The funeral of Edward DeHass took place from his late home on Fairview street Sunday afternoon, services being held in the Disciple church.

One morning last week the citizens of this borough awoke to find on every lamp post the sign "Por sale or rent—terms easy." Everybody understood that. The new council has organized with Samuel Glossner, president; George C. McGhee, secretary; Peter C. Gould, borough treasurer; Joseph M. Linn was elected street commissioner.

In the Presbyterian Sabbath school last Sunday the following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year: Superintendent George D. Hess; assistant superintendent Captain J. A. Quigley; secretary W. E. Clark; assisting secretary Harry H. Fearon; treasurer J. A. Quigley; chorist F. P. Treaster; organist Miss Jessie Deise. Mr. Hess is serving his twenty-fifth consecutive year as superintendent of this Sabbath school which this year celebrates its fortieth anniversary.

Coburn.

Adam Rote, of Hartleton, was visiting his old friends in town last week.

The Misses Esta Smith, of Millheim, and Annie Wolf, of Fredrick, two accomplished young ladies, spent Sunday at the home of T. W. Hosterman.

Miss Cordella Acker, of Aaronburg, spent Saturday with Mella Meyer.

Perry Wingart, of Georgetown, would like to know who helped himself to his chickens a few nights ago. Someone please tell him; there's a quarter in it.

Lewis Boob, of Aaronburg, transacted some business in town on Tuesday.

Mrs. Reuben Boyes, of Hartleton, Pa., was a visitor in town Tuesday.

On Saturday night the chicken thieves broke into the henry of S. M. Campbell and captured some of his choice chickens. The party should be brought to justice, as they are getting bolder with their depredations.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Gephart gave an evening social Friday in honor of Miss Ada Barry, of Johnston, who is visiting them. It was the event of the season and was attended by about fifty guests, and all spent a delightful evening.

S. M. Campbell, the undertaker, had five interments last week.

The last act in the Main street canal was the whitewashing by the auditors. The annual statement shows the most profitable and lawful expenditure of the public money; the increase is over four hundred per cent to what it was in the beginning when new and useful improvements were made, which is not the case now, and a decrease of about 10 per cent in population and a borough debt. Scranton has 12 councilmen in the toils, Millheim should have about 7. All the public throughfares through town are toll roads and should be kept up by the different corporations. Now the query is, what is done with the money or where does it go to?

Hannah.

Frank Owens, of McKean Co., visited friends at this place recently.

Uncle Johnnie Loyd is among us again. We forgot to note the moving of David Hardy of this place, to Tyrone, some time ago.

Samuel Hoover is having shingle bolts cut on his land along the Allegheny mountains; Rankin McMontigal is doing the sawing.

One day last week, while George Kelly and little grand son were driving through Hannah, the horse became frightened at some boys along the road-side, and started to run and whirling around threw the inmates out of the cart, hurting the boy some about the head. He then ran down through the field, smashing the cart and jumped into the creek, after which he started for home, when he was met by A. V. Williams' delivery wagon. The driver jumped out and caught the horse and brought it back to this place.

Last week one day while Wm. Stiner was helping a young lady across the creek, near his home, she became dizzy and fell off the foot log. In his efforts to save her, he too was precipitated into the rushing waters, and then such a dashing and splashing—it really seemed quite a serious affair for a few moments; but, finally succeeded in reaching the shore in safety. Both decided not to attempt another bath of that kind till warm weather; in the mean time they will go swimming in the washbasin.

Walker.

Among the sick are, Mrs. Clark McClintic, Mrs. Jas. Martin, Mrs. Joel Kling and Walter Yearick.

Fashions in Photographs.

There are fashions in all things. Photographs are not made, either, by the same process, nor mounted similarly to those of a year ago.

You will like our new styles and light cards. Our photos, thus mounted, are real reminders of friendship.

See our display cases. Always something interesting, too. Frames made to order from our mouldings still continue to please. Our line is worth seeing.
