BARON DE HIRSCH DEAD.

The Noted Philanthropist Falls a Victim to Apoplexy.

HIS PRINCELY BENEFACTIONS.

For Years He Had Given Fortunes Annually in Charities, Mainly to People of His Own Persecuted Race-His Many Colonization Schemes.

VIENNA, April 22.-Baron Maurice de Hirsch, the great financier and philanthropist, died yesterday morning on his estate at Presburg, Hungary, from a stroke of

The millionaire railroad builder and philanthropist, Baron Maurice de Hirsch de Gereuth, was a native of Bavaria, and though it has usually been supposed that his colossal fortune was entirely made by himself, this is not so. Though, to be sure, the ampler means he inherited grew in his hands much faster than the accumulations of either his father or grandfather

The grandfather of the philanthropist at the close of the French revolution was an ordinary but prosperous shopkeeper in Wurzburg, that old Franconian city of Bayaria. Previous to the revolution Wurzburg and a considerable portion of Franconia was ruled by bishops who had the rank of princes. Napoleon changed all this, and many of the estates accumulated by monks and nuns were seized and sold. Among these was the Rottendorf property near Wurzburg. This was offered for sale, but no purchaser appeared, as many thought the title would not prove good, and others had religious scruples. So it went begging until Joseph Hirsch bought it for a song. It proved extremely valuable, as the purchaser acquired, besides the real estate and houses, almost priceless works of art and jewels. These he sold, and so began the Hirsch fortune.

His son, Joel Jacob, the father of the philanthropist, became a banker and also an extensive dealer in cattle. He became very rich, as fortunes were reckoned in the first half of the Nineteenth century. He was made a baron by the king of Ba-varia on account of his wealth and the extensive estates he owned as the heir of the

Some fifteen years ago Baron de Hirsch had completed this great work, and found himself at the aged of 45 with more money than he knew what to do with. He had no children to inherit his wealth, and he and his wife were of one mind as to what should be done. In his railway operations he had seen throughout the east how badly off the people were for schools. He therefore established educational and industrial schools in Egypt and in European and Asiatic Turkey. These he had since looked after and maintained. To the schools in Gallacia he gave $2,000,000. Years ago he saw the tendency to oppress the Jews in Russia, and he made an offer of $10,000,000 to the Russian government for schools, with the one proviso that no distinction should be made as to race or religion. This generous and munificent offer was refused by the Russian government, and shortly afterward began that active oppression which is driving the Hebrew peasants out of the czar's dominions and to the four quarters of the earth.

Larga though his fortune was, it was entirely inadequate to provide for all of these people. He therefore saw that he must enlist the assistance of other rich Hebrews in the cause. About this time he met in Constantinople a wealthy American Hebrew, Oscar S. Straus, then United States minister to Turkey. After many and long conferences it was decided that as many of these Russian refugees as could be provided with homes and made self supporting should be assisted to come to the United

But Baron de Hirsch learned from the reports of his agents and colleagues in the United States that it would be very easy to overdo the thing in bringing out Russian Hebrews. It would be unwise, they thought, for them to come faster than they could be prepared to support themselves. So the baron sent agents to South America and Mexico to negotiate for the purchase of large tracts of land. In the Argentine Republic negotiations were concluded and the government looked very favorably upon the colonization scheme But the people were bitterly opposed to it, and made such manifestations of angry hostility that the plan had to be aban-Then Mexico was settled upon, and President Diaz promptly gave his assurance of co-operation.

Since 1890 Baron de Hirsch's expenditures for charity had exceeded $15,000,000 a year. He had established offices in all the capitals of Europe on the system of charity organization societies. The committee in charge of these offices has authority to investigate each case of poverty presented.

The Hirsch fund for the assistance of the Russian Jews has a capital of ten millions. It is operated by a stock company known as the Jewish Colonization association, and is a limited liability company. The shares are $500 each, and all but ten were owned by Baron de Hirsch. The American branch of the Hirsch fund holds $2, 00,000 of the baron's money in trust. The income is $125,000 a year, and this is devoted to establishing colonies and educating the Russian Jews in republican principles and the ways of the country. One of the largest colonies is located at Wood-

The bell was lowered, and on the heated ore they saw the body of Dull burned to a crisp. The body was fished out and presented a horrible sight. Dull was 19 years

