The Girl That Helps Mother.

The girl who gives way to a desire to gad about the streets and cultivate the acquaintance of young men who act the simpering simpleton, is laying the foundation for a useless life. Ten to one after she is married she will develop into a slatternly gossip, if no greater misfortune befalls her. It is the girl of good sound sense, the girl that loves home and helps mother that wins the model husband and becomes an ornament to womanhood. The girl that does this and devotes some of her time to reading, tries to win the esteem of everybody, while gadding street ornament wins the admiration of those whose admiration is not worth anything.

PUTTING ON JANNEYS.

Expiration of the Time Causing the "Penny" to Hustle.

Orders have been issued by the Pennsylvania railroad to resume the supplying of their cars with Janney couplers. The Renovo shops will do the bulk of the work.

These shops have orders to equip monthly from 150 to 250 cars with the patent safety device required by law. The work is to continue indefinitely and will give work to a goodly number of men.

The total cost of equipping a car in good repair varies between $50 and $60. To this must be added the loss of the old coupler which may never be used again because the law requires that none of the old fashioned "bullnoses" be used on new or repaired cars. The old fashioned couplers are not nearly so expensive as the Janneys.

The "Penny" has ordered this work begun for that with the coming of next January the time expires for the equipment of cars with air brakes and automatic couplers. It is not likely that an extension of time will be granted as it has twice been extended already.

It is thought that if the January limit is enforced that a bill will be introduced at the next legislature compelling all private railroad companies to take the same measures of safety for their employees.

Hicks on August Weather.

August will be ushered in with storms and rain from the 1st to 4th, cooler weather will follow. About the 7th look for very warm weather, with electrical storms changing to cooler, and storm period about 15th, with a hot wave. The moon being at the extreme south declination on the 16th, wind currents should naturally flow from north to south bringing marked changes to cooler weather and a hot wave about the 22nd. The moon's passage of the equator on the 22nd, a very generally perturbed state is likely to exist. From the 23rd to 27th should cyclones develop in the West Indies, look for unseasonably cool weather in North Atlantic regions. The month will end quite warm with local summer storms in transit from west to east.

Good Advice.

There are two ways of talking over a telephone. When the bell rings, some people jerk down the receiver, place it to one ear, turn their back or side to the telephone and yell "Hello!" to the opposite wall or out of the window or down to the floor. If you want the party at the other end of the line to hear your remarks, talk into the telephone, in a commonsense way and in an ordinary tone of voice. The fellow who yells at the top of his voice, to the annoyance of his neighbors is—well, it isn't necessary. Unless the telephone is out of order, your everyday voice can be heard just as distinctly three squares or three miles as it can three feet away.

15 Day Excursion.

The Penna. R. R. Company announces the limit of special excursion tickets to the sea shore points via Lewisburg branch for "excursion of August 10th and 24th, has been extended to 15 days, instead of 10 days, as heretofore advertised.

A modification of the church fair idea is a plan of a Methodist Episcopal church in Chester county, Pa., to have an auction of farm stock and implements, the animals and goods to be solicited.

Dr. H. L. Hastings declares that women go with their necks bare, and men keep them swathed and bandaged, and ten women have sweet voices to one man. A man's voice should be as pure as a woman's. Why is it not? He is choked and shamed.

A college has been established in Rome by the pope, to enable Anglican clergymen who may have joined the Roman Catholic church to pursue their studies for the priesthood. A fund of 400,000 Italian lire has been raised for the purpose, and will be administered by the archbishop of Westminster.

According to the Presbyterian Journal the doctrine of perfect holiness seems to be making way among the churches in the southern states. The Southern Presbyterian says that the largest circulation of any paper in South Carolina is that of a holiness paper. A new organ has just been issued by the Fire Baptized Holiness association, devoted to this belief.

The Society of Friends (Quakers) gained 1,464 members last year, the chief gain being in the United States. The society holds 14 "yearly meetings" in America, two in Great Britain, five on the continent of Europe, and six in Australasia, with missions in every quarter of the globe. The total number of "recognized ministers" is 1,648. It is reported that there are tokens of spiritual life and growth among the colonies, especially Australia.

AFTER HIS FORTUNE.

Messenger, Hunted for Two Weeks, Evades Indian Pursuers and Brings Back the Money.

