BRITISH AND BOERS LATEST MOVEMENTS IN THE CAMPAIGN.

A Full Summary of the Transvaal War News-Progress of the Conflict From Day to Day-The British

The war in South Africa is going on with unabated fury, and the British are rushing more men to the scene of hostilities. The following is the latest

Gen. Buller's operation at Spion Kop has cost 912 men, so far officially reported within ten days.

Applying to the 205 Spion Kop casualties the rule of proportion, the losses of officers indicate probably 500 casualties yet to come. The total casualties of the war, compiled from official reports, are 9,523, nearly a division. Of these 2,482 were killed, 4,811 wounded and the rest prisoners.

The aggregate British home troops in South Africa number 116,000, the Natalians 7,151, and Cape Colonials,

William T. Stead has addressed an open letter to the Speaker of the House of Commons, William Court Gully, asking him to bring it to the notice of the House. The writer says: The consequence of going to war with a lie in our right hand is now manifest even to the dullest understanding. The responsibility for the lie, which is now working out its natural consequences in South Africa, originally lay upon the Colonial Secretary alone, but by a conspiracy of falsehoods the select committee of 1897 was hocussed into returning a false verdict, which, being afterward accepted by the House of Commons, involved Parliament itself into the re sponsibility of a fatal fraud." Stead then asserts that "the war was undertaken to conceal the truth and to whitewash the Colonial Secretary." and he appeals to the House to insist upon the production of the correspondence between the Colonial Office and Mr. Hawksley, solicitor to the Chartered Company, "in order to ascertain the truth respecting the Jamieson raid and to purge the House of this

Sir Alfred Milner, British High Commissioner at Cape Town, has issued a proclamation announcing that the British government will not recognize as valid any forfeiture or encumbrance upon property in the Transvaal or the Free State subsequent to October 10, the date when war was declared.

John Churchill, second son of Lady Randolph Churchill, who accompanied her in the Maine to Cape Town, has received from Lord Roberts his commission in the South African Light

The British War Office has surprised London by making public a despatch from Gen. Buller, stating that Gen. Warren had abandoned Spion Kop which he captured in the recent night attack in Natal Colony, after a sharp fight with the Boer forces. The British casualty list, including many officers, exceeds 200. Much speculation was indulged in in London as to the situation of the Tugela river, and apprehension has been aroused about Buller's army and the fate of beleagured Ladvamith

A despatch to the London Times from Spearman's Camp says: Boers are prepared to fight almost interminably, having intrenched their ridge, which stretches in an almost unbroken line from the Drakensburg many miles eastward. We have not advanced any further, but we threw up intrenchments during the night. from behind which the musketry duel

At Brussels nearly one hundred thousand signatures have been appended to the address promoted by M. Lejeune and other members of the Universal Peace Society, asking President McKinley to mediate.

A battle has been raging along the Olivier's Hoek road between the Boers and 6,000 British troops. The fighting is in full swing at Splon's Kop. The Boers under Botha and Cronje have been sent elsewhere.

From Vienna comes the statement that the idea of the intervention of European powers is gaining adherents in influential quarters. The Daily Mail corespondent regards the signs as unmistakable, and mentions especially suggestions printed in the Austro-Hungary Foreign Office journals.

THE MANILA NEWS.

Another Serious Ambush of the American Troops.

Gen. Otis has cabled from Manila that released Spanish prisoners, including 74 officers, 1,000 enlisted men, 22 civilian officials, 21 wives and 35 children, were furnished transportation to Spain Jan. 25.

Advices received from Manila from Gen. Kobbe's expedition indicates that Sorsogon, Donsal, Bulan, Albany and Legaspi, in the southern peninsula of Luzon and Virac, on Cantanduanes Island, have been occupied. The only resistance was at Legaspi, where 45 Filipinos were killed and 80,000 bales of hemp were burned by shrapnel from the gunboat Nashville.

Details of Gen. Schwan's campaign in Laguna province which have reached Manila show that prior to the occupation of Santa Cruz the American troops defeated a large force of insurgents in a strongly entrenched position at San Diego, killing eightytwo and wounding a large number. The Filipinos, at last account, had fled from all their strong positions, and were being pursued by the Thirtieth Infantry and a body of cavalry.

A part of General MacArthur's command has captured and destroyed an arsenal in the mountains northwest

Gen. Otis has reported that the coast of Laguna de Bay and neighboring sections will be opened to unre-stricted traffic on the 27th, and that the western coast of Panay is now open to commerce.

Lieutenant Paul Devereux Stockley, of the Twenty-first Infantry, has been missing since the 12th inst., and is supposed to have been captured by the Filipinos in Batangas province.

TWO BURGLARS KILLED.

They Were Shot in an Encounter With Police at Quincy, III.

Quincy, Ill., police officers have killed two expert safe blowers, supposed to be from Chicago, and seriously wounded another. The men are believed to be the same who recently operated in Galesburg, Freeport and other Illinois cities, making a specialty of cracking safes in building and lean association offices.

