

CARDBOARD FANCY WORK.

THE MATERIAL MAKES GOOD FOUNDATIONS FOR BASKETS AND BOXES.

Card Receivers, Workbaskets and Bonbon Baskets May Be Fashioned In This Way and Covered With Stuffs Ornately Decorated.

Fancy work which consists of articles cut out of cardboard, covered, decorated and devoted to household use have long been favored among makers of holiday souvenirs. They are easy to construct and cost very little. They may be so beautified as to make a very handsome appearance. The uses to which cardboard may be put are manifold. From hairpin baskets covered with silk, with which the small girl surprises her mamma on Christmas morning, to the dainty hand painted wall frames it would seem that "age cannot wither nor custom stale its infinite variety."

Baskets and boxes are especially easy to make with cardboard foundations. These are glued or sewed together and then covered with the decorating material, sometimes silk, sometimes paper.

Any one who is familiar with crape paper work can achieve wonders with cardboard. The framework should be covered with crape paper in some delicate, harmonious tint and then beautified with clusters of artificial flowers made of paper and held in place by bows of ribbon.

A Card Receiver.

Dainty baskets for holding anything light and dry may be made by childish fingers, the only difficulty being in the cutting out of the sections. Seven pieces cut from heavy cardboard, such as is used by bookbinders, are needed.

PRETTY CARD RECEIVER.

When the cardboard is cut, each piece is to be covered on both sides with silk or some other pretty stuff. The edges are turned in and overcast. When they are all covered, the sections are put together as shown in the illustration and sewed together by overhand stitches. The points are then bent outward, and where the covering material does not have a figure a small decalcomanie picture may be pasted on each point. Many other ways of ornamenting this basket will suggest themselves to the maker. Little worsted balls may be hung to the points or sequins in a fringe all around. If a layer of cotton is put between the covering and the pasteboard, the appearance is improved.

This basket will make a pretty card receiver. It can also be used as a receptacle for skeins or balls of embroidery silk. In that capacity it is called a workbasket. It may also be utilized to hold the family spools, needles and thimbles when mending is being done.

Clover Leaf Basket.

A good luck basket is a pleasant memento to receive. It should be shaped like a clover leaf. Three pieces are needed to shape the basket—one for the bottom, one for the side and the other for the handle. The clover leaf shape may be obtained by marking on cardboard three overlapping circles with a small saucer as guide. When the shape of the bottom of the basket is obtained, slash it half an inch deep. These indentations are to be turned up and glued against the side pieces of the basket. The side piece should be two inches high and as long as the outline of the clover leaf. Outside and inside the basket should be covered with some decorative material. The top and bottom are sewed together and the slit pieces glued in place. When the glue is dry, the outside is put on and a row of lace or ribbon doubled over the edge. The same is done at the bottom. The actual covering may be anything that will permit of the green clover leaf design being applied. The handle should be treated like the rest and finished by bows of ribbon to match. This basket should be filled with bonbons before it is presented to the person for whom it is intended. The bonbons may be made at home too. Confectioner's sugar beaten with the white of eggs and a little water is the basis for many delicious homemade confections. Nuts, chopped fruits, etc., are introduced to give variety or richness.

Attached to the clover leaf basket should be a card inscribed with the giver's name and the words "Good Luck."

AN UMBRELLA CASE.

A Convenience in Every Household and Therefore a Welcome Present.

Any busy person who has suffered through the careless habit prevailing in most households in regard to the storing of umbrellas will receive with appreciation the beautiful umbrella case sketched as a holiday gift. It is made to hold umbrellas and canes and is as useful when one is traveling as at home. The material of its cover is stout canvas in strong color. The inside has three pockets and two sets of straps to accommodate an umbrella, two parasols and two canes. The canvas is worked in loose scroll design with red silk. Each case is cut longer than an umbrella handle, and the corners are scalloped. There are rings by which the holder may be hung up, and there are two ribbons long enough to tie around the case when it is desired to fold it up for convenience in traveling or packing. Khaki may be substituted for canvas and many pretty effects be evolved in this trifle.

Christmas Gifts For Women. A pair of silver or glass candlesticks with rose colored shades will please the woman who takes pride in her pretty apartment. Equally suitable will be a square of silk or embroidered goods for a sofa cushion.

Hatpins are always acceptable to a woman. The dull gold beads set with small colored stones are pretty, and the large pearl beads are novel. Buckles of gun metal set with emeralds or amethysts are very beautiful and will bring delight to the heart of any woman who loves pretty things.

A pair of steel, gold or silver slipper buckles make a pretty present. A band of satin in black or the recipient's favorite color should be attached. An opera bag is a good present for the theater going girl. The newest and handsomest are made of wide gold ribbon spangled with gold or embroidered with beads. Others are of silk in gayly flowered Dresden or rich Persian design.

How to Make a Vell Case.

A pretty and useful Christmas gift is a vell case, the cover of which is fine white or colored linen, embroidered with dainty sprays of violets and bearing the following verse:

Within this dainty little case
Are tiny vells for thy dear face.

The lining is of lavender china silk, and the edge is finished with a cascade frill of chi-ton.

A novel applied pillow is illustrated here. It is a cushion any housewife will be proud to receive as a Yuletide gift. The actual labor of making it is not nearly so great as would appear. The groundwork is a soft silk of a neutral tint, so that the handwork will show to the best advantage. All sofa pillows are now made just eighteen inches square, but some look larger, as the ruffle adds to the apparent size. The upper part of the surface only is decorated. The applied leaves used in decorating are cut from dull canvas,

Your duplications have been so numerous that your stock must be very low. Some Overcoats and Suits in this lot are the kind you have just tried to get, so it will not come amiss. We also notice by your letter head that you have removed to larger quarters, thus you have the room to handle it.

You may wire us at our expense tomorrow morning if it will interest you. We can hold it until you come down and look this lot over.

Thanking you for past patronage, we remain,
Very truly yours,

Dict. G. R.

DID WE BUY THAT LOT?
WELL, WITHOUT A DOUBT.

A special trip to Philadelphia to look at it, to settle the price, and it was ours. It is not an experiment with us in buying their Clothing—we have handled it before and always will if they continue making and selling it as they have in the past.

We know, our customers know, and if you but give this Clothing a trial you will know, that

It is Stylish, It Fits, It Wears Well.

We have every Suit and Overcoat of this lot now on our tables. We bought it at a figure that will enable us to sell it, though making a fair profit, AT LESS THAN REGULAR WHOLESALE COST. We could even sell these Suits and Overcoats at prices based on regular wholesale cost and yet they would be cheap. But we are going to make this large store more famous for the selling of Fashionable, Wear-giving Clothing at the LOWEST PRICES. It will pay to buy one of these Suits or Overcoats, even though you hadn't counted on getting one until next winter.

We can't promise another opportunity like this, nor can we promise best selection to late comers.
