Three Years of McKinley In the White House.

PUT HUMPS ON TAXPAYERS.

Republicanism Is a Most Expensive Luxury.

COSTS TWO BILLIONS PER ANNUM.

The Expansion of Jefferson Compared With McKinley Imperialism. Colonel Roosevelt and "Napoleon the Little"—Empire Is Not Peace, but Blood—Money and the Balance of Trade.

[Special Washington Letter.]

Of all the men who figured in the Kansas City convention the one who made the most capital was Hon. James D. Richardson of Tennessee, the house leader of Democrats.

Sydney Smith once said: "In the beginning God made round holes and three cornered holes, and then he made round people and three cornered people to fit in them. But the trouble is, the round people have got into the three cornered holes and the three cornered people into the round holes, and nobody fits."

Richardson was an exception to Sydney's rule at Kansas City. He fitted the great place assigned him by the national committee, was equal to its exactions, delivered a splendid campaign speech and presided with perfect tact and the absolute impartiality of Chief Justice Marshall. He made many friends. As a member of the house, I am proud of his performance, because the only function permitted to a representative in congress at Philadelphia was when the senatorial cabal which ran the Republican convention let Hon. Sen. E. Payne move to adjourn sine die.

Richardson added to his fame at Kansas City both as an orator and a presiding officer. He has more tact than any man I ever knew, and he had an ample field on which to display it at Kansas City, and he so displayed it as to please everybody. I congratulate my Brother Richardson most heartily.

The Man With the Hump.

There isn't a man in America who says more good things than Alfred Henry Lewis, editor of the Verdict. I doubt if a man with a finer or larger vocabulary ever wrote for any newspaper published in our vernacular. Not long since he dished up the McKinley administration in the following jam up fashion:

President McKinley has occupied the White House a little more than three years. For the same period of time the government has been run by the White House syndicate. The humpbacked taxpayer—brother to the man with the hump—now take stock and ascertain his condition. Three years of McKinleyism have given this patient man with a hump a government that costs about $250,000 an hour, nearly $6,000,000 a day, more than $40,000,000 a week, almost $150,000,000 a month, in the neighborhood of $2,000,000,000 a year, and yet the patient man with eyes like an ox is not wholly satisfied!

Reckless Expansion.

Jingoes say that we are opposed to expansion and call us little Americans. The name is an insult, and the charge that we are opposed to expansion is a lie. There is no use mincing words or being mealy mouthed about the charge. It is a lie made of whole cloth and made willfully, deliberately, premeditatedly and with malice aforethought. I take it that all Americans are expansionists provided the expansion is on right lines, in the right direction and will strengthen our institutions and not weaken them.

But a man does not have to be a fool necessarily in order to be an expansionist. Because he desires to see his country grow in a healthy manner he does not have to be in favor of reaching out indiscriminately in all directions and taking in all countries and all peoples; because a man eats wheat bread is no reason why he should eat arsenic; because beef does him good is no reason why he should gorge himself on rough on rats; because clear spring water slakes his thirst is no reason why he should fill up on aqua fortis.

Rational people want to expand on rational lines. Thomas Jefferson's greatest act was in making the Louisiana purchase. That was the most profitable and stupendous transaction in real estate proposed on this earth since the devil took the Saviour to the top of a high mountain and offered him the dominion of the world to fall down and worship him. That one act alone would have placed Jefferson in the ranks of the immortals even if he had never written the Declaration of Independence or Virginia's statute for religious freedom or founded the University of Virginia.

I am this day in favor of annexing every foot of the North American British possession clear to the frozen ocean. It is contiguous territory, inhabited by much the same sort of people that we are and who would become good citizens, but I am eternally opposed to owning Asiatic territory 10,000 miles away, more thickly inhabited than any state in the Union, inhabited by people alien to us in color, race, thought and habit. I would keep only such places in Asia as we need for coaling and naval stations. I am opposed to expanding our territory in Asia because it is dangerous to our institutions.

Louis Napoleon and Roosevelt. The old proverb, "Great minds run in the same channel," finds a new and startling vindication in the sameness of thought and language of a famous note by Louis Napoleon and a recent utterance by Colonel Theodore Roosevelt.

When "the imperial nephew of his uncle," or "Napoleon the Little," as Victor Hugo contemptuously dubbed him, was endeavoring to justify his betrayal and murder of the second French republic and his establishment of the second French empire, he solemnly and falsely denied that the restored empire meant war, but epigrammatically and vehemently exclaimed, "The empire is peace!"

Colonel Roosevelt is not only both a voluminous writer and voluble speaker, but is also an omnivorous reader. Whether during any of his incursions into history and literature he ever read Louis Napoleon's famous speech to the chamber of commerce of Bordeaux, Oct. 9, 1852—the speech containing the imperial maxim just quoted—I do not know; but, if he never perused that remarkable oration, he, by a strange concatenation of events and mental processes, performed the most astounding piece of paralling both thought and expression to be found in the annals of oratory.

In his speech before the National League of Republican Clubs Colonel Roosevelt earnestly enjoins his countrymen to "remember that expansion does not bring war; it ultimately brings peace."

