A Curious Railroad Contract.

The Great Western railroad of England has just had to pay $500,000 to free itself from the obligation to stop every train at Swindon station for ten minutes. In 1841, before the road had eached Bristol, it made an agreement for 99 years with a firm of builders to hold every train carrying passengers, "not being sent express or for special purposes, for a reasonable period of about ten minutes," at Swindon, in consideration of the erection of suitable refreshment rooms, for which a rent of a penny a year was to be paid. The railroad soon found out the inconvenience of the arrangement and tried to break it. The courts in 1846 and in 1872 held that "express" did not mean in the contract what is now meant by an express train, but the price asked for the annulment of the concession was always more than the company was willing to pay. After a fight of over 50 years it has been driven by the competition of other roads to buy out its opponents, and the ten minute stop of fast expresses at Swindon is now a thing of the past .-New Haven Journal and Courier.

The Greatest Canal. The largest canal in the world is contemplated by the Russians. This is to be a continuous waterway of 1,000 miles, connecting the Baltic with the Black sea, and the cost would only be a little item of £20,000,000. It would start from the port of Riga, in the Baltic, and use the rivers Dwina, Beresina and Dnieper on its route, entering the Black sea at the Crimean port of Cherson. It is a project by which a merchant ship going at only six knots an hour would do the whole journey in a week, at a tremendous saving of time and fuel. In a flat country like Russia there seems no real difficulty in the enterprise, except the eternal want of rubles, from which the government suf-

THE CRISIS IN FRANCE.

Bourgeois Ministry.

THE CHAMBER AGAIN CONVOKED.

The Premier, Instead of at Once Resigning ear's Credits, Determines That the Two Legislative Bodies Shall Fight It Out.

PARIS, April 22 .- In spite of the protests of the premier, M. Bourgeois, the senate yesterday adopted a motion to postpone the vote on the Madagascar credits until a cabinet is formed which enjoys the confidence of both chambers. An official note has been issued explaining the attitude of the cabinet in face of the crisis precipitated by the senate. The note says:

The cabinet holds that, in face of the senate's vote, it is impossible to continue the direction of affairs. But it considers that it ought not to resign in the absence of the chamber. Therefore the chamber should be convoked without delay to enable the ministers to impart to them the reason for their decisions. M. Bourgeois has acquainted President Faure with this resolution, and has also requested M. Brisson, president of the chamber of deputies, to convoke the chamber forthwith. Brisson has accordingly telegraphed to the deputies to meet on Thursday at 2 o'clock.

The news of the resolution of the cabinet to convoke the chamber was circulated last evening. The chamber would not meet in the regular order of things until

The refusal of the senate to grant the Madagascar credits to the Bourgeois cabinet is regarded as a well devised tactical move against the cabinet in the conflict between the two branches of the government, which involves the French constitution itself. It was believed that the cabinet would feel itself driven into a corner was expected that this would occur today. The cabinet's reply in summoning the chamber seems the best that could be made to the senate's move, and virtually refers the conflict to the chamber, which has twice refused to concur in a vote of censure of the cabinet passed by the senate. If the newly summoned chamber persists In this attitude a constitutional crisis would be threatened.

It is believed that the cabinet has been convinced for some time past that it must relinquish office, but has been maneuvering for advantage of position for its appearance before the country. The real conflict is between the Conservative element in politics, represented by the senate, and the Radical and Socialistic elements represented in the Bourgeois cabinet, which seek constitutional changes looking to the control of the senate itself, and the doing away with its obstruction to the radical program in France. The present cabinet's income tax measure is a main feature of that program, uncompromisingly opposed by the senate. The latter body has adroitly evaded making an issue with the cabinet on the income tax measure, and has apparently concluded that the withholding of the credits for the government's Madagascar program, which has proved unpopular in France, provides a nominal ground for the conflict more likely to appeal to the people. It is believed that the government intends to provoke a vote of confidence by the chamber again. Such a vote would transform the senate's hostility to the ing and such like occasions." cabinet into a conflict between the senate ty, by Pittsburg capitalists, who have and the chamber and would oblige the senate to find some mode of surmounting similar opposition in the future.

Some Curious Information on the Subject

From a Famous Doctor. A correspondent has been interview-Another Attempt to Force Out the ing Dr. Robert Fischer of Vienna, who is well known as an expert in all that periains to cosmetics, and has obtained from him some curious information.

"When is your regular season, doctor?" the correspondent asked.

Well, you see, I have a twofold seaon the Senate's Postponing the Madagas- son-the social and the individual. The former is the ball and party season. The latter depends upon the betrothal or marriage of individuals, and may coincide with any period of the year."

"Marriage?" the correspondent asked in surprise.

Quite so - marriage. Numbers of mothers put their daughters through a whole course of beautification previous to launching them out in that sea of trouble. That's the time when the most elaborate preparations of the human frame are ordered and undertaken. I have a great deal more to do then than for the most fashionable balls of the

Dr. Fischer went on to say: "I am asked perhaps to remove the rubicund tint from the tip of a Grecian nose where no amount of exuberant fancy will explain its presence as the result of a modest habit of blushing. I perform the operation without pain or difficulty, insisting upon a term of eight days, but then I do it thoroughly and once for all, and never again will the nose blush unless the rest of the face first gives the

'The one taste which may be said to be universal in Vienna is a liking for blond hair. It would seem to be innate, like mischief and coquetry. Viennese hair dyes are therefore mostly destined to impart a rich golden color to the flowing tresses that are usually brown or black. Have I thus metamor. phosed many dark beauties into blonds? A Couple of Coincidences.

