APPLES PLENTY.—The farmers are busy husking corn, and gathering their winter apples, which are a drug this year. Can't sell them at any price.

RATHER EARLY.—There are only about five applicants on the republican side for the postoffice here. Don't make yourself any trouble or bother, as Bryan will be our President, and he will surely not give it to a gold bug.

Howard Rossman and John Smith are among the number that went to Johnstown to attend the Firemen's convention. They are jovial fellows, and good democrats.

TURN OUT.—Next Friday evening, there will be a Democratic meeting, at Decker school house. All turn out to hear the discussion of free coinage of silver, and no fifty-three cents dollars.

The Lewisburg Fair was poorly attended from this section on account of rain.

GO SLOW.—A prominent married man, from Millroy, was flying his kite with a young lady from this town. They were to Bellefonte together, look out for them the next time.

G. P. Ream made a business trip to Rebersburg last Friday.

No one from our section took advantage of the excursion to Canton, to see the man who was nominated for President by the corporations, trusts, monopolies and money sharks.

A GOOD TICKET.—The man who cannot support the county ticket, as it appears in the "Democrat" on account of principle, throws away whole chunks of consistency when he supports the opposition ticket. Some men are extremely perpendicular in a political way, that they lean over the line just a little, but they don't know it. Our county ticket is good enough to be supported by every Democrat, and the beauty of it lies in the fact that every man on the ticket will be elected!

DON'T SUIT THEM.—Sample copies of a new-would-be-sound money paper, edited in this county, made its appearance here on Friday. It was certainly a great write up. Evidently it was written on a rainy day after the gale. Probably an aggravated case of "Shyster Politics."

A Hustler

That is the kind of a man who succeeds in business in these days of close profits and strong competition. The hustler gets a move on, lets the public know what he is doing. He pushes his business instead of his unpaid bills and bad accounts pushing him. The hustler lets the public know what he has in market; he invites trade. He does it to the best advantage by an intelligent and judicious use of space in a newspaper. It costs money to advertise. Yes indeed, but that attracts attention, brings new customers and increases your trade ultimately. The success in advertising consists in keeping "everlastingly at it." Printers ink made John Wanamaker a millionaire, and he does more and more advertising each year. He seems to understand the business. Do you grasp the idea? 1500 copies of the Centre Democrat are printed each week. These reach at least 4000 readers in Centre county every week. It goes right to the homes—is a family paper. Don't you think you could increase your business by an advertisement in its columns. Argument is useless. Get a hustle on, increase your business, advertise in the Centre Democrat.