"The empire is peace!" asseverates the dreaming, scheming, ambitious son of Hortense. "Expansion ultimately brings peace!" echoes the dreaming, scheming, ambitious governor-colonel of New York.

Two lovely berries, molded on one stem, the stem of imperialism; twin statesmen reveling in iridescent dreams of peace—peace to be obtained by a quantum sufficing of throat cutting and bloodletting—the identical sort of peace which reigned in Warsaw on a memorable occasion and which "damned to everlasting fame" the men who secured it by sword and fire.

The Empire is Blood.

Now, be it remembered that I am not accusing Colonel Roosevelt of plagiarizing from Napoleon III. I would not, even in the estimation of a hair, detract from his just fame, but one of two things is true—either he had read Louis Napoleon's Bordeaux speech and boldly appropriated or unconsciously assimilated both his ideas and his language or the exigencies of the case compelled Colonel Roosevelt to use the same argument in favor of his imperialism as the French emperor used in defense of his imperialism.

I like epigrams. "The empire is peace" is a splendid, sonorous, striking sentence. It appeals to the imagination, it soothes the troubled spirit, but it was a lie when uttered by the wily Frenchman. It is a lie today, and it never can be the truth.

The entire history of Louis Napoleon's tawdry, tinsel empire demonstrates the utter falseness and hollowness of his terse epigram. "The empire is peace." It began in blood; it flourished in blood; it perished in blood. The coup d'etat, which gave it birth, was one of the bloodiest and most monstrous crimes recorded in the files of time and brought death, imprisonment and exile to nearly every Frenchman of that generation at all worthy of remembrance.

Instead of bringing peace to France the empire brought the unprecedented humiliation of Metz and the awful catastrophe of Sedan. It sent Louis Napoleon himself to die an exile at Chislehurst and his son to die in South Africa, a soldier of fortune, fighting savage Zulus under the cross of St. George in the service of that country which had caged the great Napoleon like a savage beast upon the sullen rock of St. Helena.

That's the sort of peace which Louis Napoleon's empire brought to France.

The Money Question.

We stand today on the money question precisely where we stood four years ago. Truth does not change to falsehood in four short years. The men who wrote the Chicago platform had the courage of their convictions, and they have had no reason to change their conclusions since.

Consequently at Kansas City we re-adopted, not merely reaffirmed, but re-adopted, the financial plank of the Chicago platform in all its integrity and all its force, in spite of all cajolings, all threatenings and all temptations, all otherwise. From the bottom of my heart I rejoice that we did so, for if we were right then we are right now.

Individually I have no doubt whatever that, notwithstanding the recent unfriendly congressional legislation, not only America, but the whole world, will soon return to bimetalism under an impulse of self preservation so strong that it cannot be resisted.

The fact that the per capita volume of circulation has increased in the last three years grows out of the accident that the balance of trade has been overwhelmingly in our favor, which happy condition was and is purely the result of the failure of crops in India and of the abundance here.

Under normal conditions, good crops in the old world and good crops at home, the balance of trade will, as in the past, be against us, and as soon as that happens the drain of gold will begin, and contractions will follow.

While the Democratic party has not changed its position since 1896, the Republican party has changed its position radically. In 1896 it declared for international bimetalism. At Philadelphia a short time ago it pronounced for the gold standard in all its baldness and badness. Not only that, but the latest Republican platform states what is positively untrue wherein it reaffirms its allegiance to the gold standard, when, as a matter of fact, it never had declared for the gold standard before.

International Bimetalism.

As a matter of fact, the administration never made an honest effort to secure international bimetalism. The Wolcott commission that was gal-lanting over Europe would have secured international bimetalism if it had not been hamstringed by the administration. They were progressing with amazing rapidity in that direction and had gained the consent of the Bank of England when Lyman J. Gage, the secretary of the treasury, destroyed their good works by an interview declaring that neither the president nor the people of the United States wanted bimetalism.

The financial bill passed by this congress is the most monstrous measure ever placed on the statute books. It is sometimes called the Overstreet bill, but it should be called the "Atlantic City bill," because it was concocted there in vacation by a coterie of Republican magnates in secret conclave. In my mind Atlantic City is the poorest place in America to ascertain the settled sober sense or conviction of the American people.

That bill not only established the gold standard, which the Republican party never promised, but it retired the greenbacks, and let me say that if the Republican party had promised to retire the greenbacks there never would have been a Republican congress to enact such a law, and there would not have been a Republican president to sign such a measure.

I will not argue the greenback question. I have simply this to say: There never has been a war waged by our country in which the greenback did not give us the victory, and if the greenbacks were good enough money in the civil war to induce men to leave their homes, their wives and little children to risk their lives on a thousand battlefields in defense of their country, then it ought to be good enough money to pay gentlemen who make their living by reclining in the shade of Wall street, clipping gold coupons off coin bonds. If the greenbacks are not good money, then, as a matter of common honesty, we owe it to the old soldiers to pass a law even at this late day paying them the difference between gold and greenbacks from 1861 to 1865.

