OUR NEW CABINET OFFICER.

Charles Emory Smith Succeeds Mr. Gary as Postmaster General.

Washington, April 22.—The president yesterday sent to the senate the nomination of Charles Emory Smith, of Philadelphia, ex-minister to Russia, to be postmaster general in place of James A. Gary, resigned.

It is stated at the White House that Mr. Gary's resignation had absolutely nothing to do with existing foreign complications, but was owing entirely to his health.

Mr. Gary stated that he had indicated to the president some time ago his desire to resign. Some five years ago Mr. Gary was taken with a severe attack of Bright's disease of the kidneys, but he finally rallied, and it was thought he had fully recovered.

Of late, however, the old symptoms have again returned, complicated with heart trouble. Recently he had a number of sinking spells that have seriously alarmed his friends, and upon the insistent advice of his physician he concluded to resign.

WICKEDEST KING.

DISREPUTABLE ANNALS OF MILAN, SERBIA'S FORMER RULER.

The Descendant of a Swine-Herd, Who Betrays in Every Action His Low Origin—Became So Obnoxious That the Servians Paid Him to Abdicate.

Milan of Serbia is the wickedest king that ever was. Other kings have been bad, but an analysis of their history always shows some redeeming quality. Milan has none and doesn't want any.

Milan has just inherited a fortune, which brings his unsavory name again before the public. In the days when Madison was President, the peasants Milosh and Yephrem, two brothers, were swineherders on the Servian hills.

EX-KING MILAN.

"Black George," another peasant, was leading a revolt against the Turkish rule. The Turks overcame him and he was forced to fly. When he came back to Servia in 1817, he found that during his absence Milosh, the swineherd, had made himself the leader of the Servian national party. The Servians wanted to reinstate Black George, but Milosh was in politics to stay, and had George assassinated. After many vicissitudes, Servia gained her independence and the royal house of Obrenovich was established on the throne.

Michael, the last descendant of old Milosh, was assassinated in 1868 by an emissary of the family of Black George in revenge for the murder of that leader by Milosh, and Michael's cousin, Milan, the grandson of Yephrem, became the reigning Prince. Milan inherited all the coarseness of his grandfather, the swineherd, without any of his redeeming traits. On his low and depraved nature he has grafted all the vices which the nineteenth century could furnish and, now, at the age of 43, when he should be in the prime of life, he is a burnt out debauchee.

Nothing except his hardy peasant blood has kept him from dying long ago. He was first known as Prince of Servia, but proclaimed himself King soon after the treaty of Paris. He ascended the throne of Servia in 1872, and at once proceeded to make things lively in Belgrade.

His marriage put no check upon his career of crime, and the royal palace was the most abandoned house in Europe. There was carousing and gambling from morning till night and "round again to morning."

When his own subjects refused to gamble with him Milan sent over to Austria-Hungary and imported a new lot of companions. He treated his wife as only a man like him could, and taught his own son to drink and carouse with the disreputable people who frequented the court. Once he brought from Vienna the whole chorus of an opera troupe and lodged them in the palace. Finally, being about $2,000,000 in debt, and his subjects and Ministers being heartily sick of him, he agreed to abdicate if he was roundly paid for it. His abdication was accepted and he was given a big sum in hand and a heavy pension if he would leave Servia and never show himself there again.

Away he went, painting all the capitals of Europe a vivid red and indulging in such excesses that every decent door was closed against him. When he first went to Paris he was elected to the Jockey Club, but after a while he was put out of there for cheating at cards, and now finds his companionship among the most disreputable of the capitals which he visits.

Not long ago he removed his furniture from the house which he had occupied in Paris to a house in Vienna. He is simply swamped with debt and has been for some time in the habit of blackmailing his son out of remittance by threatening to return to Belgrade if he did not receive money. It is also pretty well known that he has in the past succeeded in getting money from Russia by threats of various kinds.

The Baron Balch from whom Milan has just inherited a new fortune to squander was the heir of Prince Michael, whose assassination brought Milan to the throne.

Subsidized Hotels in Norway.

Some friends who have just returned from a tour in out-of-the-way parts of Norway tell me of a capital hotel system in vogue there which might be adopted with advantage in some parts of Scotland and Ireland. In every village where no hotel exists some one of the more prominent inhabitants is subsidized by the Norwegian Government, and in return is bound to provide accommodation for not less than four travellers; he may take in more if he chooses, but four is the minimum.

My friends made frequent use of these subsidized hostleries, and are enthusiastic concerning the excellence of the accommodation and food supplied. I did not gather whether the tariff was regulated by Government, but I presume it is; anyway, the charges are absolutely moderate. Norway owes much of her prosperity to tourists, and she certainly treats them well.—The Sketch.
