Public officials should truly be satisfied with their large, fat incomes, and not imagine or pretend to own or profit in all the perquisites attached thereto.

> The above advertisement would have been worth about $30. The amount would neither "make" nor "brake" us in business, and, while it is a bit of nice money to a publisher, we desire hereby more to call attention to the conduct of such officials than lament the amount diverted from us. Further, the time has come for a check to practices and abuses that the party and the public will not approve.

If all time-honored and recognized customs of political parties, pledges of honor, good faith among men, and obligations fairly incurred, count as naught -can be violated by officials, as soon as installed in their fat positions, who arrogantly act as though they were only a law unto themselves-then the publisher of this paper has committed a afternoon. grievous offense in calling attention to it; but our moral instinct, and common

Senator Heinle, of Centre, one of the Democratic Senators, had this to say of the renewed pledges : "We have heard these promises so often and they have been so often broken that we can only await results. It is a well known fact that in response to the public demand all of the political parties incorporated ballot and primary election reforms as one of the leading features of their platforms. The Quayites were forced into that position by the straightforward position maintained by the democratic organization, and throughout the state during the campaign their orators promised the people they would co-operate that section. with us to correct the wrong. But the people are used to being fooled. What can a member of the legislature say to his people if he is forced to go home without having been able to aid in giving the people what they demand? How can he explain? "There is only one way to make sure that we will not have to make embarrassing explanations. That way is to insist now and to continue to insist and primary election reform be given the consideration that it demands, and that it be taken up as it should be, first.' According to custom of former prothonotaries, and common fairness, the above advertisement, Application for Liquor Licenses in Centre County for 1901, should have appeared in the columns of the Centre Democrat last week In that way the most of the democratic voters in the county would have secured the desired information, and the publisher of this paper obtained a bit of legal patronage to which he was entitled, by turn, this year, as it is two years since the present prothonotary, M. I. Gardner, recognized this paper with the same. This official seems to think now that he is "the whole push" (as the boys term it, when an official gets an exaggerated idea of his 1m. portance and position, compared with others who assisted him to his proud eminence,) and in the disposition of the little patronage, of various kinds, at his command, allots it as best suits personal whims and petty prejudices, and spites, tegardless of his obligations as an official or the recognized cu-tom of his prede. cessors in fairly dividing the patronage, and from whose action there never was a bit of complaint. Not alone printers, even attorneys and others are protesting and waiting.

In ignoring the 2700 patrons of this paper he evidently deems them of little importance and grossly violates all sense of decency and fairness as well. There was a time, at the close of the campaign of 1898 when he, then plain M. I. Gardner, was very anxious to use these columps to reach the many readers of the Centre Democrat and we cheerfully came to his rescue, working day and night grip. with our entire outfit, to issue a special 5000 edition of this paper at a critical moment, almost the eve. of election, to then meet and attempt to refute a very serious charge, in which-even at that time-his integrity was at issue, from another paper in this town.

This same gentleman, in the same campaign, without our solicitation, came to this office and volunteered his most solean pledge, that in case he should be elected he would treat this paper with all the consideration and fairness possible-a pledge unsought, even unnecessary, from a MAN-and this is how he kept it. Others can give testimony of similar actions, and are doing it.
