Try it.

Try pruning the May and early June roses that have about finished blooming. After giving them a good mulch to induce new growth and pruning sharply you will be very likely to rejoice in the fall over a second crop of roses. This rule, of course, does not apply to the climbers, which bloom on the old wood, and should not be pruned at all, except to train as desired.

A BATTLE WITH HYENAS.

Keeper's Frightful Experience with Four Sav-

Legal Intelligence Gathered from Various age Brutes. Harlo Northrup, in charge of the cage of hyenas in the Barnum & Bailey show, Saturday morning at Bridgeport, Conn., exhibited great nerve' in whipping into submission four of those savage brutes, To Samuel G. Rider, upon the estate of in the presence of a great crowd during

From the time the parade left the circus grounds the animals were restless, and Northrup kept a close watch on them. At the corner of Main and State streets the largest of the four hyenas sprang at Northrup. He was on the watch for such a move, and stepped aside and dealt the animal a hard blow on the head with the loaded whip which he held John I. Thompson et ux, to Maggie M. in his hand. The brute retreated to the corner, but another took advantage of the situation and attempted to pass be-Henry Sage et al, to Jane C. Breese; hind Northrup. Again the heavy whip for right title and interest in property in fell, and blow after blow was dealt on the head of the hyena until he retreated to his corner.

THE SITUATION WAS PERILOUS.

The two other animals in the cage became restless and started to walk up and and the rigid law. down the cage. The first to receive the blow from the whip, still smarting under the sting, got up from the corner, and then all four started to run around the cage. "Give them the whip," "Get out of the cage" and all sorts of advice was given by the spectators. One of the brutes was covered with blood from the wounds inflicted by the heavy whip Northrup used, and the keeper, too, was stained with blood.

THE HYENAS DOWNED HIM.

At last the four animals made a con certed rush toward Nortrhup, and he was knocked to the floor of the cage; not, C. R. When the four brutes had surrendered, and were docile again, and Northrup had again taken his seat in the end of the cage, the crowd that had watched the affiair gave him a round of

Fire at Potters Mills.

The large tannery owned and operated by Mr. J. W. Smith, at Potters Mills, was totally destroyed by fire about two o'clock last Thursday morning.

The tannery was in operation the day before and the engine was running the bark milf. When closed down in the evening Mr. Smith made his customary inspection and everything appeared all right when he left. The buildings were large and covered about eighty feet square. The tannery is situated along the bank of the creek and is near Alli-son's woolen factory. When the fire was first discovered and the alarm given, the building was a mass of flames and it was impossible to save any of the contents. It burned rapidly, being a frame building, and was soon down to the ground.

The tannery was heavily stocked with hides and finished leather, which is a total loss. At one time it was thought the fire would communicate to the Allison residence, but the wind fortunately turned and the danger was averted.

Mr. Smith's loss will be about $5,000, on which he has an insurance of $3,800 No reason can be assigned as to origin of the fire. Insured in a cash company.

Died From Scalds.

Helen, the young daughter of Mrs. Clayton Duck, of Madisonburg, aged about twenty months, died on Tuesday forenoon, from the effect of being scalded. About a week ago the little girl, during the mother's temporary absence from the room, reached up on the table, on the edge of which a tin cup full of hot water had been left standing, and the contents were spilled over the child's face and chest before the grandmother, who entered the room at the time, could prevent it. The injuries were at first not thought to be serious, but the case soon took a turn for the worse, and the little girl's sufferings was finally ended by

COMING OF THE GRECIAN WAIST.

Fashions to Follow the Lines of the Venus de Milo and the Diana.

Now Fashion comes along, and from her reorganized seat of authority, Paris, has been issued the edict that she was mistaken when she counseled a wasp's waist for women, and that, in reality, it is a hideous thing, and no longer to be countenanced by women who follow her laws. Hence all the French dressmakers are discountenancing the slender waist. Fragility in that respect is to be rigidly avoided, they say, and the really lovely lines of Fashion's waist are those of the Venus de Milo, and of the Eallas, and of the Diana. The Greek women must now be taken as examples and followed. Those women had waists of perfect beauty, these modern clothiers of women of the future waist must be upon the Greek model. The beauty and the grace of the lines of the ancient women of Greece are now in the minds of all the Parisian women, and the reform has not started in any lukewarm fashion, but has suddenly become the watchword

And so what writers, doctors and specialists without number have been unable to do, Dame Fashion with one edict has accomplished. Without stopping to dissect the folly or wisdom of the source from which spring the surest reforms in such matter as this, women and men Wm. Shortlidge Exr., to Harry E. the action of the keeper, and thronged may well congratulate themselves that how it happened or whence it came.
