

SIGNOR CRISPI DEAD

Italy's Former Premier Succumbs After Long Illness.

A SHORT SKETCH OF HIS CAREER

Family Was Fifty Hours At His Bedside Before the End Came—His Affairs Reported In Great Confusion.

Funeral Arranged Before His Death.

Naples, Aug. 12.—Signor Crispi died at 7.46 o'clock last night.

He was surrounded by the members of his family and several intimate friends. The news was immediately telegraphed to King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena.

The evening papers assert that the body will be conveyed by steamer to Palermo, where the municipality will arrange for a great public funeral. It is rumored that Signor Crispi's will authorizes a prominent Italian politician to examine his papers and to publish his memoirs.

Some indignation was expressed when the public learned that the details of the funeral had been arranged before death came. It is rumored that the affairs of the deceased are in the greatest confusion, and that Signora will have to depend solely on the proceeds of the sale of the memoirs. The body will be embalmed and will lie in state for three days in the drawing room of the Villa Sina, in Naples, the walls of which are decorated with frescoes representing the principal episodes of the Garibaldi epoch.

A great state funeral will be held in Naples before the body is removed to Palermo. King Victor Emmanuel will be represented at the obsequies.

His wife and daughter did not leave the bedside for 50 hours and their friends were compelled to use loving violence to induce them to quit the chamber. When all was over Princess Linguaglossa fainted and had to be carried off by her husband.

Francesco Crispi, of whom it was said that he was the most hated man in Italy until a crisis arose in the government, when he was called its saviour, was 82 years old. It has been given to few men to play as many parts on the stage of life.

His first assignment was as assistant to Father Henneberry, the pastor of St. Pius' church, Chicago. There the young clergyman began to assert himself and make his activity felt, first in the affairs of the parish and then of the archdiocese.

His ability as a director was recognized early and he was appointed chancellor of the archdiocese of Chicago. During the world's fair he attracted much attention as secretary of the Catholic exhibition, which received such favorable recognition. In 1895 he resigned the chancellorship to become the pastor of St. Charles Borromeo church, Twelfth and Cypress streets.

The resignation of James G. Stowe from the office of consul general of the United States at Cape Town, Cape Colony, has been received at the state department. Col. Stowe says the salary of $8,000 is not sufficient for his expenses, and he is, therefore, compelled to leave the consular service.

Cape Town, he explains, is the most expensive place in the world, but the salary is not as large as that of some consuls at posts where living is cheap. Other governments recognize this, and

Col. Stowe points out that the consul of Spain there gets $1,200 more than the salary of the American consul general, the Dutch consul $2,000 more, the French, $4,500 more, and the German, $7,000 more, and this in the face of the fact that American trade interests in Cape Colony are more extensive and important than those of any other country. In addition to their salaries, some foreign consular officers at Cape Town are furnished with residences, rent free, while the American consul general pays his own rent.

Col. Stowe remarks that it cost him nearly a year's salary, traveling expenses not being allowed to the United States consular officers, to bring his family of three from the United States to Cape Town and back to the United States. When he came home recently on leave of absence he was obliged to leave his family here, because it cost too much to take them back.

Col. Stowe's legal residence is Kansas City, Mo. He has been consul general at Cape Town since January 10, 1898.

prise to his friends in the church, as it had been expected in ecclesiastical circles that Rome would take such action.

Rev. P. J. Muldoon has been prominently before the Catholic public for the last ten years. Born at Columbia, Cal., in 1863, his elementary education was received in the schools of that town. At the age of 14 years he was matriculated at the collegiate school of St. Mary's, Louisville.

Graduating from that institution, he pursued his studies for the priesthood at St. Mary's seminary, Baltimore. He completed his course when 23 years old and was ordained and admitted to the priesthood.
