EDITORIAL

WHAT will be the result of the contest? Ask some one that knows.

SINCE McKinley was elected everybody seems to be in the confidence business.

THE contest is going on and the county must pay all bills. All for poor Abe Miller.

MARK HANNA seems to be one of the biggest men in the republican party—dispenser of patronage.

WITH congress in session and the legislature at Harrisburg stirring up trouble, the public have occasion for alarm.

WITH a fair contest, a fair count and a fair court, no one should be uneasy. It remains to be seen whether all these are at hand.

THERE were 1075 births and 434 deaths in Centre county last year. According to that our population is rapidly on the increase.

UNCLE Sam and John Bull have clasped hands and pledged to settle all future differences by arbitration. That is a step forward by the two leading civilized nations.

It is real amusing to hear of Quay and then Wanamaker posing as a great political reformer—rather political rooster. Both are trying to play upon the credulity of the public in order to gain political prestige.

JOHN WANAMAKER is now posing as a political reformer. It was only in 1888 that Holy John Wanamaker raised a corruption fund of $400,000 to elect Harrisson. John is anything to suit the occasion.

THE return of prosperity since McKinley's election is something remarkable. Banks are busting real lively; employment is hard to get; factories are not running as was promised. Campaign pledges are often made to capture votes.

THE war in Cuba is still progressing and the Spanish forces have accomplished nothing thus far. The death of Macco has only spurred the insurgents on in their determination to avenge his death. The Cubans are hopeful, bold and defiant. Every day the war progresses the Spanish exchequer is being reduced and bankruptcy is now staring them in the face. Spain cannot long endure the strain of an expensive war.

WE most heartily commend Gov. Hastings, position in refusing to send the entire state troops to the McKinley inauguration. The expense of such a demonstration is immense. It is not necessary or essential and if that amount of money is diverted into some more useful channel the public generally will applaud the executive course. Economy in public affairs is needed. As a people we are too extravagant and public funds are often squandered in a way that no return is received.

HARRISBURG LEVEE.

The Making of Legislative Committees Now in Order.

THE AMENDED GRANGER TAX BILL

It will be Presented Early in the Session, Together with the Report of the State Tax Conference—Senator Penrose Not Yet Ready to Resign.

(Special Correspondence.) HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 11. Having settled the momentous struggle over Senator Cameron's seat the legislature has taken a recess until the eve of the election of his successor. This long recess was for two purposes—first, to allow the bitterness between the factions in this contest to subside, and secondly to give Speaker Boyer an opportunity to make up the most difficult tasks which falls to a presiding officer. He must consider the qualifications of the members as well as the geographical claims of the different delegations in order to prevent friction in the work of the assembly. It is understood the old members will be given the committee places which they held last session unless they are disposed to serve on other committees. As to chairmanships, there will probably be some contention.

Among the most important chairmanships of the last session which are likely to be held by the same legislators this winter are those of the committee on appropriations, of which Mr. Marshall of Allegheny was the head; railroads, Mr. Lytle of Huntingdon, chairman; street railways, Mr. Keyser of Philadelphia, chairman. The committee on ways and means, to which will be referred the different revenue bills that are likely to be introduced, had an able chairman last session in Frank Ritter, the present director of public safety in Philadelphia. He devoted much time to the preparation of the granger tax bill, which has been undergoing a practical test, under a resolution of the last house, in the auditor general's department. This bill will be returned with some changes and the report of the state tax conference on the practical operation of the bill will be submitted at the same time in order that the members may get a full understanding of the measure. Many of the former legislators insist that this bill will give them the relief for which they pray, and that it will tend to equalize taxation. They assert with much emphasis that the opposition to the bill comes from those channels that are naturally opposed to any change in the present law.

The Ways and Means Chairmanship.

Mr. Ritter's place as chairman of the committee would have been taken in all probability by Representative Pennwell, of Philadelphia, had he not declined to serve as a member of the house. He preferred the position of chief deputy in the senate to that of Philadelphia to a seat in the house. Speaker Boyer will find it difficult in getting a chairman who will be able to understand the intricacies of tax legislation. It is reported that Representative Cortlandt K. Bolles, of Philadelphia, can have this chairmanship if he desires it, but he told me the other day that he did not care to assume the responsibilities of so arduous a chairmanship. No other name has been publicly suggested in connection with this committee.

