THE GREEKS' GREAT HOLIDAY.

The Troops on the Frontier Make a Formal Demand That War Be Declared at Once-Residents of Athens Enthusiastic.

Athens, April 7 .- Each of the foreign representatives has handed to M. Skouzes, the Greek minister of foreign affairs, the following note: "The undersigned, in accordance with instructions from his government, has the honor to announce that in case of armed conflict on the Greco-Turkish frontier all responsibility will rest with the aggressors. He is also instructed to say that whatever results which may arise from such a conflict the powers are firmly resolved to maintain the general peace, and have decided not to allow the aggressor in any event to reap the slightest benefit from his ac " The ambassadors at Constantinople have presented to the sublime porte a note similar to the foregoing. The greatest enthusiasm was manifested here yesterday during the fetes organized to celebrate the anniversary of the declaration in 1821 of the independence of Greece from Turkish rule. The king and members of the royal family here, accompanied by the min-isters and all the high court and other officials of Athens, attended the religious ceremonies at the cathedral. king received a great ovation during his passage to and from the cathedral, and he and his ministers were showered with leaflets inscribed "Hurrah for War."

The route from the palace to the cathedral was lined with the troops of the garrison, and the streets were densely crowded. En route the horses of the carriage occupied by the crown princess became alarmed, bolted, and the vehicle was overturned. A scene of tremendous excitement followed The people rushed to the spot from all sides and raised the carriage. The princess, who was not hurt, soon entered the king's carriage and proceeded to the cathedral. Contrary to custom. the members of the diplomatic corps were not accompanied by their wives or daughters at the ceremonies.

The scenes throughout the day, although very brilliant, were lacking in the usual imposing military display on account of the large number of troops sent to the frontier. The scarcity of presents exchanged between the people was also in striking contrast with other years. Otherwise the usual customs were followed. There was a salute of 21 guns in the morning and a free feast of roast lamb, the national dish, was pleted. given to the poor.

Throughout the day crowds of people paraded the streets cheering for the king and for war with Turkey. The entire city was decorated with flags, but here also there was a difference from previous years, because not a single foreign flag, except those over the foreign legations, was flying. All the legations excepting those of Turkey, Germany and Austria were decorated with flags, and on the French floated side by side with the national flags of France and Russia.

During the afternoon a mass meeting was held to protest against the action of the powers and to indorse the steps taken by the Greek government. Later a delegation from this meeting, accompanied by a crowd of thousands of those who took part in the demonstration, presented a copy of the resolutions to the king at the palace, crying "Long live war." The crowd was so enthusiastic that it invaded the vestibule of the palace, and the guard of soldiers on duty had great difficulty in controlling the people.

In the evening nearly everybody in the city paraded, and the scene was one of extraordinary animation. There were illuminations everywhere, and on all sides were to be heard cheers for war, for the king and for Crete. A vast concourse of people remained in front of the royal palace until after midnight, calling upon King George to show himself, while thousands of others listened to one of the most popular and effective Greek orators, who spoke in Constitution square in favor of war.

A dispatch from Larissa says: The celebration of the aniversary of Greek independence evoked wild demonstrations from the troops here. The Greek army will not listen to any suggestion of retreating. The excitement all along the frontier has been intense, and it has been impossible to foretell from hour to hour whether the troops would not take the reins in their own hands and attack the Turkish positions. So intense has been the feeling that a council of officers with Prince Constantine was held last night, at which the official leaders of the army insisted upon an immediate declaration of war. They argued that such a course was the only salvation of the throne and dynasty of King George. This decision of the officers was sent by the prince to Athens.

TURKS MUST SETTLE UP

The Administration Has Tired of the Sultan's Many Delays.

MR. FOSTER FOR AMBASSADOR.

The President Will Ask For Power to Send the Ex-Premier to Deal With the Turks and Compel a Prompt Settlement of All Existing Claims.

