CORRESPONDENTS DEPARTMENT CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7 Nittany.

We had a good soaking rain, on Saturday. Maggie and Emma Yearick were home over Sunday. John Tolbert spent Sunday at his home, with his friends. Spade's and Crider's saw mills are running full time. The cherries are ripe, but they are not very plenty through here. Some of the Hubersburg boys were at the festival on Saturday evening. Clem drove to Hubersburg on Sunday evening. There was a girl in view. Mrs. Alice Robb spent Sunday in Bellefonte, with Nelson Robb and family. The festival on Saturday evening, was fairly well attended considering the rain. Haymaking and harvest is here. The grain will be fit to cut the last of the week. There seems to be some attraction in our community for one of the young men of Hubersburg. Thomas Shope and family, of Milesburg, were in our midst on Saturday and Sunday, and took in the festival. We are sorry to note that Jacob Gobbie has been in very poor health, for the past week. Dr. McCormick has been attending him. The children's meeting in the Lutheran church, was well attended. The children acquitted themselves very well. The music was good. A. A. Pletcher and daughters sang several fine selections. Mrs. Will Mauck and children, and Miss Estu Smith, of Millheim, were the guests of Samuel McCaleb on Saturday. Miss Lillie McCaleb returned to Millheim with them on Sunday, to spend a week. Mrs. Joel Tressler has been suffering for several months with a cancer on her foot. It got so bad that her foot had to be amputated last Friday. Dr. Hensyl and son, William, of Howard, and Dr. Watson, of Lock Haven, performed the operation very successfully. She is getting along nicely.

Coburn. Mrs. A. J. Campbell is visiting at Shamokin, for a few weeks. J. F. Garthoff left Monday morning for New York City, on business. Boyd Vonada, of Jersey Shore, was home on Sunday to visit his parents. Michael Corman, an old citizen of Pennsylvania, died on Saturday and was buried on Tuesday, at Aaronsburg. Miss Grace Guistwite, of Harrisburg, who had been visiting friends in this section, left for home on Monday evening.

The festival, on Saturday evening, was well attended and so were some of the Georgetown boys, by having their eyes dotted with blue ink. Nichodemus Lose, of near Feidler, had an accident on Tuesday noon, while getting ready to haul hay. His horses frightened, he fell and the wagon passed over him. Mr. Lose is in a critical condition at this writing.

Mrs. Thomas Hosterman broke her arm last Wednesday. Dr. G. S. Frank, of Millheim, was summoned, who set the broken member and now Mrs. Hosterman is doing as well as can be expected under the circumstances.

An old miser, not many miles from Woodward, came to market with a load of wheat last week, and when the grain merchant discovered that he had more weevils than wheat, this miser wanted to play sharp on the grain merchant by putting 1/2 bushel of good wheat in each bag he had. Through his dishonesty, he had to take it to the mill and get it ground for feed. Comparatively, I think it would be easier for the weevils to pass through the eye of a needle than for the old miser to enter the Kingdom of God.

Stormstown. Miss Jennie Potter is visiting at Irwin. Miss June Elbv, of Huntingdon, is visiting Rev. Runyan's family. Mrs. Alice Mong spent several days at Warriors Mark, last week. Harry Way, of State College, visited his grandmother, Mrs. Simon Sellers. Miss Sophia Hunter, of State College, visited her brother, Capt. Hunter, several days last week. Joseph and John Griffin, Tyrone, were called home by the serious illness of their sister, Mable, who has been very low with heart trouble. John Burkett attended the reception given to Rev. Patton and bride, at the Patton homestead, near Warriors Mark, the evening of the 23rd.

The school directors of Half Moon township have elected the following teachers: Elder's school, Willis Eves; Town, Lucy Rowen; Centennial, Edith Harlacher; Centre Line, Walter Wrye; Ebbs, Clayton Stine.