Some little time ago I heard of an occurrence that took place at Broadway and Chambers street on a cable car, and incidentally it was stated that no one saw it because there was no other vehicle on the block. As this was in the middle of the afternoon it seemed incredible till I tested it personally. Twice I have seen that very condition of things right there, once on the block below Chambers and once on the block above, and again on the heavily traveled block between John and Fulton, and yesterday morning at 10 o'clock there was a similar vacuum of vehicles on the block between Cortlandt and Liberty. Below and above, Broadway was full enough of wagons going both ways. It reminded me of the passageway for the Israelites through the Red sea. New York is full of such things if only one happens or is idle enough to observe them. On a priori reasoning, or principles of average, the odds apparently would be millions to one against such an event. Yet I have seen it four times within a short period. Some might say here that the man who looks for such things is the only man who finds them. Let me set against this another experience of mine to the contrary. For something over six years I have looked at the number of every railway car I passed, trying to hit one whose number was an even thousand. I have never hit it yet. Once, on the Lehigh Valley road, I thought I had. I bers began at 1980 and ran up in regular order, and I fairly trembled with the joy of fruition that only a crank knows. There were just 20 of them, and the last number was 1999!

The most aggravating circumstance of all was that a friend of mine to whom I told my quest in 1892 on my way to the City of Mexico came galloping through the train inside of an hour to tell me he had just seen an even thousand car as we pulled out of San Luis Potosi, and I was looking out on the other side of the train! I have never forgiven that fellow to this day.-New York Sun.

Uses of Compressed Air.

Quietly but steadily a new rival to steam is coming into popular favor. It is compressed air. The claim is made for it indeed that it will do anything steam will. It certainly can be made to propel street cars. The thing has been done, but whether it is commercially feasible has not yet been sufficiently tested. If practicable, then, the compressed air car will in time supplant the electric and grip cable car, and there will be no slot, no trolley wires, nothing but steel tanks of compressed air, which will discharge their contents in a steady breeze upon the car wheels and make them spin around.

There are machine shops already in which every particle of power comes from this force. Leather belts and shafting are dispensed with. The air is conveyed in pipes from one floor to another and to every machine. By the aid of piston, valve, treadle and cutoff the power is regulated so that it can be made to work even a chisel in stone cutting. At the World's fair the buildings which have passed into history under the name of the White City were all painted by compressed air. The air first drove the paint through pipes to the place where it was wanted, then sprayed it evenly over the wood with inconceivable rapidity. Corrugated roofs and iron plates for bridges and buildings are painted in the same way. Holes in large rocks are drilled by the atmospheric

One of the most notable uses to which this power has been applied is the sweeping and dusting of cars and car furniture after a long railway trip. The air is conveyed through those pipes exactly as water is. When opposite a dusty cushion or window casing the nozzle is opened and a terrific blast of wind released, which blows the dust off smooth and clean. In Paris, where this agent is coming commonly into use, it is supplied through pipes under the streets, like gas, and sold to factories. It would be an admirable agent for cooling and changing the air in American houses in hot weather.

ALBINO HUCKLEBERRIES.

A Curious Fruit Said to Be Peculiar to the State of Wooden Nutmegs.

Farmer F. B. Crandall of Bozrab, six miles west of this city, came to town recently with five quarts of albino huckleberries, which he readily sold for a round price to merchants and others who fancy freaks of nature. Mr. Crandall's fruit was the finest sample of white huckleberries ever seen in Norwich. The berries were all large, hard, firm of texture, sweet and luscious and about as white as milk. Albino berries are extremely rare-in fact, "about as skeerce as hens' teeth," said Mr. Crandall, after he had pocketed 20 cents a box for some of the fruit.

There are not more than half a dozen places in Connecticut, probably, where they grow, and it is not known that they grow in any other state. There is a patch of albino bearing bushes in the hilly town of Salem, which adjoins Bozrah; another in Hartford county, a third in Windham county, and there are two or three more in different parts of the state. The Salem albinos cluster about the apex of a wind swept, treeless knoll in the middle of a heavy wood, and the whole plot is not more than 15 or 20 feet in diameter. By many persons it is believed that the berries are not albinos, but a distinct species of whortleberries, since they never mix or amalgamate with the common black huckleberry. Neither are they greatly disposed to propagate themselves or spread on new ground. All the widely separated plots are of about the same dimensions, while in the case of the Salem patch it is known to be of just about the same size now as 100 years ago. In most respects the albinos differ not at all from the black berries except in color, although some country people affirm that when fully ripe they are a trifle sweetspied a row of brand new coal cars just | er, with a more decided flavor. Like all out of the shop on a switch. The num- albinos, whether of the animal or vegetable world, they are irradiated with a faint pink hue, seemingly from a light glowing within the rind, which is as beautiful as it is curious. Most of the albino patches yield not more than a quart of berries each .- Norwich (Conn.) Letter in New York Sun.
