"I tell you," declared the reformed gambler, "that there are people in this country who insist upon being swindled. Nine out of ten of the men who are caught know that they are going up against some kind of a bunco game. They have read all about it, but its the infernal egotism of the average man that leads him into the trap. He knows that others have been caught, but he's too smart for anything of that kind, don't you see?

"I was at a country fair in Iowa exposing the tricks of gamblers. My graft was in selling a little book that I had on the subject. There was a pretty lively recently called back to Peekskill, N. Y., gang there from a back township, and when I showed them how the shell trick was done, one big fellow insisted that he could locate the elusive pea, and was bound to bet on his proposition. I told him that I was out of the business, and that he was mistaken. Then they set up a cry that I was a fraud and afraid of my own game. I went over the whole thing again and showed them how they were fooled, but I must give the fellow a chance or they would wreck my whole outfit.

At last, just to save myself, I let him put up his money, and tendered it back to him after I had won. Then it took three other men to keep him from whipping me because I took him for a squealer. One or two others, insisted on having a try at it, and never turned a hair because of their losses. When it came to three-card monte, it was the same. Each of a halfdozen men was sure that he could pick out the card and, despite my warning, would have a try at it and some of them two an idea that his customary good humor and three tries.
