26 KILLED IN EXPLOSION

Boiler in a Detroit Plant Bursts With Terrific Force.

ENTIRE BUILDING IS WRECKED

Fire Broke Out and Added to Sufferings of Imprisoned Ones-Walls and Roof Dropped Into Shapeless Mass, Crushing Many.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 27 .- Twenty men are dead, ten of them unidentified and so terribly burned and blackened that identification is almost impossible, and 24 other men are lying in the various hospitals of the city suffering from terribie cuts and burns and other injuries, all results of the explosion of one of the boilers in the Penberthy Injector company's large plant at the corner of Abbott street and Brooklyn avenue, at 9.30 a. m. yesterday. Following are the dead: R. Bryant, A. E. Hoffman, Joseph Coffey, A. E. Miller, Eugene Bertram, Edward Burtsch, Charles Marion, Stephen Crisp, Patrick Malloy, J. Frye, Louis Henning, R. Mulkee, Joseph Koseck, George Schenor, Charles Lydy, Jacob Keobel, William Mann, Christopher Waldman, Robert Creer, John Schaible, Richard Ryan, Douglass Dickinson, a boy; Peter Doll, and five unidentified bodies.

Twenty-seven of the injured are in the hospitals. In addition to these a dozen or more of the employes, who suffered comparatively slight injuries, at the same table at which Mrs. Boaside from the shock, were taken directly to their homes.

The Penberthy Injector company's plant occupied half a square at the corner of Abbott street and Brooklyn avenue. The boiler room was located at the northwest corner of the building on the first floor. It is impossible to tell exactly how many men were at work in the various departments of the building when the explosion occurred, but the officers insist that the number was not over 85. There were four boilers in the plant, two horizontal ones, which furnished the steam for the engines, and two vertical ones, which were used solely to test injectors. It was the horizontal | night, about two hours before he met boiler that was in use which let go and caused the awful loss of life.

The awful crash came without the slightest warning. The floors and roof of the rear building bulged upward and then crashed down with their heavy loads of machinery and foundry apparatus. Walls, roof and all dropped into a shapeless mass of debris. Windows in houses for a block around were broken by the concussion, and flying bricks filled the neighboring yards. A dense cloud of dust arose, and as it settled it was succeeded by denser clouds of smoke and steam, while agonized cries began to come from the heap of tangled wood, metal and bricks. Those who were only partly buried frantically dug themselves out, and then as energetically turned to digging for their comrades who were buried deeper. Flames broke out almost immediately, and the horror of fire was added to the sufferings of the imprisoned ones. A fire alarm was turned in and quickly responded to. Calls were sent out for all the ambluances in the city, and they were hurried to the scene. Pending their arrival, neighboring houses were turned into temporary hospitals, and those physicians who were in the vicinity eased the sufferers as much as they were able. As soon as the gravity of the accident was realized calls for additional firemen were sent in, and the apparatus came flying to the scene from all parts of the city. While part of the firemen directed their efforts at the fire, which was burning flercely in the centre of the wreck, the greater number of them seized axes and crowbars and began prying out the victims who could be seen or whose faint cries were audible.

A Miraculous Escape. The floors and roof had fallen at an angle and formed a sort of huge cover, under which the fire burned fiercely. Not until the firemen had chopped through this did their streams begin to have an appreciable effect on the flames. The sufferings of those who were buried beneath were later mutely testified to by their charred and blackened bodies. Engineer Riley was among the first to be dug out from the wreck. His escape was little short of miraculous. When the boiler let go he was knocked to the floor and one of the smaller testing boilers was blown over his prostrate form in such a way that one end rested on some debris high above him, thereby forming a shield that kept the falling timbers, bricks and machinery from crushing him. The escaping steam, however, burned him frightfully. After his arrival at Grace Hospital Riley's first words were: "How did it happen? The engine and boilers were all

Gradually the rescuers worked their way downward through the pile. By this time there were no cries or groans to aid them, for the flames had destroyed those unfortunates who were not killed by the explosion or the fall. But the work of rescue was continued with unabated haste. When a heavy beam or piece or shafting was encountered a team of horses was driven in and the piece of wreckage hauled to the street. Stretcher-bearers stood beside the delvers and bore away the burned and blackened bodies. A vacant house adjoining the factory was converted into a temporary morgue; here the bodies were placed in coffins and taken to the nearest morgue. In several cases the charred corpses were so hot when recovered that they could scarcely be handled by the undertakers and their scene, and where many of the injured were carried in wagons, the floors of the reception rooms and even the halls were used as a temporary resting place for the victims. Similar scenes were enacted at Grace and Harper Hospitals.

The front building of the plant sustained comparatively little damage, considering the tremendous explosion within 16 feet of it. All the windows, of course, were broken and some of the machinery was slightly injured by the jar. The property loss is about $180,000. The firm carried $70,000 fire and some boiler insurance, but how much of the latter Secretary Tilder could not state.

Nothing is known as yet about the cause of the explosion. The boilers had been recently inspected, and the engineer was known as one of the most careful and capable men in

ASKED ABOUT CONFESSING

Mrs. Bonine Made Statement of lier Connection With Crime to Friend.

Washington, Nov. 27.-The fact was brought out yesterday in the trial of Mrs. Lola Ida Bonine for the killing of James Seymour Ayres, Jr., that she had made a private confession of her part in the tragedy on the evening after the homicide, several days before she took the police officials into her confidence. This recital was made to George B. Gardner, an attorney employed in the law division of the interior department, who was a boarder at the Kenmore Hotel and usually sat nine took her meals. Mr. Gardner was on the witness stand yesterday and told his story for the first time. He said that Mrs. Bonine had sought him out and asked his advice as to whether she should make a public statement, and that he had suggested to her that she should delay her confession until the theory of suicide, which was first entertained, should be fully exploited.

A number of other witnesses were heard during the day, several of them being men who had taken Ayres out to neighboring saloons during the evening of May 14, and one of whom had taken him to his room after midhis death. The witness who took Ayres to his room was a young man named Burns, who stated that when he left Ayres the latter was perfectly sober. These witnesses generally agreed that Ayres had taken about two glasses of beer, and that he was not under the influence of liquor. Burns said that on one occasion he had seen Ayres treat Mrs. Bonine contemptuously. He said she had nursed him (Burns) when sick and had visited his room both day and night.

He killed three of them with his revolver. An insurgent fired his rifle pointblank at Vanschaick at four paces, but missed. Lieutenant Vanschaick was then knocked from his horse. He jumped to his feet and engaged in a hand-to-hand conflict with the enemy, using the butt of his revolver. He sustained two severe wounds, one of which nearly severed his wrist. At this point the lieutenant's men arrived, rescued him and put the insurgents to flight. Vanschaick is in the military hospital at Manila and is
