A GREEK REPUBLIC

Now Loudly Talked of by Discontented Athenians.

THE PEOPLE TERRIBLY INCENSED

Over the Retreat of the Greek Troops. The Conquering Turks at Larissa Act With the Greatest Forbearance. No Pillaging Indulged In.

London, April 28 .- A dispatch from Athens says: Popular feeling points to a revolution in favor of a republic. The citizens are greatly excited at the revelations made by former Minister Ralli as to the conduct of the campaign. Yesterday large meetings were held in Constitution Square and other places of public resort, and flery harangues were delivered by well known orators in denunciation of "those who would betray Greece." The fall of the ministry is regarded as certain.

Yesterday afternoon 500 men formed themselves into a volunteer body. forced their way into the gunsmiths shops, armed themselves with rifles and revolvers and paraded the street in front of M. Ralli's residence.' Several deputies addressed them, exhorting them to remain calm and to await the progress of events. Finally they proceeded to the royal palace, where, after making a demonstration, they dispersed without further disorder. but this incident has made a great sensation.

The people are frightfully incensed at the retreat of the troops. There is reason to believe the government is contemplating the withdrawal of the Greek troops from Crete and an appeal to the powers to settle the troubles. This change upon the part of the government is due to Edhem Pasha having intimated his intention of marching upon Athens.

The correspondent of the Associated Press with the Turkish army at Larrissa telegraphs that he never saw such perfect discipline as when the victor-ious Turks occupied Larissa. The peace was not disturbed in a single quarter of the town. As an instance of the strictness of the orders against pillage. the correspondent has just seen a Turkish soldier who took a shirt from an abandoned, half closed store seized by a patrol and arrested.

Dr. Robert Safford Newton tells an interesting story of an impostor who successfully feigned epilepsy for a great number of years, in spite of the fact that he was watched by the most skill-

"How to feign epileptic fits forms a necessary part of the education of many criminals in Europe and America. In England, where it has been successfully worked for a great many years and is well known to the police, the feigning of epilepsy is called 'throwing of fits' and 'dummy chucking.' It is invariably worked in threes, after this formula: Two men, evidently friends, are walking along the street, when suddenly one of them falls in an epileptic fit. The friend of the sick man pretends to be greatly worried and gives all of his attention to the resuscitation. Naturally third man lifts pocketbooks and watches and makes off with them.

'There is one man whose career as a feigner of epilepsy is most remarkable. This man's name was Craig, and my first knowledge of him was when I was connected with the Whitechapel Road House hospital, the biggest hospital in England. It had been noticed that whenever Craig fell in a fit in the streets of London, reports were sent in to the Rev. Thomas Sherman, son of Gen. police of money and jewelry lost. He was more than suspected and was sent into the hospital, both to be treated and to be watched. This man was a perfect ing that though he was most carefully watched he escaped detection. He was a valuable man, but perhaps his pals feared that the London police had too close an eye on their movements. At all events Craig was next heard of in America. The old formula was repeated. He fell in fits, and valuables stolen were careful watch was kept upon him, both when he was in one of these fits and in the time of their intermission.

"Craig began to think that a 'coup de theatre' was necessary to save his reputation. He was at this time confined in a hospital and was in one of the upper wards in the front part of the building. There were doors that opened out on a balcony. This balcony was 38 feet from solid stone pavement. Epileptics are usually a dull, stupid sort of people, even when not in fits, and Craig feigned this stupidity as well as the other symptoms of the disease. He was allowed to wander about the hospital pretty much as he pleased, and every once in awhile down he would fall in a fit. The doctors had not discovered his fraud, but Craig felt more than uneasy at the way he was Emperor Francis Joseph and his suite | watched and suspected. One morning he Pittsburg, April 28 .-- There may be a serious hitch in the settlement of the annual wage scale of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel and Tin Plate Workers. The new scales will be prepared at the convention to be held in Detroit beginning on May 18. Some important changes will be made if the new tariff bill is adopted. It is understood that the manufacturers will interpose objections to the continuance of the differential and insist upon the tin plate prices for all sheets made. This may cause trouble. Notwithstanding the efforts of the manufacturers to lower the scale of wages President Garland, of the Amalgamated, says there will not be a change. Hollidaysburg, Pa., April 26. - Hon. Augustus S. sort of a look, at the same time putting his hands up to his head, he staggered toward the balcony and tumbled over backward-down, down, the full 38 feet -to the stone pavement below. When he was picked up, it was found that one of his wrists was broken and that he was otherwise hurt, though, wonderful to tell, not seriously. Of course this settled in the minds of the doctors the doubt that had previously existed as to whether he was a fraud or not. The thing worked exactly as Craig had planned that it should, and in course of time he was discharged as a true but incurable epileptic. Once again on the outside, he worked successfully the old game of fits and pocket picking in threes.

"Once more he was taken up and sent to the hospital. Here a young doctor set for himself the task of watching this clever rogue. He had every symptom. He would froth at the mouth, blood would stream from his tongue that he had bitten in his convulsions, and there seemed nothing wanting in real epilepsy. But this young doctor kept his vigil, and patience had its reward.

"One day, just as Craig was going through the preliminaries before falling -the looking dazed, the slowly attempting to fight off the coming spasms, the clinching of the hands-the young doctor who was watching him observed that, instead of closing the hands with the fingers over the thumbs, as would have been the case necessarily in true epilepsy-for the thumb, having the shorter muscle, must feel the contracting force first-Craig shut his hands with the fingers on the inside of the thumbs. The doctor gave him a gentle kick in the side and said: 'That'll do, Craig. I've caught you. You are a fraud. You've done your tricks well and for a long time, but your time is up. If you had been a true epileptic or just a little better read in medicine, you would have closed the fingers over the thumbs.' Without a single protest Craig straightened up and said, 'Well, I knew it was bound to come some time." "What became of the man?"

"Oh, his talents found a market. He was so well known, had been so written up for the medical journals of both Europe and America, that the doctors hired him to go before medical students and demonstrate to them how epilepsy could be feigned and also to explain how these pretenders were taught in England and elsewhere. To counterfeit the frothing at the mouth they used a small piece of soap. If there was any danger of deteotion, they could swallow both soap and froth. With a little sharp knife a stab i could be given to the tongue which would simulate the biting of that member."-New York Tribune.
