A YOUNG ARTIST.

a son of John Potter, Esq., of Milesburg, left for Philadelphia where he will enter the Spring Garden Institute to study sculpture and other branches of art. He is a youth of but 17 years, and there are circumstances surrounding his career that are unusual and worthy of mention. The boy without a doubt possesses rare ability and has displayed much talent in the line of sculpture and drawing. He was born in Bellefonte, but has spent most of his life at Milesburg, where his parents reside. In education he had only the advantages of the public schools. Most of the time he was at work at anything that could be secured, in order to assist in the support of the family, as they are in moderate circumstances. By chance, he came into possession of two prints of the famous bust of Napoleon by Charles Louis Corbet, a prominent artist; they were front and profile views.

The young man went to an adjacent brick yard and secured clay and, unaided by tools or any instruction, began the modeling of a bust. This work displeased his parent who destroyed the unfinished model. Enthusiastic in his work and with the instinct of genius, his inclinations could not be shattered. The boy secured more material, and in the Brown, Sept. 14, 1897; for tract of land loft of the barn, by moonlight, he found seclusion. Here industriously he studied his pictures and uninterruptedly worked on the second model of the famous Frenchman. He completed it successfully, and other models since.