BETHLEHEM, Pa., April 22.-John Hasson, aged 23 years, was stabbed in the abdomen, on the South Side, by a drunken Hungarian. He is at the hospital and there is little hope of his recovery. The assault was unprovoked. Hasson's assailants, Anthony Hovart, who has been in this country only three weeks, and Tony Derrent, were arrested last evening at the funeral of a neighbor. An excited crowd followed them to Alderman Krauskopf's office, and there were loud threats of lynching. Both denied doing the stabbing, admitting, however, that they were in a fight with Hasson.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., April 21.-Because she refused to reveal the hiding place of her new born babe, Miss Annie Boatner, of Hickory Rifige, was nearly lynched by a crowd of infuriated women of that place yesterday. They placed a clothesline about her neck, but not until it was considerably tightened did she admit giving birth to a child. She then showed the women where she had buried the child on a lot, and made a confession of her crime. A number of men kept the women at bay, else they would most likely have lynched her. Miss Boatner is now lying in a critical condition in the poorhouse, and is under police surveillance pending an inquest by the coroner. HARRISBURG, April 22 .- The state Republican convention tomorrow will be a distinctively Quay gathering. The senator's friends will be chosen for all the offices to be filled, and the senator himself will be strongly indorsed for president. The opposition will be a hopeless minority in the convention, and at the meeting of the state committee. Its leaders will probably make no attempt to upset the plans of Senator Quay and his friends. There is no sentiment among any of the delegates or politicians now on the scene for Mc-Kinley. If, as has been asserted by his friends, there is a strong sentiment through the state for the Ohioan, it has not made itself felt here.

PHILADELPHIA, April 20 .- Fire on Saturday afternoon destroyed the old Pennsylvania railroad station, et Market and Thirty-second streets, and the immense car sheds in the rear. Seven Pullman cars and thirty day coaches were also destroyed. Two firemen were killed by falling walls and eight were injured, two of them, it is thought, fatally. A number of other fire men were overcome by the intense heat and had to be taken to the hospital. The loss will probably amount to $400,000. The dead are William Stalger, district ener, and Hugh McGranigan, of Hook and Ladder Company I. The most seriously injured are George R. Preston and Samuel Sneyd, who were buried under falling walls.

NINE SAILORS DROWNED.

Wreck of the Fishing Schooner Campbell Off Long Island.

NARROW ESCAPE OF SURVIVORS.

The Fatal Squall Which Sunk the Vessel Lasted Only a Minute, but in That Short Time Both Masts Were Snapped Off Close to the Deck.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., April 20.-Nine Gloucester fishermen were lost off Long Island on Friday night, when the fishing schooner J. W. Campbell, of Gloucester, was sunk in a squall. The seven survivors arrived here last night to tell the story. They were brought into port by the tug Gladiator, from the schooner Norman, which picked them up after they had spent an entire night and day in an open boat

The lost are Captain Robert Smith, John McGuire, Frank Sylvia, Thomas Rogers, George Ela, William McAllister, Abel McCormy, George Graham and Charles Doherty, all of Gloucester.

The sinking of the Campbell was remarkable in several respects. The fatal squall was one of the most sudden and terrific in the memory of the surviving seamen. It was all over in about a minute. It happened so quickly and there was so little warning that there was no time to avert calamity or provide for escape. As it was, it seems remarkable that there was a single survivor. The escape seemed but a trick of fate. When the squall struck her the vessel areened under the terrible blow, and all realized that their lives were in danger. Seven of the sixteen sailors quickly clambered up the masts. No sooner had they done so than a second and far more powerful gust of wind seized the craft and emed to lift it bodily out of the sea. Then, as if in a mighty grasp, the vessel was wrenched and given a sudden twist with such violence that the masts snapped off even with the deck, like toothpicks, and were hurled far away from the reach of the vortex made by the ship as she fell back into the water and sank like a piece

This is the story as told by the survivors. They left New York at 8 o'clock Friday night, and the squall struckthem soon afterwards. There was not the slightest warning. The wind was blowing only about two knots and everything seemed

After the sqaull subsided the moon come out and by its light the seven survivors, were able to find a dory, into which they climbed, after bailing it out. All night long and all the next day they drifted helplessly about Long Island sound without food or water. Then they were picked up by the schooner Norman and later were transferred to the tug Gladiator, which brought them to this ous, and as yesterday was pay day, the Gladiator, which brought them to this supposition is that he was held up and port. They lost everything except the LONDON, April 21.-The British bark Firth, of Solway, bound for Duneden, was sunk by a collision with the British steamer Marsden, of Greenock, near Kirk Lightship, off the coast of Ireland. The bark went down almost immediately, and the captain's wife and child and thirteen of the crew were drowned. " The captain and eight sailors were saved. The Marsden's bows were badly stove.

Death of M. Leon Say.

PARIS, April 22 .- Leon Say, the distinguished political economist, died yesterday, aged 70 Jean Baptiste Leon Say was no table chiefly because he combined statesmanship of a high order with literary ability of the first class. He was the foremost financier of France for the past generation, and it was owing to the confidence in his judgment on monetary matters and affairs of revenue and taxation that he was chosen president of the international monetary conference held at Paris in 1878. He has held many public offices, including the presidency of the senate, ambassador to England and minister of finance.

No News of Nansen.

St. Petersburg, April 20.—The police have a report from Ust Yansk, northern Siberia, that nothing is known there of Dr. Nansen. Ust Yansk is the point east of the Lena Delta from which was dated the first report by Kushnarff, contractor fer Nansen, that the explorer had reached the pole and was returning.