The senatorial contest has left many sore spots in the senate and house, and the probability is that the approaching session will be enlivened by many tilts between those who are regarded as the leading factions. In the senate, Senators Magee, Flinn and Kaufman are the leaders of the anti-Quay forces, while in the house of representative Voorhees of Philadelphia, Focht of Union, Nesbit of Northumberland, Bliss of Delaware and Young of Tioga and a few others will take command. It is very certain that many bills will fall under the veto ax unless the governor changes his mind. The large appropriation for the expenses of the senate committee which has been investigating the municipal affairs of Philadelphia is one of the bills that is most sure to meet with his disapproval. Those who are close to him say that he will never sign such a bill, because he could not consistently do so after having disapproved in the first place of the creation of the committee.

Seenes at the Capitol.

The scenes at the capitol when the legislature organized were interesting. In the remodelled hall of the house of representatives were many beautiful flowers, and the galleries and unoccupied spaces in the rear of the desks were crowded with people. Similar scenes were enacted in the senate chamber. It was expected that there would be some sensational developments at the organization of the house, but everything passed off in a remarkably harmonious way. It was reported that certain members would, when they presented themselves at the bar of the house for the purpose of being qualified, be challenged on account of alleged bribery and other offenses which make them incompetent to take the oath. It appears, however, that both sides in the senatorial fight were tired of the processes of the law, and abandoned all suits before the hour for organization.

Also.

The campaign of 1897 is bound to be one of more than usual interest and excitement. Three or four counties have already elected delegates to the next state convention, which will nominate candidates to succeed State Treasurer Haywood and Auditor General Miller. During the spring the remaining counties of the state will select their delegates, and in these preliminary fights the lines will be closely drawn between the Quay and the anti-Quay forces, so that the next state convention will determine pretty clearly whether the organization of the Republican party in Pennsylvania is to continue in the hands of Senator Quay. Senator McCarrill, as president pro tem. of the senate, and H. K. Boyer, of Philadelphia, as speaker of the house, made striking speeches on being elected to the chairs of the two branches. Both made reference to the need of legislation for the various cities of the commonwealth. These speeches are understood to have special significance on account of the reform bills which Senators

Quay has had prepared for introduction at this session. These bills are intended to do away with money in politics and the unfair control of elections by the use of patronage and interference of officeholders; in short, to bring about a sort of municipal millennium.

Many Applicants for Places.

In view of the long recess and the contingencies that might arise after the election of the United States senator, the senate committee of the senate and house did not make a report before the adjournment. They will meet during the recess and decide who shall occupy the various clerks and subordinate positions on both sides of the capitol. There's a small army of applicants, and these committees will not have an easy time of it in determining the claims of the various county delegations. Such a demand for positions has not been known for several years, and the committees have determined to appropriate funds throughout the state as fairly as possible.

A great mass of bills will be precipitated on the luckless legislature after the recess. Among the measures to be introduced are several amendments to the Brooks high license law, which is alleged to have operated unfairly in different cities of the state. The State Liquor league has its representatives here, and they will insist that some changes shall be made so as to wipe out inequalities about which they complain. They are especially desirous of having some stringent provisions inserted, either in the Brooks law or in a new law, against the unlicensed clubs, which they contend are scarcely more than speak easies. They declare that the liquor seller is at the mercy of these places, inasmuch as the dealer is compelled to pay a high license and receives no protection, while the association known as a club sells its liquor without a fee and without danger of the minions of the law interfering. They say with some force that clubs and associations of this character should be compelled to take out a license the same as a hotel proprietor and saloonkeeper. It is reported that the Massachusetts law, which is a very radical measure, and the Rines law, now in operation in New York, will both be presented in some form, and as a result a compromise measure will be agreed upon.

Another bill which is to be introduced is one against the wearing of high hats in the streets. Lieutenant Governor Lyon has been asked by a ladies' club of Pittsburgh to prepare this bill, and it will be pushed along by the women who are interested in its passage. Such a bill will probably have little opposition, inasmuch as there is a demand for it all over the state.

Several road bills have been framed, and a dozen bills of legislation affecting primary elections are also in process of incubation. Every member of the legislature has a bill or two in his possession, and after the recess the deluge will commence.

