Treason on the Floor of the House.

A GOOD MAN GONE WRONG.

Dared to Stand Up and Criticise the Administration.

A TIP FOR SENATOR MARK HANNA.

He Should Have a Law Passed Creating and Defining the Crime of Lese Majesty-General Merritt on the Constitution-Poses as a Jurist. Uncle Mark's War Record - Mark Twain Runs Amuck on Imperialism-General Harrison a Thorn In the Republican Flesh-Riot of Extravagance-The Next Speaker.

[Special Washington Letter.] Away with him to the block! Seth W. Brown, a Republican congressman from Ohio, is the latest traitor to stand up in the house and with front of brass to mouth treason. Nothing short of the guillotine will do him any good. He should be made an example to all the idiots and criminals who still dare to believe and assert that the Declaration of Independence is not a historic lie. Senator Mark Hanna is neither wise as a serpent nor harmless as a dove. His lack of wisdom is shown in this: For some time, as a sort of amicus curiæ, I have been advising him gratuitously to have a law passed creating and defining the crime of leze majesty and providing pains and penalties therefor, warning him that in that way, and that way alone, could he muzzle free speech in this country as he has done in the Philippines. For some reason he has not accepted my friendly counsel, though it would have saved him more trouble than all the senile chatter he hears in the senate in a month of Sun-

The first fruit of his neglect to follow my suggestion was that General Benjamin Harrison, once president of the republic, broke into speech and print with a lot of treasonable rubbish which must vex sorely the patriotic heart of Hanna as he revolves in his capacious head new plans for "benevolent assimilation." Unfortunately, the pestiferous Benjamin has a bad habit of catching the public ear. Millions read eagerly what this hoary headed traitor has to say, and, sad to relate, many believe his utterances. His remarks are widely copied and are safely stored in divers and sundry scrapbooks for future use and ready reference. Benjamin, to Mark's disgust, does not take kindly to our newfangled imperialism.

Remark of a Great Jurist. When Mark does enact his leze majesty statute, he will have to run counter to the constitution and make it act as an ex post facto law in order to catch General Harrison, but that won't matter, as that immortal jurist, General Wesley Merritt, who accumulated his store of legal lore by dancing attendance on drumhead courts martial, has declared in an ex cathedra sort of way: "The constitution is played out. It is not worth discussing." That settles it. But when General Harrison is arraigned at the bar on the ex post facto charge of leze majesty-perhaps of high treason to Mark-he can throw himself on the mercy of the court and allege as a palliating circumstance the doctrine of heredity, showing conclusively that a love of liberty, which is becoming unfashionable and dangerous under Mark's regime, runs in the Harrison blood, citing as incidents that one of his ancestors helped chop off the royal head of Charles I; that his great-grandfather, "Bluff" Ben Harrison, signed a certain antiquated and obsolete paper, yclept "The Declaration of Independence," which was saturated with treason to his gracious majesty King George III; that his grandfather, General William Henry Harrison, spent his whole life, and a long one at that, upholding the glory of a republic, doing some extraordinarily good fighting at a place called Tippecanoe, for which he was made president of the United States proper; that he himself, Benjamin Harrison, prisoner and defendant for four years, bared his breast and risked his life on numerous battlefields in defense of Old Glory, while Senator Hanna was serving the country by means of a substitute, for which service in his own proper person he was also made president of the United States proper by the unthinking hol polloi, as was his grandfather before him, while Marcus A. Hanna was made a senator of the United States, proper or improper, by a venal legislature and boss in chief of the Republican party as a reward for the fighting which he did and the blood which he shed vicariously through his substitute. Perchance in this way General Harrison may save his white head and reduce his punishment to forfeiture of estate and to perpetual banishment from our imperial court.

