EDITORIAL.

QUAY'S PHILAD. TIMES.

Any democrat who places any dependence in the Philadelphia Times' consistency, these days, will be woefully mistaken. Pull the independent-democratic mask off of Alec McClure, which for years he and the Times has worn, and you find a political rogue, cunning, unscrupulous, but with a versatile pen. He is an out-and-out Quay henchman, but is doing his work under mask. It is declared that Quay's influence put a stop to the legal proceedings by which Alec McClure's Times was convicted of libeling an ex-mayor of that city, and was fined something like $45,000, which to this day has not been paid. By some peculiar hocus-pocus, the public knows not why, these proceedings have died. It is common rumor that Quay interfered, urged the courts to ease up on this paper, and thus the Times and McClure were saved from raying it. That is the explanation frequently made, and commonly accepted. It is a very satisfactory explanation, too, why this paper is supporting Swallow. It is a paper with a string to it, and Matt Quay has the pull on them. By supporting Swallow, they hope to draw a lot of democrats from Jenks, who could not be induced to vote for Stone.

McClure booming Swallow! Sorry spectacle indeed. McClure is an abject, servile, menial loaded down with a $45,000 fine of the courts at the mercy of Matt Quay. Poor McClure, a humiliating spectacle of one who once sat in the nation's highest councils, now a slave in the Quay camp.

To our democratic readers who want a first-class consistent democratic paper, get the Philadelphia Record or the Pittsburgh Post. Try them, and don't be buncoed any longer by Quay's Times.

HEINLE'S POSITION.

There are many reasons why the candidacy of Wm. C. Heinle, for State Senate, commends itself to the people. He is an able intelligent man, endowed with an unusual amount of sound, practical, good, common sense, which is above all things the most essential element in a genuine man. Again he has a practical knowledge of men and public affairs, and in many respects is far beyond the average in his ready conception and powers of analyzing and solving a problem and successfully arriving at a conclusion. In short, he is an organizer, a leader, and would be a useful man in any representative body. In the State Senate he would be a conspicuous figure and would force to the front.

In the present issue he would make a strong man in marshaling the forces for the defeat of the Quay ring. His counsels would be respected and his influence felt. He has the required ability, the force of character for this emergency, and that is why every democrat and independent voter should give him hearty support.

Again, Mr. Heinle arose from the common people. He is one of them yet. Broad minded, liberal spirited, generous, a man with a "great big heart in him," he is the people's candidate without a mistake and would be their spokesman and advocate on every occasion where their interests arise. Remember Heinle, when you vote.

THERE was a furnace in the old executive building and possibly there was some necessity for a fireman; but in the new executive building there is no furnace and no need for a fireman, yet there is a heater drawing a fat salary for running the furnace where no furnace is or has been in use. And we claim to be moral people.

THE FORTY YEARS' CARNIVAL.

Mr. Wanamaker has repeatedly said that the present republican machine has taken forty years in the building. This carries us back to the first election of Simon Cameron to the United States senate as a republican, in 1857. Three democrats—Lebo, Maneer and Wagon-seller—voted for Cameron under circumstances that left no doubt of their having been corruptly influenced. All three were ruined by their perfidy. Five years later, in 1862, there was a Democratic majority in the legislature on joint ballot, of just one. Charles R. Buckalew was the democratic choice for senator. On the day of election a host of democrats assembled at the capitol from all parts of the state, some, it is said, with pistols in their pockets. At any rate, though there is every reason to believe that certain democratic members had been tampered with, all voted for Buckalew when the test came. It was considered safer.

The elder Cameron was unquestionably the founder of the republican machine now dominated by Matthew S. Quay. It had taken shape with his election to the senate. When the war began he was secretary of war. Our soldiers in the field were often quartered, in those days in rotten tents, shivered under half-weight blankets, went practically barefooted in shoes with paste board insoles and as good as naked in shoddy trousers. But the contractors turned in for the machine. Cameron was censured by formal resolution of the house, and Lincoln was compelled to drive him from the cabinet. Political influence subsequently caused the resolution of censure to be expunged from the record.

