M'KINLEY'S BIRTHPLACE.

A Festive Occasion.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eaton, at Unionville, was the scene of a select assemblage of good people on a recent occasion. It was in honor of the Cadwalader family which is one of the most distinguished lineal descendants of Revolutionary fame. The family to which reference is here made, were residents of Unionville for the past half century, but recently located in Philadelphia. Over half a hundred friends attended the occasion, quite a number of which parties being from Bellefonte and Milesburg, as well as various other places in Centre county. To these were added Miss Kate McCormick and a full quota of friends from different sections of the state. Mrs. Trippe, of Bellefonte, and Miss Mame DeLong, of Milesburg, were among the guests. The supper and refreshments were not nearly so much intended for the delectation of the epicure as they were for the participants of the occasion. At all events it was clearly proven that the delectables fully suited those who partook of the courtesies. Mrs. Eaton is one of those ladies who believes and follows the scriptural injunctions of making all her guests feel at home so long as they are under her supervision. Much praise is due to Mrs. Cleaver and daughters, Bertha and Florence, for adding to the festivities of the occasion, especially Miss Bertha, whose rendition of vocal and instrumental music was excellent.

TO CORRESPONDENTS:—At present the Centre Democrat devotes two entire pages to the letters from our numerous correspondents over the county. This requires a vast amount of labor to prepare and put in type. Of late many of the correspondents have been a little tardy in the week, so that a great many of the letters do not reach us before Wednesday noon, and the first side of the paper goes to press on that evening. The result is that we get crowded and can't give the same proper attention. We make this explanation so that they will understand why it is important to mail these letters earlier in the week. We can handle some correspondents on Wednesday, and have no trouble, but when the bulk comes in at that time it is too much for us. We are under great obligations to our correspondence for supplying us with the news as they have, and we know that every community that is represented in these columns doubly appreciates the publication of the important happenings in their respective location, and is of value to them and their friends. We want the news, and will publish it gladly, and all we ask is that you send the same to us regularly and as early in the week as possible.

Killed at VanScoyoc.

At 4 o'clock Friday afternoon Robert Welch, son of John Welch, of Vail, was instantly killed at VanScoyoc station. Welch is a section hand on the Tyrone and Clearfield railroad, and on account of disability of his father Robert had been occupying the place since Wednesday morning. At the time of the accident, Robert and the other hands of the gang were in the act of cutting a rail, and when the heavy iron was "thrown," to break it, by some means the young man was caught, and he fell with his head directly under the rail, crushing it and causing almost instant death. The rail weighed 850 pounds. The lifeless body was picked up and conveyed to the family home at Vail.

Deceased was born near Stormstown on the 25th of April, 1887, and at death was 14 years, 4 months and 18 days old.

THE DEGREE HE PREFERRED.

One of Those of Which He Had the Smallest Number Was the Bishop's Choice.

A prominent university had invited a distinguished ecclesiastic to be present at its commencement exercises and to deliver an address. After he had signified his acceptance of the invitation the university authorities thought that it would be a very graceful act on their part to show their appreciation of his presence by conferring upon him an honorary degree, and so in order to arrange the matter in proper form they delegated one of their number to visit the bishop and notify him of their intentions, relates The Bookman.

The person selected for this mission was a callow young professor who had not long occupied his chair, and who still regarded his university as representing pretty nearly all the world that counts and a portion of the rest of the universe besides. He was immensely impressed with the importance of this mission and with the general tremendousness of the honor which he was going to announce. Reaching the city where the bishop lived he went to the episcopal residence and, after sending in his card, was ushered into the bishop's study. With bated breath and many circumlocutions, lest the bishop should be too much overcome if the news were sprung upon him without a certain amount of preparation, he delivered the message with which he had been charged.

"I have also to inform you," he added, "that the university will consult your preference in the matter of the degree and will confer upon you the one that you would most desire to have."

"Oh!" said the bishop. "Let me see. What particular degree did they have in mind?"

"Of course the very highest—one which belongs to the doctorate: LL. D., D. D., S. T. D. or D. C. L."

"Well," said the bishop, looking out of the window and then at his watch, "suppose you make it a D. C. L. I think I have fewer of those than of the other kinds."

It took the callow young professor a long time to recover from the shock, but when he came to think it over it probably taught him something he had never known before.

Something New in Mechanics.

Great is the humor of woman—when she doesn't mean it. Great is the nerve of woman—when she doesn't need it. And great are the nerves of woman—when it so pleases her. This combination is blamable for the following: A very pretty girl sat in a Long Island railroad train enroute for Manhattan Beach. Suddenly the whistle blew. It is perhaps not necessary to say that a Long Island railroad whistle is more efficacious than otherwise. It is tuned to the key of W and is operated with a great diapason giving out a different brand of yelping shriek from anything known to nature. To repeat, the whistle whistled. "Oooow," cried the pretty girl. "Isn't it awful? I should think the railroad company would have those things oiled. It is an outrage!" Her companion had often heard of wetting whistles, but never heard before of oiling them. Think it over.—Brooklyn Times.

A Mistake Somewhere.

"How many times has your cousin been married?" "Once. What do you mean?" "I thought you said she was on the stage."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Plenty of Moonshine Liquor.

Hot Weather Toilet Hint.

A dash of toilet vinegar or eau de cologne in the bowl of water before you wash your face will be found refreshing.

Kentucky's Voice.

has often been heard in our nation's affairs and her sons are ever ready to lend their voices and influence for the aid of mankind. From her beautiful mountain country, where, as a noted writer has said "the hills are so straight up, they lean back," writes A. M. Hughes, a druggist of Louisiana: "Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is all that can be desired. My customers call for it more and more and physicians, who as a rule are not quick to endorse patent medicines frequently prescribe it." 25 cents a bottle at Green's Pharmacy.

No matter how bad it may be, the bandmaster has to face the music.

BOYS' CLOTHING...

From the way mothers come here for their Boys' Clothes means that both Price and Quality must be "all right." Never in the history of this store have so many suits been sold so early in the season. It is because many new customers are being added to our list every day. They realize that ours is the Best made Boy's Clothing in Central Penna. In any suit every seam is doubly reinforced, sewed with silk, pants seams taped, pants with double knees and seats, some lined throughout, elastic bands, strong pockets. In fact they are made to stand the rough treatment they will give them. The Prices always suit the purse.

The line for this season is the largest we ever had. There are many interesting articles here if you but leave us show you them. The overcoats are here—a little too early to buy them—not too early to become acquainted with the styles.

Better investigate these sayings, it will pay you.