Still Another Traitor. General Harrison is not the only traitor who has set his tongue a-wagging and who has taken his pen in hand by reason of Mark's unaccountable negligence in adopting my advice. A vagrant, globe trotting scribbler named Samuel L. Clemens, better known by his sobriquet of "Mark Twain," was emboldened by General Harrison's example to indite certain reflections designed-admirably designed-to bring our imperialistic fad into contempt and to make it and its propa-yond all peradventure that he is as of economist successfully. A wise man great a master of irony as of humor, ri- once said to me, "There is just one valing Voltaire, Frederick the Great and thing the Republicans can't do, and John James Ingalls in the former as he rivals Henry Fielding, Abraham Lincoln and Artemus Ward in the latter. Now, Mark has tabernacled in the flesh appropriations have grown in riotous considerably more than threescore years and consequently ought to have known better than to run amuck on Mark's imperialistic host. His case is a sad one and is a fresh illustration of the truth of the ancient saw that "an old fool is the greatest of all fools." When Mark hauls him to the bar on a charge of leze majesty and when it is everlastingly too late to do him any good, Mark will learn several things, inter alia that age like ignorance does not excuse. In extenuation of his treason he may plead that he is a Missourian and therefore must be shown; also that millions love him not for the enemies he has made, but for the children of the brain which he has begotten, among whom are Colonel Mulberry Sellers, Scotty Briggs, Senator Dillworthy, Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn.

The Unkindest Cut of All. But by failing, refusing and neglecting to hearken unto me Mark brought upon himself a worse calamity than the treason of Harrison and Clemens. The former is a resident of Indiana and might be shunted out of the way as a "political has been." The latter is a citizen of Connecticut and might be got rid of by being denounced as a "joker," but while millions of eyes were glued to the pages of The North American Review, reading the effusions of General Harrison and Mark Twain, a fierce fire from the rear was poured into Mark's grand army of imperialists by an Ohio statesman-an Ohio statesman still in harness, and a Republican Ohlo statesman at that-Hon. Seth W. Brown, representing the district containing the sacred tomb of Rutherford B. Hayes, who committed the monumental theft of all the ages by stealing from Samuel J. Tilden the presidency of the United States.

> That was the most unkindest cut of all. Then you and I and all of us fell down,

While bloody treason flourished over us. Since Seth Thoma's invented his clock no man named Seth has accomplished so great a work as Seth Brown will accomplish if he succeeds by hook or crook, finesse or main strength, in securing the passage of the resolution which he has introduced into the house and which runs in these words:

Resolved by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled, That it is the purpose of the United States in retaining possession of the Philippine Islands to aid their inhabitants, when they submit to the authority of the United States, in establishing a capable and stable free government, and when this purpose shall be fully accom-plished the United States, under such reservations and conditions as may be wise and just, will re-linquish sovereignty in those islands.

Seth Brown of Ohlo.

If Brother Brown gets that through, in history he will be known as The Brown. Tom Brown of Rugby, old John Brown of Osawatomie, Brown-Sequard (he of the goat lymph) and all the rest of the Browns will not be comparable to Seth Brown, Ohioan, Republican, statesman. When Mark heard of Brown's treason, he must have felt as did imperial Cæsar on a celebrated and lamentable occasion when in agony of both soul and flesh he exclaimed "Et tu, Brute!" It was bad enough for General Harrison and Mark Twain to hamstring Mark's imperial charges, but they are onty "outlanders," while Brown is a member of the household troops. He is a Buckeye, belongs to the elect and, being an Ohloan, was born to hold office as naturally as the sparks fly upward. That Brown should introduce the foregoing iconoclastic resolution must be rated as among the most astounding and mystifying phenomena of our times. He not only did that, but he made a speech, and it was a tiptop speech at that. Among other things he said:

A colonial policy will be liable to lead us into entangling alliances and very likely to involve us not destroy, the doctrine under which we have defended the little states of the new world against encroachments from the old world. If we ineist on our right to hold colonies in the eastern hemisphere, by what right will we demand that foreign powers shall not hold colonies in the western used to say this to them. Why, bless my soul! That was spoken like a Democrat and a patriot. It reads like the speeches we Democrats made a year and two years ago. Evidently Mr. Brown has been perusing them to some purpose. He was a little late in waking up, but better late than never. Clearly Brown will have to be hanged for treason. Nothing else will Riotous Totals. When the Fifty-first congress was reproachfully denominated "the billion dollar congress," Hon. Thomas Brackett Reed sneeringly said, "Well, this is a billion dollar country," as though that settled it. Republican freebooters everywhere hugged themselves with delight and rapturously exclaimed, "Big Tom is awfully cute!" So they, deeming his epigram a sufficient defense for all sorts of raids upon the can's president, and personally he is a public treasury, have gone on from one most attractive man. outrage to another until conservative Republicans are beginning to be alarm-"Uncle Joe" Cannon is a watchdog of the treasury in spots and undertakes spasmodically and sporadically to gandists the laughing stock of all crea- choke off the looters, but he is evident-

Mark's article demonstrates be iy in the wrong pew to play the role that is to economize." Consequently, notwithstanding "Uncle Joe's" occasional attempts at retrenchment, the totals until the expenditures of the Fifty-sixth congress will exceed the enormous and incomprehensible sum of a billion and a half of dollars!