The tariff, about this time, was exploited for all that it was worth. Scores of tariff bills were passed and the beneficiaries joined and "put up" for the machine.

Offices began to multiply, and corporations also, and these were made to pay the machine tribute. And then, in their turn, came the ten million steal, the lumber boom bills, the Kemble & Mackey frauds, the George O. Evans swindles, the Pittsburg riot loot and a hundred other infamous procedures differing from these in degree but not in essence, each of which marked some epoch in the rise of the machine on the tide of fraud and corruption.

With the single exception of Beaver, every Republican governor during these forty years has, more or less openly, been forced into antagonism to the machine, its exactions of them becoming, in the long run, to much to be patiently borne. Curtin drifted into the Democratic party, Geary revolted after he had signed legislation at the machine's behest that he knew to be unconstitutional and strikingly in the nature of robbery. Even Hartranft was finally goaded into kicking. Hoyt entered upon open rebellion, but too late. His final message, in 1883, was a fierce exhortation of the machine's arrogance and infamies. We all know how Hastings turned upon the looters in 1897. Only Beaver was complacent.

First the elder Cameron, then the younger and now Quay—these three make up the record. Each in his turn was head of the machine. Simon organized and started it upon its career. Don improved upon the methods of his father, from the machine standpoint. Quay has made it intolerable. We have had forty years of it, as Mr. Wanamaker says, and forty years is an abundance. The machine must go.

CORRUPT AND ROTTEN.

The whole of Quayism is corrupt and rotten, not only in dollars and cents, but in the principles that underly it. The government of the whole State by any one man, or by 50 men, is a violation of the Constitution of Pennsylvania. It is a discredit to your citizenship, it is a brand upon your fair name, and I ask that you do yourselves the justice of freeing yourselves from these injuries.

GEORGE A. JENKS, at New Castle.

DO NOT FORGET.

That the next Governor will be a member of the State Capitol Building Commission, known as the Board of Public Grounds and Buildings, and that it is of the greatest importance to the tax payers that no $20,000,000 steel like the one in Philadelphia is carried through. There should be a minority member on this Board—vote for at least one honest member—vote for George A. Jenks.

WHO SHALL RULE.

The real contest and issue in this election is between Quayism and the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The question that you must answer on your conscience and on your character as patriots is, who shall rule, one single autocratic ruler, with those whom he has bound to himself, or the voice of the people, honestly expressed by the ballot?

GEORGE A. JENKS, at Meadville.

RARE ABILITY.

Very few of our readers get to see the Gazette. To show them what they are missing we publish one of Harter's customary able efforts, for which he is noted. "When the democratic party prates about its loyalty to the soldier it is well to refer to the fact that it defeated General Beaver for the Legislature in Centre county before his leg, carried away by a democratic bullet, was healed."

SWALLOW'S CHANCES.

Absurd Claims of His Managers--Can Do No More Than Help Quayism.

The chairman of the Prohibition state committee is a gentleman by the name of Jones, and he is rapidly attaining celebrity as the most extraordinary political counter in the business. Last year he had the Rev. Swallow elected state treasurer by a considerable majority. And, notwithstanding the fact that Swallow polled less than half as many votes, or more than 124,000 fewer than Brown, the Democratic candidate for the same office, and 150,000 less than Ritter, the Democratic candidate for auditor general, Jones is as jubilant as ever, and certain that Swallow will beat Jenks, and all but certain that he will be elected governor. Here are the exact figures from the record:

Brown, D., for state treasurer, 242,731
Swallow, P., for state treasurer, 118,969
Brown over Swallow, 123,762

The difference between the Brown and the Ritter vote, 25,610, probably represents, approximately, the number of Democrats that voted for Swallow last year. But the Democratic party was then very much demoralized and disheartened and, besides this loss of 25,000 to Swallow suffered to far larger extent from stay-at-home voters. This year all the divisions of the party are united and the Democratic ticket is one that enlists the esteem and inspires the confidence of every Democratic voter, to say nothing of the great number of independent Republicans who have already pledged Mr. Jenks their support. Under these circumstances can do is to help Quayism by enlisting independent Republican support that would otherwise come to Jenks. The few Democrats who have been, up to now, talking about voting for Swallow will be brought to comprehend this long before election day comes around. So will many of that class of independent Republicans who are sincerely anxious to rid the state of Quayism.