On January 6 the safe in the offices of the Adams County Building and Loan Association, in Quincy, was blown open at the noon hour and cash and securities amounting to $20,000 taken. Saturday, Jan. 27, three men came to Moecker's Hotel, two of them registering from Kansas City. The proprietor suspected them and warned the police, and when one of the men went out he was shadowed by Detective George Koch. The officer finally asked the suspect to go to the station and explain himself. man drew a pistol and pointed it at the officer's heart, but as he did so Koch flashed his own pistol and fired four shots. Three took effect and the man fell dead

Meanwhile officers had examined the baggage of the suspected men. and found it included burglars' tools. skeleton keys, dynamite sticks and nitro-glycerine. When the other two men returned to the Moecker Hotel at 2 o'clock in the morning they found the hotel surrounded by officers. They ran into the hotel saloon and loaded their revolvers. Then issued a running fight in the hotel corridor. One man reached the street, pursued by Chief of Police John Ahern. He turned to fire, and as he did so Ahern sent a bullet crashing through his skull. He died in a few minutes. The third man was shot on the stairs by Officer Charnhorst and sank to the floor with a broken hip. He refused to say who his accomplices were.

A TERRIBLE WRECK

SHATTERS A TOWN AND KILLS FIVE PERSONS.

Freight Cars of the Jersey Central Get Beyond Control, Dash Wildly Down a Pennsylvania Mountain Side to Ashley, Causing Explosion.

Five men were killed and seven injured, so far as is known, by a wreck and explosion of a car of dynamite Thursday, Jan. 25, in the yards of the New Jersey Central Railroad at Ashley, Pa. A runaway train dashed down the mountain into the Ashley yards. There a car of dynamite exploded, wrecking the roundhouse and several engines and cars. The dead are:

Michael Bird, brakeman; William Buckley, brakeman; Frank McLaughlin, brakeman; two engine wipers, names unknown.

The injured are: William Brown, night foreman; Michael Coyle, flagman; John Rehig, driver; John Roufley, driver; Thomas Row, brakeman, Two unknown men, both fatally in-

An extra fast freight train, with twenty-four cars, was sent out of Mauch Chunk about seven o'clock, and at Laurel Run, four miles from Ashley, where the heavy down mountain grade commences, the train got beyond control. How this happened cannot be learned.

The train gained speed as it rushed down the mountain, and as it neared Ashley was going at a terrific rate. The men in the Ashley yards, startled by the roar of the approaching train, had only time to see the fire flying along the tracks as the brakemen jamed down the brakes in a vain endeavor to check the speed of the hurling train, but the wheels would not hold on the wet and slippery rails.

At the foot of the mountain, and right at the entrance of the Ashley yards, was engine No. 340, a "helper, which was about to start up the mountain with a train then being drawn up. Back of this engine, about fifty or sixty yards, was a shifting engine which was waiting for orders. The runaway train, with the speed of a tornado, came down the heavy grade and crashed into engine No. 340. Picking this up as if it had been of feather weight, and so propelled by its own force that contact with the heavy engine even did not hurl it from the track, the onrushing engine carried the other one with scarcely diminished speed along the track into the shifting engine, and there the wreck piled up.

But when the train struck the first engine the noise was a whisper com-pared with the roar of the explosion that followed and which wrecked the roundhouse, shattered seven engines near by, tore up tracks as if they had been a spider's web and hurled masses of iron, rails and ties in all directions. It was the explosion of twenty-five tons of dynamite.

All the houses in the town of Ashley were shaken, and those at Nanticoke, Plymouth, Edwardsville, Glen Lyons, Newtown, Kingston, Forty Fort and Wilkesbarre trembled.

But in Ashley, which surrounds and hangs over the shops and the railroad yard, the scene was terrifying. Windows fell crashing out of tueir frames. houses shivered as in a blast of a cyshaken by the concussion. The darkness of the night was lit up by a great flash, and then all was black again. The hiss of escaping steam was not too loud to drown the cries of the injured, and above this now and then there was the crash of some piece of wreck falling.

Where the car of dynamite was blown up there was a big hole in the ground, and around it the wreck was strewn, while almost a quarter of a mile away was piled the wreck of the three engines, and on top of them the cars. Part of the roof of the roundlouse was blown off, the big smokestacks were toppled down like straws. a water tank was shattered and strewn along the track, drenching the crew of an engine lying near, and five engines on the siding and three in the roundhouse were wrecked by the force of the explosion.

The loss is estimated at a million and a half of dollars. The confusion is still so great that it is not at all certain the list of the dead and injured is complete.

A BRUTAL ATTACK.

Two Aged Sisters Struck Down by a Robber.

Constables of Franklinville, near Vineland, N. J., are looking for, a robber who broke into a house there Jan. 23 and brutally attacked two women. One of his victims, Mrs. Mary Has-kell, fifty-nine years old, who he clubbed over the head with a stick of firewood, may die of her injuries. Her sister, Mrs. Ellen Dennett, in whose house the women were attacked, is also in a serious condition. The latter escaped from the house, and, clad only in her night clothes, ran half a mile to a neighboring farmhouse for

When the neighbors reached Mrs. Dennett's house Mrs. Haskell was insensible upon the floor of the room where the assault was committed. The room showed that the women had fought desperately.

Mrs. Haskell is not able to talk, but Mrs. Dennett says that the robber entered the house through the kitchen window, which was afterward found open. There was no one in the house but the two women. The man made his way in the room where they were Mrs. Dennett awoke and saw him standing by their bed. "If you move an inch," he said, "I will kill you." Without considering the consequences Mrs. Dennett jumped from her bed and grappled with the rob He choked her and threw her on the floor. Her sister went to her rescue and the robber struck her with a heavy stick of wood which he took from the hearth. When Mrs. Dennett recovered her feet she ran to a neigh-

Th robber followed Mrs. Dennett, club in hand. She screamed as she ran, and before she reached her neighbor's door the robber had been frightened off. Dr. Porch, of Clay-ton, was called to attend Mrs. Haskell. A suspected man was arrested, but released when Mrs. Dennett failed to identify him as her assailant.
