the Armenians of the charge brought against them of burning their own property to incite an outbreak among their people, adding that the facts elicited failed to prove that the Armenians were in revolt, but show that the agitator Mu rad instigated several Armenian outrages on Kurds. The latter then retaliated and the Armenians fled to their villages. The conflict between the Armenians and Kurds followed, and the government did nothing to arrive at a peaceful settlement or to protect women and children.

The delegates are compelled to believe, the report says, that all the Armenians who fell into the hands of the soldiers, the Kurds or the Zaptiehs, were either killed or wounded, and that, with the exception of the eleven villagers of Talori, not a single prisoner was taken. The report shows that the number of killed has been grossly exaggerated, but admits that, owing to the absence of registration, it is impossible even approximately to fix the number of victims. There is appended, however, to the report a tabulated list of all the evidence tendered to the commission.

The six villages mentioned show a total of 265 victims, distributed as follows: Shenik, 114; Semal, 65; Chelleguzan (the scene of the story of the great pit which was filled to overflowing with massacred victims), 40; Agpi, 22; Spagank, 10; Talori, 14. These villages were all burned and the inhabitants were scattered.

The British delegate, Shipley, in a memorandum attached to the joint report, from the evidence gathered by Consul Hampson during his tour, estimates the total number of victims in the Sassoun district, including deaths from starvation, at about 900. One of the worst cases of cold blooded cruelty, Delegate Shipley says, was the murder of prisoners in the camp at Chelleguzan under a promise of a safe conduct. But the number of those so murdered was only forty or fifty, and not hundreds, as has been stated.

Delegate Shipley, while he admits that there was violation of women, asserts that the alleged wholesale butchery of women was not confirmed. He points out that while an agitation subversive of the Ottoman authority had existed amongst the Armenians in Turkey and abroad, and had exasperated the Turkish government. it must be admitted that the government had failed in its duty of affording protection to all classes of its subjects. He complains of the connection and suppression of evidence before the commission by Turkish officials as not calculated to advance the interests of the truth.

Mr. Shipley further declares that the Armenians were hunted like wild beasts, and if the slaughter was not greater it was solely owing to the vastness of the mountain ranges, which facilitated the escape of the Armenians. He was convinced that the Turks aimed at the complete extermination of the Armenians in the Chelleguzan and Talori districts.

Our Inadequate Coast Defenses.

Washington, Jan. 29.-Major General Nelson A Miles, before the committee on coast defenses yesterday, made a statement of the condition of the coast defenses on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and Gulf of Mexico. He stated that the guns now mounted at Savannah, Charleston and other ports are smooth bores of obsolete patterns and useless, and are mounted on rotten carriages. The only places where provision has been made for any considerable defense are New York, San Francisco and Boston, and defenses at these places are entirely inadequate and insufficient. He said that our cities are open to attack by any country having a large navy, and that it would take years to create the necessary armament. He estimated that the entire cost of coast de fenses for adequate protection of the country would be about $80,000,000 for fortifications and guns.

Cardiff, Wales. CARDIFF, Wales, Jan. 28 .- Yesterday the residents of the town and vicinity of Tylorstown, which is situated near here, were terrified by a terrific reverberation which shook the whole town and caused people to rush out of doors, wondering whether they were being overwhelmed by an earthquake. It was ascertained in a short time that the concussion was caused by an explosion in a neighboring colliery with disastrous consequences to life and property. The latest report places the number of dead at fifty-six.

The mining population of the locality rushed to the mouth of the pit, only to have their worst fears confirmed. The shaft was found to be entirely shattered, and it was evident that there was little hope that any of those in the pit could have survived the explosion. The despair of the women who flocked about the mouth of the pit was terrible.

The pit was found to have caught fire, and the hindrance that this caused to the work of the rescue parties added to the excitement and tension of feeling. It was only through braving the utmost peril that the living were able to prosecute their quest for the dead.

Those who have been engaged in the work of exploration and the few survivors who have been rescued cell terrible stories of the scenes they witnessed and the dead bodies they found or stumbled over, strewn in all directions as they fell overcome by fire damp or hurled by the force of the explosion.