Republicans Have Changed.

By that Atlantic City bill congress abdicated the paramount function of government, the money making function, and turned it over to an association of national bankers, a function too vast and too dangerous to be given to any citizen or corporation. That bill broadens the money question and puts it on the high plane to which Andrew Jackson fought Nicholas Biddle and the old Bank of the United States, and, as he conquered in the thirties, so will we conquer under the leadership of the great Nebraskan.

I repeat that while we maintain our position of 1896 in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the historic ratio of 16 to 1 without waiting for the consent of any other nation on earth, the Republicans have changed their and changed it radically.

I do not have to make assertions or quote Democrats to show that we are right on the money question. I will quote you a Republican of the highest degree. Certainly Republicans ought to believe each other, for nobody else will believe them.

My Republican witness says: "I am for the largest use of silver in the currency of this country. I would not dishonor it. I would give it equal credit and honor with gold. I would make no discrimination. I would utilize both metals as money and discredit neither. I want the double standard."

These be potent words. They were fitly spoken and are like apples of gold in pictures of silver. They are clear and unmistakable in their meaning. Now, my Republican friends, you who are engaged in the condemned business of worshipping the golden calf, what orator and statesman do you suppose made that forcible declaration in favor of silver which I have just quoted? It wasn't Silver Dick Bland—God bless him! It wasn't William J. Bryan, the peerless leader of the Democratic hosts. It was a man whom you delight to honor. Don't all fall off your seats in a fit of apoplexy when I tell you his name. It was the head man of the Republican pie counter, William McKinley, president of the United States, and now running for re-election on a gold standard platform after signing a gold standard bill. He is the man who said it. He said it on the floor of the American congress. It is so printed in The Record. You can't deny it. He can't deny it. Those words were spoken by William McKinley, your idol, with front of brass and feet of clay, spoken by him while he was yet free and before he had fallen under the malign influence of Mark Hanna and his foul crew of political buccaners.

What's more, McKinley in addition to speaking in favor of silver voted for it and voted for it repeatedly. He voted for the original Bland silver bill, which was a bill for the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at 16 to 1. He voted for the Bland bill with the Allison amendments, and when Rutherford B. Hayes vetoed the Bland-Allison bill William McKinley voted to pass it over the Hayes veto, which was the noblest act of his public career.

In passing it may be proper to state another fact, which I stated on the floor of congress in a full house, which nobody denied then and which nobody will deny now, and that is that William B. Allison, senior and perpetual Republican senator from Iowa, is the first American statesman that ever made a free silver speech. But, alas! he, too, like William McKinley, bows to Mark Hanna's command and the dictates of Wall street and today humbly worships the golden calf.

APPLICATION FOR CHARTER.

Notice is hereby given that an application will be made to the governor of Pennsylvania, on the 14th day of August, 1900, by John S. Miller, Edward L. Hoy, C. M. Bower, Ellis L. Orvis and S. D. Gettig under the act of Assembly entitled "An Act to provide for the incorporation and regulation of certain corporations, approved April 29, 1874 and the supplements thereto, for the charter of an intended

HEALTHY OLD AGE SSS

The majority of persons upon reaching middle age and past find their blood becomes weak and thin, and diseases that were easily controlled in earlier life begin to affect the constitution.

Those predisposed to Scrofula, Cancer, Rheumatism, Gout and other hereditary troubles may escape till then, but as they age the blood, so long tainted and weakened by accumulated waste matters, is no longer able to properly nourish the body, and it becomes an easy mark for disease. At this critical period of life the blood must be re-enforced before it can perform its legitimate functions and rid the system of these poisons, and nothing so surely and effectually does this as S. S. S.

S. S. S. strengthens and enriches the blood, improves the appetite, and builds up the general constitution. It is not only the best blood purifier, but the best tonic for old people. It warms the blood, tones up the nerves, removes all taint from the blood, and prevents the development of disease.

S. S. S. is the only purely vegetable blood medicine known. Not one particle of mercury, potash or other mineral poison can be found in it, and it may be taken for any length of time without harm.

S. S. S. is the only remedy that reaches deep-seated blood troubles like Scrofula, Cancer, Rheumatism, Eczema, Tetter, etc. It purifies and restores the blood to a healthy, normal condition, and makes it impossible for any poisonous waste materials to accumulate.

If you have an old running sore or an obstinate ulcer that refuses to heal, or are troubled with boils and carbuncles, try S. S. S. It never fails to make a quick and permanent cure of these pests. If your system is run down and you feel the need of a tonic, S. S. S. will strengthen and help you as it has many others to a happy, healthy old age.

Mrs. D. R. Johnson, of Blackshear, Ga., was for years afflicted with a severe type of rheumatism, and had used every remedy known and recommended as a cure without receiving any benefit. S. S. S. promptly reached the seat of the disease and made a complete and permanent cure.

If you are in doubt about your disease, and will send us a statement of your case, our physician will give you any information or advice wanted, for which we make no charge. Book on Blood and Skin Diseases sent to any desiring it. Address Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.
