HAPPENINGS IN CENTRE CO

What Our Army of Alert Correspondents See and Observe Worthy of Note--The Local Happenings of Every Community.

Howard.

The Memorial services, held in the M. E. church the past Sunday, were well attended. Rev. Wharton, pastor, delivered the address, which was a fine discourse.

Albert Bechdel, who was employed in a mattress factory at Pittsburg the past year, came home a few days previous to this writing and is shaking hands with his many friends.

S. P. Hockman, of Mingoville, took dinner with our baker, E. C. Dietz, last Thursday.

E. C. Dietz has improved his property by laying a new walk in front. Let more follow, as there are a great many bad walks in our town. Some of the members of the council should follow this example.

Boyd Wilson did not ride here on his wheel, as stated in the Hustler, but came here on the train.

It was E. C. Dietz who made preparations to lay a walk and not D. E. Dietz, as stated in the Hustler. The editor of the Hustler should be careful.

Geo. Williams rode from Lewistown to this place on his wheel on Saturday and spent Sunday with his family, and rode back on Sunday evening.

The merchants of this town are trying to pass a resolution to close all business places at 8 o'clock. All seem to be in it but one, who seems to think he can not get enough of this world's goods by closing an hour early.

S. I. Reber has torn down his old barn along the walk and is now making arrangements to build a new barn, back of the house.

Mrs. Emma Gramley, of Clintondale, spent Sunday in this section.

Frederick Robb, of Blanchard, was in our town on Saturday. Mr. Robb is a candidate for Jury Commissioner and is looking up his many friends.

Robert Foster, of the College, candidate for Assembly was in our town looking up his friends, on Thursday.

Dr. Tibbins, of Noxen, Wyoming Co., Pa., flew through this city on Saturday evening with an automobile. It was quite a curiosity. Every body was crowding over each other to get a glimpse at the vehicle.

The social held in Lucas' Hall on Saturday evening, by the members of the Church of Christ, was well attended.

The Disciples occupied their new brick church again on Sunday, which was partially destroyed by fire recently.

HOWARD NO. 2.

THE SIGN OF THE BOOT.

A Familiar Emblem That Usually Hangs Over the Door of the Shoemaker's Shop.

The sign of the boot seen hanging out in front of the shoemaker's shop may be made of wood or zinc or of copper. Of these three the wooden boot is the cheapest, the copper the dearest. Such boots, says the New York Sun, have been made also of chalk and of iron. Sign boots are made in two or three standard sizes and of other sizes to order. They are most commonly seen gilded, but sign boots are occasionally finished in some bright color, as, for instance, a brilliant red. The boot signs may be bought in the establishment of the dealer in emblem signs, where there are also to be found the gilded fishes for the dealer in fishing tackle, the great gilded padlock for the hardware dealer, and a variety of other signs of an emblematic character, and they may also be bought of the dealers in leather and findings who make a specialty of shoemakers' supplies.

Besides these familiar gilded or painted smaller boots there is occasionally seen in front of shoe stores a giant boot, with the foot part perhaps three or four feet in length and the leg in proportion, four or five or six feet tall. These great boots, of which the number used is limited, are made of sheet iron or tin and painted. The dealer who wants a boot of this kind gets it made to order by some skillful worker in sheet metals.

A TRYING MOMENT.

But the Self-Possessed Hostess Was Equal to the Occasion.

People are telling a most remarkable story about a famous but somewhat eccentric woman who was lately visiting the capital, says the Washington Post. She was invited to a luncheon and she accepted the invitation. Several women well worth knowing were asked to meet her.

When they all came to the table the famous guest asked for a finger bowl. The maid, too well trained to show surprise at anything, brought a bowl half filled with water. The famous woman drew a small bottle from her pocket and emptied its contents into the water. Then calmly she proceeded to lave her spoon and fork in the liquid and wiped them on the damask napkin, explaining the while that for her health's sake she made it a rule never to touch her lips with silver that had not been properly sterilized. The bottle contained antiseptic of some kind—I've forgotten the name of it.

The best part of the story, to my way of thinking, is what the hostess did. She did not look upon the proceeding as any reflection on her housekeeping methods. She did not stare haughtily. She simply smiled into the agonized eyes of the woman who had brought the famous guest, and said: "What a very excellent idea."

THE SIGN OF BECKONING.

A New Gesture Acquired by United States Troops Returning from the War.

Among the troops returning from the new territories added to the United States by the Spanish war many have unconsciously acquired a new trick of gesture, says the New York Tribune. Ask anyone in this part of the world to beckon to a distant person to come nearer, and the sign will be made by extending the arm forward, palm upward, three fingers flexed into the palm and the index finger moved back and forth. Neither in the new eastern nor the new western possessions does that signal mean "come here;" as a matter of fact it has not that meaning among the American Indians. The northern races of Europe are almost the only people who employ the sign in that sense, and with them it may be regarded as but a hand dialect. All over the rest of the world "come here" is made by extending the arm rigidly before the body, palm facing forward and the four fingers sharply extending and flexed back into the palm several times. Every soldier of the armies of occupation who comes in contact with the Spaniards and the native races is bound to acquire the new gesture and to bring it home with him.

Bear Liked Sugar.

In a Vermont maple sugar camp, owned by a Mr. Forsythe, the owner this spring often missed cakes of the maple sugar which had been set out in the snow to harden. For a long time the men at the camp watched for the thief, but never caught him, until at last one day they found bear tracks leading away from the camp, and followed them until they came to a cave in the hillside. Mr. Bear was not at home, but in one corner of the cave they found their cakes of maple sugar neatly piled up. Mr. Bear had hidden away nearly 200 pounds of the sweet stuff, and when they went to carry it away they met him coming through the woods, walking straight up on his hind feet like a man and carrying more sugar in his arms. When he saw the men he did not wait to be shot, but dropped his sugar and ran away like any other thief.

An Old Peerage.

The premier baron of England, Lord de Ros, has just celebrated his birthday, having completed his seventy-second year. There are older peerages still in existence, but the barony of De Ros is the oldest peerage of that grade, it having been created in 1264 by Henry III., and the present peer is the twenty-fourth holder of the title. That gives an average life to each holder of over 26 years, but many of them did not succeed to the title very early in life. The present peer was 47 when he succeeded his father. The present Lord de Ros served as equerry and lord in waiting to the queen and prince consort.