Washington, April 7 .- The adoption of a vigorous policy to secure from the Turkish government a settlement of the claims preferred by the United States on account of the destruction of American missionary property and outrages to American missionaries committed during the uprising against the Armenians in the fall of 1895 is being considered by the new administration, and probably will be put into operation soon. President McKinley's program contemplates the sending to Constantinople of Hon. John W. Foster envoy, with the rank of ambassador, to secure from the sultan the payment of the claims which have been filed, and the speedy trial of those American citizens against whom narges have been made by Turkish officials.

The president probably will send to congress a message recommending that authority be given him to commission a special ambassador to Turkey for this purpose, and while no name will be proposed by the message Mr. Foster will be entrusted with the mission in the event that congress gives to the president the power which he desires. Mr. Foster has already been asked to undertake the mission, and, although he was at first reluctant to accept it, he finally consented to do so on certain conditions.

The program has been under consideration for several days, and meets the approval of leaders in congress of both parties who have been consulted. President McKinley and Secretary Sherman discussed the unsatisfactory policy of the Turkish governmen touching American claims soon after the administration came into power. to the rank of ambasador, and Mr Foster be given the office, but this of them that a mission once advanced to ambassadorial ranks could not well be reduced afterwards. Moreover, Mr. Foster did not care to accept such an office

Under the proposed arrangement Mr. Foster may be sent to Turkey when the resignation of Minister Terrill is accepted, to serve there as envoy extraordinary, with the rank of ambassador, until his work has been performed, and then give place to the minister who will be appointed as Mr. Terrill's successor. No reflection upon the abilities of Minister Terrill will be involved in this plan, for any representative with the rank of minister works under a heavy handicap at a capital where all the large powers and sev eral of the smaller ones are represented by ambassadors.

Several questions are at issue betract with eastern capitalists for the tween the United States and Turkey and Russian legations the Greek flag tubes in connection with the New York | Claims amounting to $150,000 have been presented to Minister Terrill on account of the damages done to the Eu-At Greenville, S. C., the Saluda river phrates college at Harpoot, which is the property of the American board of foreign missions, to the Marash Theological seminary and the residence of of the postmaster general, was married an American misionary at Hasquey, a suburb of Constantinople.

Remonstrances have been made on account of the treatment of Rev. G. P. Knapp, an American missionary, who was stationed at Bitlis and was expelled from the Turkish empire on a charge of inciting Armenians to rebellion. Mr. Knapp has been unable to secure admittance to Turkey or to secure a trial, although it is claimed that his banishment without trial is in violation of treaty rights. The deportation of another missionary working for the American board, Mr. Mc-Callum, was admitted at the time Mr. Knapp was deported, but when Sir New York, April 6.-Interest in selling Philip Currie, the British ambassador, learned that he was a citizen of Canada he made such vigorous representations to the sublime porte that the missionary was escorted back to his post. Mr. Knapp is now waiting in Berlin for permission to return. Similar charges to those against him were preferred against other missionaries, who were not expelled, but they have not been brought to trial.

The sultan has refused to recognize Messrs. Bergholz and Hunter, who two years ago were sent by the United States as consuls to Erzroum and Harpoot. They reached their posts after some trouble, but being unable to secure recognition or perform their duty as consuls they withdrew, and a few months afterward occurred the disturbances at Harpoot in which the American college was looted and property worth $100,000 destroyed. Bergholz has since returned to Erzroum, but has not been recognized. No apology or explanation has been offered, nor any redress given for any of these acts. President Cleveland and Secretary Olney at one time considered the advisability of blockading the port of Smyrna to secure redress, but abandoned the idea, partly because the revenues of the custom house were mortgaged to European governments. The new administration desires to secure the payment of the claims for damages referred to by Mr. Terrill, to secure trials for Mr. Knapp and other Americans against whom charges have been made, to gain permission for Mr Knapp to return to his post, and to have the consuls who have been accredited to Turkish cities recognized.