The poet Campbell says: I watch the wheels of nature's mazy plan

And judge the future from the past of man. Applying that rule, if Mr. Reed lives five years he will be compelled to still further revise his sneer so as to read, "Well, this is a two billion dollar country!" provided the Republicans are not kicked out by an indignant people. Piling Pelion upon Ossa was a holiday performance beside the piling of appropriation upon appropriation by the Republicans. "Alps on Alps arise." Senator Vest in the conclusion of his great speech against the colossal ship subsidy bill declared that the Republicans, drunk with victory, will do anything. He was right. They squander millions of dollars with as little ceremony as the average citizen takes a drink of water. It is wicked and wanton waste. They are so utterly reckless that even Senator Hale of Maine felt compelled the other day to warn his Republican brethren against the day of wrath-the dies irm. He was as one crying in the wilderness.

Thomas Jefferson placed "economy in the public service that labor may be lightly burdened" among the cardinal principles of the Democratic creed. The Power to Tax.

Chief Justice Marshall in a great case declared, "The power to tax is the power to destroy.'

Both Jefferson, the great Democrat, and Marshall, the great Federalist, were right.

Republicans are using the taxing power with such ruthless hand that they will so outrage the people as to cause the destruction not of the country, let us hope, but of the Republican party. It is said that even the worm will turn at last. Perhaps the American people will finally grow weary of being robbed.

In 1842 the expenditures of the federal government were $1.39 for every man, woman and child. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902, for which congress is now making appropriations, every man, woman and child in the republic will be compelled to contribute about $11 to help run the federal government. That is to say, now it costs every man, woman and child $9.61 per annum more to support Uncle Sam than it did 58 years ago! Truly our Uncle Samuel's appetite grows with what it feeds on. Like the horse leech's daughter, he still cries: "Give! Give!" An overburdened people are beginning to groan, "How long, O Lord, how long!"

Can any living man give any reason why the expenses of the federal government should be eight times as great now year by year as they were in 1842? I wot not. Is our government more beneficently administered now than it was then? I trow not.

Republicans run the government on the plan-

They shall take who have the power,

And they shall keep who The Next Speaker.

Some Washington correspondent possessed of an exuberant imagination and impelled by the necessity of having something with which to fill up space recently stated a canard to the effect that General David B. Henderson is liable-indeed likely-to be defeated for re-election to the speakership. I will do a little prophesying on my own hook and cheerfully await the verification thereof, and it is this: Only three things can prevent Henderson's re-election-(1) his death, (2) his positive declination, (3) the world coming to an end. Henderson is universally popular with Republicans, Democrats and Populists. He tries to be fair in his rulings and generally is fair. He is generous to a fault. His bonhomie is unfailing. He wears his heart upon his sleeve. I never heard any representative of any party speak an unkind work of him, and I never heard him speak an unkind word of any representative. If at the beginning of the next congress the Republican caucus should say to the Democratic caucus, "You must elect a speaker, and he must be a Republican," Henderson would carry the Democratic caucus by an almost unanimous vote. He was made to be loved, and he is loved. The only bad thing about him is his politics.

It Is Done. At 1 o'clock p. m. Wednesday, Feb. 13. Hon. William P. Frye of Maine, with the senate at his heels, came into the hall of the house, the two houses went into joint session, and William McKinley was for a second time formally elected president of the most puissant republic that ever existed, being the ninth man upon whom this great honor has been bestowed, the highest honor which the world has to give. The cup of his ambition is full. Henceforth there is nothing for him but to bend all his energies to place himself in the very small group of the really great presidents by four years consecrated absolutely to the good of the American people. In that way and that way alone can he hope to be mentioned in the days to come with Washington, Jefferson, Jackson and Lincoln. He has a golden opportunity to achieve a noble and enduring fame. From the bottom of my heart I hope he will seize It with resolute hand and brave, unfaltering heart. I did not vote for him, but he is my president, every Ameri-

MODERN MISERS.

Men Who Starve Themselves to Accumulate Money.