Pine Grove Mills. The Misses Anna and Alka Musser, also Mrs. Annie Tate, spent a day in the country at Mrs. H. H. Goss'. They report having had a good time. The Presbyterians held their Children's Day exercises on the evening of the 25th, which was delightfully rendered, and listened to by quite a large audience. Haymaking is almost a thing of the past, as almost all the farmers are done. The hay crop is good in this section. Some of our farmers have commenced to cut grain, which is quite ripe on the sunny side of the hills. The wheat is going to prove a better crop than expected.

Edward Weitzell, of Shamokin, is spending a month or so at J. H. Wards' home on Main street. He is enjoying himself immensely, especially since he has the monopoly of the lady bicycle riders. That's right Eddie, enjoy yourself, even if the other boys do look black at you. Mr. P. Ketcham of Pike City, Cal., says: "During my brother's late sickness from sciatic rheumatism, Chamberlain's Pain Balm was the only remedy that gave him any relief." Many others have testified to the prompt relief from pain which this liniment affords. For sale by F. PORTS GREEN, Druggist, Bellefonte, Pa.

TO OUR CORRESPONDENTS. No paper will be issued next week, therefore omit your items. For our issue of July 13th please give us a full crop report stating the result of the hay making, grain harvest, condition of corn, fruit etc. Give this as full, correct and early as possible that week.

To render yourself absolutely invisible to some people just lend them money. The plow manufacturer expects to have his business run into the ground. It is strange that a duck suit does not make an appropriate bathing costume. Although a fishline may be the real thing there is something unreal about it. Among other school branches, some teachers are greatly in favor of switches. The man who stutters may be telling the truth even when he breaks his word. It doesn't require a grammarian to understand the parts of speech of a phonograph.

SHINES HIS SHOES' SOLES.

The Peculiar Notion of a Boothblack's Customer and the Theory of It. "There goes a man that got his money's worth," exclaimed the tar-faced boothblack as he bit his nickel before putting it in his pocket, according to the Kansas City Star. "You needn't tell me that man ain't vain, either, 'cause I'll have to pass it back to you. Funny thing about him!" The boothblack folded up his rags and seated himself on his stand. The man he spoke of was one of those individuals with iron-gray hair and black, well-brushed clothing-an eccentric-looking man, and eccentric, indeed, if the boothblack's story is true. "That man gets his shoes shined on the bottom," said young ebony, sadly. "What do you think of that? He ain't satisfied to see himself in the tops of his shoes, but he wants the bottoms the same way. 'Course, we can do it all right, 'specially under the insteps, but it goes kind o' funny."

"What do you suppose he does it for?" asked a man on the next box. " 'Cause he's proud," came the answer, "and 'cause he's lazy and don't do nothing but sit around all day with his feet in a window. He's a boarder in a hotel, and he ain't got no business that I can tell. All the time he's sitting in a chair with his feet on a window sill, and of course everybody that goes by sees his feet. I s'pose it's just a habit, sitting with his feet up, and in order to be on the square he has just the bottoms shined so's the people that see the shoes instead of his collar will know he's neat. "Any how," he added, after a pause, "I guess we can't kick on a little extra work on him. He has his shoes shined twice and three times a day, when they don't need it only on the bottom, so I guess we get even."

OCEAN DRIFT.

Like Smaller Bodies of Water It Is Uncertain and Moves Here and There.

Siberian rivers wash down the timber which floods have uprooted from their banks. Carried out into the Atlantic ocean, this timber is drifted southward along the east coast of Greenland. As it approaches Cape Farewell it is caught by a branch of the Gulf stream flowing northwest and stranded on the west coast of that ice-bound region. It is treasure trove to the Eskimo, for it is the only wood to be found in his treeless land. Thus the Eskimo sends no fleet of steamers to fetch his timber from afar; the ocean lands it on his shores and charges him no freight. By a united system of river and ocean currents he obtains the growth of temperate lands. And the ocean does yet more for the Greenlanders. The seal is to the Greenlanders what the reindeer is to the Laplanders or the palm tree to the inhabitants of the tropics. And it is on the drifting ice floes that the seal comes to his shores and supplies him with most of the necessities of life. So also the kindly ocean lends a rich load of driftwood on the bleak shores of Nova Zembla, says Gentleman's Magazine. In certain parts of Spitzbergen, again, the beach is covered with enormous masses of driftwood. Searching among these, one of the explorers in Nordenskiold's party found a well-preserved seed of a West Indian plant (Entada gigalobium). Seams of coal and impressions of leaves have also been found in the same locality. In the far future these masses of driftwood may also become coal.