Jenks is a growing candidate. Everywhere he goes, or his friends go, his support is increased. Swallow is far stronger today than he will be a month hence, though he is not now, and never was, strong enough to come within many thousands of the lowest vote ever cast by the Democrats in the state.

Mr. Jenks is a forger. He is forging ahead at a pace that smacks very strongly of getting first at the winning post.

The Philadelphia Press calls Swallow the "fire alarm candidate." The Press is not ardently for Stone, but evidently prefers Stone to Swallow.

The Democratic press of the state has never been more unitedly for a Democratic ticket. The Republican press has never been more shakily in its allegiance to a Republican ticket.

CHANGE NEEDED.

Mr. Wanamaker is finding plenty of work for Governor Hastings when he takes the stump. In a late speech he showed that the cost of public printing has been increased in Pennsylvania. The cost of printing for the year ending July 1, 1882, was $99,219.75; in 1884-85 it was $217,909.50; in 1890-91 it was $222,033.07; in 1894-95 it was $183,087.77. This was the last year of a Democratic administration. The expense had risen to $357,174.02 in 1896-97, and for the last fiscal year is estimated at $725,000. Mr. Wanamaker followed up this general exposure of extravagance by details, among which may be mentioned the presentation of a bill for $26,000, for printing a report showing how $40,000 had been expended. This is almost equal to Colonel Stone's $10,000 fee in his $3,500 case.

FEDERAL PATRONAGE SOLD.

"You can use the federal patronage for what it is worth. Your district being Democratic, all patronage under a Republican administration would be controlled by the United States Senators."

M. S. QUAY, to Hon. D. R. Horne, Allentown, Pa.

Is it right that public school officials should be forced to borrow to maintain the schools? Well, that is what they are now doing, and it is just what they have been doing for some time, and all over the state too. While favored bankers are holding school funds and dividing the profits with certain state officers, the taxpayers are obliged to hire money at six per cent. The fact is, the state is bankrupt and cannot pay the appropriations made for schools and charities. It is high time there was a change.

THERE is no law which provides for a barber and bootlicker for our State Senators, but they have one, all the same, at a cost of $5.00 a day and his supplies when the Senate is in session, and when it is not in session this worthy runs a barber shop in the office of the state treasurer. How do you like it?

The Democratic Headquarters were opened this week in the rooms formerly occupied, on the second floor of Temple Court, opposite the Brockerhoff House. Democrats from about the county are urged to call whenever they can do so.

THERE are more court judges in Pennsylvania than in all England. And they come high, too. Very high.

There is a young man in our community who is noted for his bravery, but last Saturday night he must have been somewhat excited. About 12 o'clock he got awake and imagined there were robbers about the house. He had the gun but was too much excited to know that it was loaded. Elias happened to be away from home and had all his desks locked, and in order to get some cartridges he cut the lock out of one desk, broke the lock on the second, also on the third where he found the cartridges. When he came to load the gun he found it was loaded. It was then 4 o'clock, but he went out shot five or six times, all around, until he thought he had shot everything about the place. In the morning he found he had shot a mosquito and a goose. C. R. that was pretty well done for one night.

There are frauds in soaps as well as other things. Sometimes a grocer will offer you a substitute for Ivory Soap, because his profits are larger on the substitute. He and the purchaser are losers in this transaction. The dealer ultimately loses the customer, and the customer suffers from the mischief of the substitute. A person accustomed to Ivory Soap will not be satisfied with any other. Ask for Ivory Soap and insist upon getting it.

A WORD OF WARNING—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the Ivory," they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.
