—John S. Waite, of this place, has leased the armory in Lock Haven for the purpose of conducting a bicycle riding academy there.

—Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Garman expect to move to the Hamilton residence, on Allegheny street, recently vacated by Supt. Thomas.

—James C. Williams, Esq., of Philipsburg, was in Bellefonte on Tuesday. He bears his age well and is quite active.

—Samuel B. Wieland, wife and children, of Williamsport, spent several days in Bellefonte last week, returning home Monday morning.

—Gotlieb Haag has greatly improved the appearance of his hotel property on Bishop street, by putting down a substantial pavement and curbing.

—D. F. Fortney, Esq., delivered the memorial address, at Stormstown, on Saturday. As usual, he acquitted himself in fine style.

—Mr. J. H. Griffin, one of Stormstown's prominent citizens transacted business in Bellefonte, and found time to call and jolly the editor and advance his subscription.

—Rev. G. S. Bright, who has been called to the pastorate of Lutheran church Philipsburg, has accepted the call and will it is expected, enter upon his duties there the second Sabbath in June.

—The train from State College, on Sunday, was well filled with people enroute to hear the services in the Tabernacle on Sunday afternoon. Many came by private conveyances from all sections of the county.

—Rev. Wheeler, the Seventh Day Adventist minister, who was in Bellefonte some time ago and organized a congregation, returned recently and is conducting a series of meetings in the old church building, on High street.

—The memorial services at Milesburg this year were above the average. Over six hundred were in line, from the various associations and orders. Al Dale, Esq., of Bellefonte, was the orator of the day and delivered a very fine address, which was appreciated by the large gathering.

—Mrs. Hastings came to Bellefonte to arrange for the occupancy of the family residence during the summer. The governor's horses will be up next week. Governor and Mrs. Hastings will remain at the executive mansion until after their return from the national Republican convention. The gubernatorial party will start a week from Friday for St. Louis.

—On Tuesday afternoon the contractor began sliding the Humes stone building. It was first raised about two feet and will be moved back about twenty. It is securely blocked and will be slid back on heavy timbers, planned smooth and oiled. The power is applied by a large number of jacks operated by men. The work progresses slowly, but systematically. It is quite an undertaking and attracts attention.

—The graduating exercises of the Bellefonte High School were largely attended last Thursday. In the evening Supt. Schaffer's address was the principal feature. He clearly and in a forcible manner demonstrated the advantages of higher education in our public schools. Mr. Fortney made some practical remarks in this direction—and especially that the parents do not appreciate the opportunities they have to educate their children. The graduating class should have contained twice as many.

—H. A. McKee, the hardware merchant, on Allegheny street, has vacated the building he occupied for some years and is located in the office on High street, opposite the court house, next to Achenbach's jewelry store. He has stored the unsold portion of his stock in that room. He expects to devote his attention for a time to settling up accounts. Mr. McKee is a member of the legal profession, and we would not be surprised to see him take up the practice of law in the future.

A Bad Face.

If we were to say that our present Register, G. W. Rumberger, had a bad face, the wrong interpretation might be taken from it. He has a bad face, but that does not necessarily imply that he is a bad man, with a bad disposition or anything of the kind. That would be wrong to make such an inference. Nevertheless he has a very bad face on him. It looks as though he had run into the front of the St. Louis cyclone, but that is not the fact.

On Saturday morning, our good friend decided to take a spin on a cycle, out the turnpike, to invigorate his digestive apparatus. All went well, but did not end well. During the course of his journey the road bed came up, and for a while he moved along on his face to the great detriment of the turnpike, and also his face. You should see that face—it is a dandy. It is lacerated, cut, scratched, swollen and black and blue—as a caricature it would grace the pages of a comic almanac. If he only knew,—he could make a fortune by having it copyrighted and privileges sold to patent medicine firms. Oh, but it is an awful face! One would hardly think that such a noble countenance could be so disfigured, even his lady friends deign to look upon him. He is not wearing a false face either, it is his actual everyday face, only deranged.

That face will be alright in the course of week, by the patient application of arnica and liniments. We sympathize with him in his facial misfortune. Moral—Don't travel on your face. George.

Suicide at Rock Springs.

Arthur O. Goheen, of Tyrone, who had been spending several months past at the home of his father, J. J. Goheen, at Rock Springs, Centre county, in the hope of recovering from the effects of recent serious illness, committed suicide shortly after the noon hour last Thursday by shooting himself.

Arthur Goheen was a strong and healthy young man until last fall, when he had a severe and lingering attack of pneumonia, which left him with health shattered, his heart being very seriously affected. Recovery was progressing very slowly, and it was in the hope of a more speedy return to health that he went, with his wife and babe, to the old homestead at Rock Springs some time ago. His continued ill health had caused him to become despondent and it was undoubtedly his despondency over this that led him to the act which proved fatal.

To be a Missionary.

Evan Goodfellow, of Bellefonte, departed Monday for Philadelphia, from which place he will start in a few days for Santo Carlo, Central America. He goes there under the direction of the Philadelphia Bible Institute and will do missionary work in that territory. Evan has been studying for this kind of work for some time and is now fitted to take charge of the field.

SUSPENDED THE PASTOR.

Charges of Four Girls in His Flock Were Sustained.

The Ecclesiastical Court, trying the case against Rev. J. F. Kerlin, pastor of the South Williamsport Methodist church, who is charged by four girl members of his congregation with immoral conduct, Saturday found that the evidence sustained the charges. Rev. Kerlin has been suspended, pending further trial at the Central Conference. The accusations made by the girls were highly sensational. One of the young ladies testified that upon one occasion, when she visited the parsonage, Rev. Kerlin locked the door of the room, embraced her fondly and became far too familiar. Another girl said that the preacher advised her to get married in order to improve her complexion. Still another testified that Rev. Kerlin offered to pay her way to the Christian Endeavor convention at Huntington; then they would meet at Altoona and "see the sights." Rev. Kerlin's friends contend that he is a victim of unfortunate circumstances and that he will ultimately be able to prove his innocence.