USUAL METHOD OF ACTION.

A Dashful Chicago Youth's Explanation of a Sudden Assumption of a Seat.

He is an extremely diffident fellow, this South side youth, but is also enamored of a fair maiden. She likes him right back and is not averse to giving him help in emergencies. But she finds it a difficult matter to get her admirer to respond to the calls of society, for he sinks into a condition of too many feet and hands when in the whirl social. But she has her hopes, says the Chicago Chronicle. Not long ago, when the chill winds had reduced the previously deposited snow into glaring ice, they set forth to walk to a nearby home to engage in the attractions of progressive euchre and chocolates. He was very tender and solicitous lest she tumble, slip and fall upon the icy sidewalk. Not being endowed with the certainty of footing of the patient burro himself, fate overtook him and he smote the earth with a crash heard blocks away. Thereupon a look of intense anguish sped over his face, for his spine seemed shortened. The "girlie" was in tears of pity. She clasped her hands and loved him for his woes. "Oh, Charlie," she murmured, brokenly, "does it hurt?" "No," he gasped, with a sickly grin. "Of course not. You see, I always sit down that way."

Now she loves him for his courage and ability to tell a fib to extricate himself from a painful and unpleasant position. "Corpse Coins." "Corpse coins" are treasured in the north of England. They are the coins that have lain over the eyes of their dead. By this means infection has been spread, but superstition causes the custom to continue. A poor collier or peasant would never think of doing anything important unless he has on his person coins that have been upon the eyes of his dead relatives. Grave Robbery a Capital Crime. Robbing graves is a crime under Chinese law for which the thief may be justly killed on the spot by anyone finding him out.

THE DOLLAR OF 1864.

Only Four Genuine Coined. One Sold for $600. It is claimed by numismatists that only four silver dollars were actually coined in the year 1864, and that any others put upon the market are mere re-strikes. A correspondent of the Philadelphia Telegraph, writing on the subject, says there is a story afloat to the effect that $20,000 of the coinage of 1864 were shipped to Tripoli to pay the United States troops who were in service there. He refers also to a more romantic theory, according to which there was trouble between Algiers and this country, terminating in an agreement under which the United States Government was to pay $500,000 for the freedom of captured and enslaved seamen, and $20,000 for the immunity of our ships thereafter. Not until 1864, when the war with Tripoli was in progress, were the $20,000, including the entire coinage of that year, sent on the frigate Philadelphia, which ran aground and was captured by the Tripolitans. The frigate was subsequently boarded and burned by the Americans, but the money was gone.

There have been dollars of other years, more especially those of 1801-2-3, changed into 1864, by scratching off the last figure and placing a "4" on a piece soldered on so neatly that experts have been deceived by it until the coin was heated so that the substituted figure would drop off. The correspondent of the Telegraph, in further speaking on the subject, says: "The highest price, to my knowledge, ever paid for an 1864 dollar was $1,200, and that dollar was sold to a New York man by a druggist who resided in the Ninth ward. It was known as the Davis dollar, and was bought by the druggist from John Hazeltine. Some time after its sale the druggist wanted me to buy it back, and I secured it from him for $600. I told my client that it was a restrike dollar, and I advised him not to take it, but he insisted upon my buying it for him. A number of years after that a lawyer named John M. Hale, of Philadelphia, Centre county, Pa., gave me $600 for it. I refused to guarantee the coin, and before purchasing it he took it to the mint and someone there told him that the coin was struck off during 1864."