"There died in Kansas City, Kan., the other day," says the Kansas City Journal, "a quiet, unobtrusive, modest, and never boastful citizen. He came from a Pennsylvania regiment in 1864, and he became a messenger for the Hoiliday Express company, running from Leavenworth to Santa Fe. W. H. Bridgens, the messenger referred to, on one of his trips had $100,000 in greenbacks strapped about his person and secreted in his clothes. There was no one but him and the driver in charge of the coach, and for days they proceeded along their lonesome journey without seeing a human face. When yet many miles from Santa Fe they were overtaken by a howling band of Indians and a fierce battle was fought. Bridgens and his companion exhausted their ammunition and continued the fight with their knives. Finally they succeeded in unloosing their horses from the stage, and, quickly mounting them, fled through the timber. The savages gave chase and succeeded in separating the two men, but did not capture either of them. Mr. Bridgens still retained his treasure, but he lost his way among the crags and canyons, and it was more than two weeks before he found his way to the house of a white man. During all this time he subsisted entirely upon berries and herbs. His long absence caused his employers to believe that he had been robbed and killed by the Indians, and before his return they had made good the money they had given up as lost. When Mr. Bridgens returned with his precious burden still intact they were amazed, and so grateful were they that they presented their young agent with a handsome token of their appreciation."

SCHOOL FOR BLUSHING.

Paris Has an Institute for Teaching the Simulation of Sweet Embarrassment.

One of the latest novelties of Paris, that city of novelties, is a school where blushing is taught. If there is any place where blushing has become a lost art, one would certainly think it was Paris, but the Parisians, on the other hand, declare that it is a result of Angliomania and the influence of the American girl. The young woman who plays golf or rides a bicycle in "rationals" is likely to acquire a self-poise which will make the flush of embarrassment a stranger to her cheeks, and the city where women are bicycling on the boulevard with their bare knees exposed has felt the necessity of a reaction. The classic grace and simplicity of the early years of the century, with their accompanying downcast eyes and simpers, are now in vogue again, and the maidens who have forgotten how to blush are going to school to learn the primitive art. They say it is easy enough to droop the eyes and affect bashfulness, but to call up a mantling color is as difficult as pulling eye teeth.

How the crimsoning flow of red blood to the pallid cheek is accomplished in these fine de siècle schools of deportment it is hard to imagine, unless it is that they have taken a page out of Du Maurier's joke book and emulate the society girl who surprised her friend by always blushing at the right time. "How can you manage it?" asked the other girl, enviously. "Oh, it is very easy," the expert blusher replied. "I simply think of something that makes me blush."

SHORT CHIMNEY STACKS.

The Days of the Tall Smoke Belching Ones Are Numbered, It Is Said.

The days of the tall, smoke-belching factory chimneys are numbered, according to a writer in the Iron Trade Review. Instead, there are to be short stacks and blowers. For illustration, the experience of a Boston manufacturing firm is related. Changes in the arrangement of the works necessitated the removal of the boiler plant, but it was out of the question to take the chimney along. In its stead a fan blower was installed on top of the boilers and provided with a special engine to drive it at just the speed required. It is automatically regulated so that less than one pound drop in steam pressure greatly increases the draft, starts up the fire and brings the pressure back to where it belongs. The fan works by suction, draws the gases from the boiler flue and forces them out through a short stack extending only 31 feet above the boiler room floor.

The draught which may be produced is two or three times stronger than that of the chimney which has been discarded and is just as strong in all kinds of weather, while the cost of the entire mechanical-draught equipment, including the stack, has been less than one-half of that of a new chimney. Because of the stronger draught much cheaper fuel is burned, the saving being about $1,000 a year. It is possible with mechanical draught to use smaller boilers and still produce the required amount of steam.

Power at the Paris Exposition. The total amount of power estimated as necessary for the Paris exposition is 20,000 horse-power, of which 15,000 is allotted for lighting and 5,000 for motive power. Upon this assumption there is allowed a consumption of 440,000 pounds of steam per hour, or, for 205 days, at seven hours per day, a total of 631,300,000 pounds of steam for the entire period. This will require 200 tons of coal a day, and the water required for condensing purposes is estimated at more than 280,000,000 cubic feet for the whole period of the exposition.

ODD VIEWS OF POLICE DUTY.