A Great Mass of New Bills.

From session to session one wonders what necessity there is for so much legislation, but at each recurring meeting of the legislature a great mass of bills containing the role in honor established, and unless the people call a halt it will be difficult for even the lawyers to determine the rights of the citizen or corporation. A lot of bills are passed at every session, many of them useless, and notwithstanding the pruning of the governor there is much unnecessary loading of the statute books of the commonwealth. If it would be possible for the legislature to meet in January, pass the appropriation bills that are necessary, make such changes in the laws as may seem for the best interests of the people, and adjourn, everybody would be better satisfied, but this seems out of the question under present political conditions.

Governor Hastings has decided views about the participation of the National Guard in the ceremonies incident to the inauguration of the president-elect at Washington. He has opposed the participation of the entire National Guard at the inauguration because of the expense and the inconvenience to the officers and men. He does not think that the men ought to be asked to assist themselves, and he would be better satisfied, and will not agree to involve the state in any expense for the transportation of the troops. Notwithstanding the position of the governor, a large per cent of the guard desires to attend the inauguration, and the probability is that the division will march on Pennsylvania avenue as in the past.

Attorney General McCormick has given a very emphatic opinion in the matter of the objections to the consolidation of the Reading Railway and Coal companies under the National charter of the old National company. He finds that the commonwealth cannot interfere, because the charter of the National company, which was purchased by the Reading, authorized it to do the business in which it was engaged, prior to the adoption of the new constitution. He says, in conclusion: "The wisdom of the framers of the constitution of '74 in denying to the legislature the power to grant special charters becomes apparent in the consideration of the manifold powers granted by the charter of the Reading Railway and Coal companies to the National company, and the only consolidation of the present generation is that they are not responsible therefor."

Lively Contest Over a Clerkship.

There was a lively contest in the senate between Senator Saylor, of Montgomery, and Senator Meredith, of Armstrong, over the reading clerkship. Senator Saylor, being a member of the state committee, has landed his man, L. M. Kelly, and Senator Meredith has been satisfied by the making of his candidate, Ex-Representative Cochran, of Armstrong, the clerk of the present pro tem.

Senator Penrose, who is sure to be elected United States senator on the re-assembly of the legislature will probably retain his seat until the end of the present legislative session, unless a special session of congress should be called, in which event he will resign his seat about March 4 and go to Washington. There are several precedents for this proposed action, and Senator Quay is understood to be desirous of having Senator Penrose remain here in charge of the reform bills, in which he is interested, as long as possible.

Senator Quay has invited several state officials to accompany him to St. Lucie retreat in Florida, after Senator Penrose has been elected. He will spend some time in Florida. The electoral college of Pennsylvania met at the capitol today to cast the state's vote for Major McKinley for president. This is a perfunctory performance. About two hours were consumed in the computation of the vote and the signing of the certificates, which are forwarded to Washington.

There is some talk here to the effect that Senator Cameron retires from the senate in March he will be tendered a first class foreign mission. He is anxious to round out his public career in practically the same way as his venerable father, the late General Cameron, who was minister to St. Petersburg. E. J. STACKPOLE.

Fire Insurance Co.

The Centre county Fire Ins. Co., P. of H., held their annual meeting at the Brant House, Bellefonte, the latter part of last week. The result of the past year was very satisfactory. The business of the company has been rapidly extending from year to year, while the assessments have been exceedingly low, much lower than in the other regular companies. All the former officers were re-elected for the ensuing year. A number of representatives of the grange were present from adjoining counties.

The reports showed about 5 per cent of an increase in the business during the past twelve months, the company carrying more than two and a quarter million dollars in risks. The officers elected were: President Isaac Frain, of Maderia; vice president, S. H. Bailey, of Boalsburg; secretary, James H. Keller, of Centre Hall; treasurer, W. A. Kerr, of Centre Hall.

Tuberculosis Detected.

Last week I. N. Bush, the veterinarian surgeon, at this place, made an examination of a herd of cattle owned by Mr. James Durst, of near Centre Hall. The result of his investigation was that three good milk cows were afflicted with the disease and had to be killed. One of the cows had been imported from Delaware and it is supposed was diseased at the time. Tuberculosis is a very dangerous disease, and is contagious for man or best. The symptoms are much like consumption.