There is a certain fearful fascination about the stories of the misers of the past. The money they accumulated was of no more practical value to them than the trinkets stolen and secreted by some magpie or jackdaw. They hid it from the sight and use of men and in silence secret gloated over the useless wealth. To gather it they lived on crusts or offal, grudged clothes to cover them and fire to warm them, lived starved lives and in not a few cases died of starvation. That was the old-time miser. The modern miser resembles this man of the past in the particular that he frequently dies of starvation. In his eagerness to gather money he pays small heed to the claims of health. He eats anything, anyhow, anywhen, and anywhere. He doesn't eat crusts by any means nor spare his purse to fill his stomach. The mistake he makes is in thinking that when a man has filled his stomach, that is the end of the business of feeding. Instead of being the end of feeding it's only the beginning. There is no value in food unless it is digested, converted into nutrition and These processes depend assimilated. upon the healthfulness of the stomach and the other organs of digestion and nutrition. When these organs are diseased they cannot extract the nutrition from the food received into the stomach and the body becomes weak through lack of nourishment. One day this "weakness" begins to find a special development in some chief organ, heart, liver, lungs, kidneys, etc., to which the man succumbs. The doctor's certificate reads "heart disease," "kidney disease," as the case may be. But the real reading of the certificate should be:

STARVED TO DEATH.

The truth of this statement is appar-The body is sustained by food digested and assimilated. But the body is made up of its parts and organs, and when the stomach is "weak," digestion imperfect, and the nutrition extracted on food inadequate to the needs of the body, the result is shared by every part and organ of the body. For this reason no man is stronger than his stomach, and no organ sustained by the stomach can be stronger than the stomach. Therefore when we hear of "weak" stomach we are pretty sure we are going to hear in time of "weak" heart, "weak' lungs, "weak" kidneys, or weakness of some other organ of the body dependent on the stomach and its associated organs digestion and nutrition.

Now these things being true when a man has heart "trouble," liver "trouble," kidney "trouble," etc., where is the first place to look for the cause of the disease? Why, where else can it be but the stomach? The most probable cause of these forms of "weakness" is deficient nutrition resulting from the "weak' condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. And if these diseases of heart, liver, lungs, kidneys, etc., begin in the stomach they must be cured through the stomach. IT'S AN EVERY DAY AFFAIR to receive letters reporting the cure of diseased kidneys, weak heart, torpid liver, or lung "trouble" through the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Dis-

But one may say, "'Golden Medical Discovery ' is a medicine for the stomach and blood, in particular."

Exactly so. And that is why it cures diseases remote from the stomach but which have their origin in disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and digestive and nutritive systems. The food taken into the body is then converted into nutrition which is supplied to heart, lungs, kidneys, and other organs which are made strong by nutrition. Disease is thrown off. New strength comes to every tissue and fiber of the body. "I suffered for four years with pain in my stomach so that at time I couldn't work nor eat, writes Mr. Frank Smith. o Granite, Chaffee Co., Colo 'I wrote to you about my sickness and was told to use your medicine, which I did with good results I only used four bottle of your 'Golden Medica Discovery,' and must sa that I am entirely cured and feel like a new man and I can highly recom mend your medicine t any sufferer."

"I was troubled with malarial fever of about three years' standing and was under doctors' care for quite a time," writes Mr. J. F. Kidd of Parmleysville, Wayne County, Ky They had almost given me up, and my suffering was very great. My pulse was weak, breath short and I had severe pains in back, head and legs. Had palpitation of heart, and from June 1st, 1895, to May 1st, 1898, I was not able to do day's work. I purchased five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and before I had finished taking the firs two bottles I was very much better o my disease of three years' standing. continued taking the medicine, and by the time the fifth bottle was gone I was a well man. I can cheerfully recom mend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Dis covery to any similar sufferer."

"In 1898, one of my daughters wa suffering on account of a severe cough hectic fever, wasting of flesh and othe symptoms of diseased lungs," writes Rev oseph H. Fesperman, of Barium Spring Iredell Co., N. C. "I promptly gave he Dr. R. V. Pierce's Golden Medical Dis covery, with gratifying success, and she now enjoys excellent health. This exerience caused me to recommend Dr. Pierce's medicines to my neighbors, who, without exception, used them with favorable results. This being true, I hereby heartily endorse your medicines."