People Come to Them for Postage Stamps, Ice Water, Door Keys and Money.

"It's easy to criticize the police department," said a sergeant in the back room of a station house, "but the general public has no idea of the many different things we have to do and of the annoyances to which we are subjected. When I was on duty in some of the South side precincts people used to come to the station and ask for the queerest things! Hardly a day went by that some one didn't come around and ask for postage stamps, while in the summer time they used to come in droves for a drink of ice water. When we remonstrated with them, they'd say: 'Vel, don't ve pay taxes for de ice, and shouldn't ve drink it, what?' As a matter of fact, the ice is paid for by the policemen themselves, but you couldn't make them understand it."

"One night about ten o'clock, when I was on the desk, a big stout German came in and walked up to the rail."

"Sergeant, my wife is gone out mit der key und I am locked out," he said.

"Well, I said, 'what can I do about it?'"

"Vy, sendt a bolliceman und make me get in der house, dot's what." I didn't spend my time arguing with him, you can bet.

"But that was not the worst case by any means. A poor tailor living on the top floor of a tenement down that way committed suicide after a quarrel with his wife. The man was dead when the ambulance came. A few hours later the widow sent her little girl around to the house to say that she had no money, and unless some one helped her out the man would have to be buried in the potter's field. The police are often called on in similar cases, so the boys chipped in all around and raised about $19. I gave that to the child and sent her away. Soon after it was time for roll call and another sergeant came on duty. He was busy writing up the blotter when the same girl returned. "My mudder says can I get any more," she said.

"What?" said the sergeant, who had been asleep and didn't know about the collection.

"My mudder says can I come around next month an' git some more money," was the reply. She didn't get any more, and that incident was somewhat of a damper on charity in that particular station for quite awhile.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

THE BOY AND HIS TRADE.

He Should Begin His Apprenticeship So as to Be Through When Twenty-One.

Seventeen is the preferable age for going to a trade, but in many cases 15 is not too young, nor 18 too old. But, all conditions being favorable, it is well for a boy to arrange his apprenticeship so that he can finish his trade by the time he is 21. One of the advantages of going to a trade early is that it allows the lad time to make a change should he discover that he has made a mistake in choosing his vocation, and there is no infallible method or rule that can be followed in order that such mistakes can be avoided. But the best course to pursue is for the lad to fully acquaint himself with the details of the trades to which he may incline before he makes a selection. This can be easily done at the expense only of a little observation and inquiry. Then the matter of natural aptitude can be considered—and it is a most important factor—so that the lad can avoid going into anything for which he has no special fitness. It is asserted that everyone is adapted for some one thing better than anything else, and the boy should strive to discover what that one thing is. It would be a great mistake for a lad without a natural bent for mechanics to attempt to learn the machinist's trade, and the chances would be against such a boy's proper advancement, for one's best work and development are the outcome of being congenially employed.—Barton Cheney, in Ladies' Home Journal.

Health and Beauty.

Health and beauty are not exactly synonymous terms, yet physical beauty without physical health can be but an evanescent thing. To be healthy and to keep healthy, a few cardinal principles must be observed. To attain to any degree of physical perfection the body needs to be properly fed, groomed, trained, exercised and rested, according to certain established scientific laws. Waste and repair are the forces continually at work in all living structures. Every action, even to the thinking of a thought, is accompanied by waste of tissue. Like good housekeepers, we will see that the avenues for the escape of this waste material are in perfect working order. There are four main outlets to be considered, namely: The lungs, the kidneys, the bowels and the skin. So much physiology the beauty-seeker must know. A skin with clogged pores, thickened, roughened and discolored is an unlovely thing.—N. Y. Ledger Monthly.

Pistachio Russe.

Cover a half box of gelatine with a half cup of cold water to soak for ten minutes. Whip a pint and a half of cream to a stiff froth. Turn it into a pan; stand this in one of cracked ice; sprinkle over two-thirds of a cup of powdered sugar; add about three drops of green coloring, a teaspoonful of pistachio flavoring and a half teaspoonful of bitter almond. Dissolve the gelatine over hot water; strain it into the cream, and stir it until it begins to congeal. Turn this into a plain round mold, and stand away to harden. When ready to serve turn it out onto a thick layer of sponge cake or angel's food, and cover it with chopped pistachio nuts.—St. Louis Republic.
