MISTAKES OF ROOSEVELT

The New President results Gen. Nelson A. Miles

PEOPLE CENSURE HIS COURSE

The President Displays Bad Judgment—A Rebuke for Dewey, Schley and Miles—Rough Rider Tactics Not Approved

During the past two weeks startling events transpired at Washington, growing out of the Schley persecution. Last week we gave the report of the board of inquiry by which Ramsey and Benham condemned Schley who fought the battle at Santiago. Dewey, the hero of Manila, upheld Schley and accorded him all the credit for the great victory. Schley and his attorney filed a long protest to the majority report citing wherein they had ignored the testimony and were unfair, but secretary Long approved the report and censured Dewey for his findings. By this act the two men who faced the storm of shot and shell and reduced the Spanish squadrons to wreckage without a loss, accomplishing the most brilliant naval victories on record, are insulted and humiliated by a designing clique at Washington. The course of Secretary Long had the approval of President Roosevelt, who seems to be more concerned to have the affair hushed than that justice be done to a wronged man.

The next surprise came in an insult to General Miles, the head of our army, who is another man to suffer from designing politicians. When the Spanish war broke out, from his position as the head of the army and his long and brilliant career in various campaigns, he was the man that should have been sent to Cuba, instead they sent old Shafter who was unfit, bungled up the campaign and by rare luck the American forces escaped a humiliation. The politicians did not want Miles sent there for fear he might win new laurels and endear himself with the public and upon his return be awarded high political honors.

During the Schley controversy Gen. Miles expressed himself as willing to accept Dewey's estimate of Schley. This angered President Roosevelt, and Miles at once called on the President. When the old war dog reached the White House, in the presence of a host of callers, President Roosevelt, before Miles could offer an explanation or finish the first sentence of his statement, in a vicious and undignified manner, began scoring and censuring the gray haired old soldier with language that only would be appropriate to pugilists or ward heelers. Gen. Miles in a dignified manner turned and left the White House. Following this the President directed the Secretary of War to issue a stinging official rebuke to Gen. Miles for his statement, the language of which was most offensive and the like cannot be found on record, we doubt in any similar circumstance instead of an official reprimand it was an intentional affront.

These acts of President Roosevelt have aroused a storm of indignation from one end of the country to the other. They indicate that we have a hot-headed, unbalanced, impetuous man at the head of the nation who in the short time he has occupied the exalted position has made it evident that he fails to comprehend the dignity of his office or possess due deliberation in conducting public matters, and is devoid of common courtesy to his fellow men.

The people appreciate the services of Admiral Dewey, Commodore Schley and Gen. Miles; this censure and rebuke has only lowered their appreciation of the President, and elevated these three great heroes in the esteem of the people.

As a sop to soothe these wrongs, President Roosevelt ordered the dismissal of Historian McClay from the navy department. McClay is the tool who wrote the naval history of the late war in which he called Schley a "coward," "catfish," "poltroon" and it is said Secretary Long, and other prominent jealous naval attaches, including Sampson, read and approved the proofs.

The above is a brief statement of the mess at Washington. Now strenuous efforts are being made to suppress discussion of the entire affair, but it won't simmer down. Determined efforts are being made to suppress any consideration by Congress when it re-convenes, but is hardly possible, for during the holiday vacation while Senators and Representatives are home and rubbing elbows with their constituency they will learn the true temper of the public on these outrages and the smouldering fires are liable to break out and teach Mr. Roosevelt that his insults to American Heroes, along with the conspiring tools in the Navy Department, and their course, are not approved.

"LOVE'S LABOR LOST."

Another Chapter in the Trials of Charles Ingram and Wife.

In our last issue we gave an extended account of the matrimonial ventures of Charles Ingram, of Brownsville, Ohio, with Annie Tipton, of this place, due to his advertisement for a wife. They were married at Altoona and the same day she raved the bargain and deserted him at Pittsburg to which place he sent Detective Rightour to bring her back. At that point our former story ended. Now for the second chapter of this escapade.

Mr. Rightour found the woman in Pittsburg where she had secured a good position with a nice family at good wages which she was loth to give up, but the warrant left no choice and she came back. By agreement with Ingram she was landed at Howard on the 20th. As they stepped from the train her "Chawley" was there and with outstretched arms rushed forward to greet his bride, willing that all should be "bygones." Not so with her, she brushed him aside with a harsh rebuke, and the crowd laughed. She was sent over to the hotel until the Detective and Ingram transacted business; he paid all expenses of the trip and gladly signed a release, dropping the proceedings instituted against her, saying he did "not want Annie sent to jail" and that since she was back everything would be lovely in a short time; he still had implicit faith in his Annie. She later was informed of the release. Next it was arranged that all should adjourn to the home of her parents near Howard. She refused though to drive there in the same conveyance with her husband, and secured another rig from the livery and promised to come after. Instead of her going to father Tipton's fireside, she was driven in another direction and it is supposed boarded the first train and disappeared and now is beyond all location.

Poor heartbroken Ingram was in town several days later, bound for his home in Ohio, fully determined to waste no more time and money on the recreant spouse or lavish his affections on one so fickle.

Golden Jubilee Anniversary.

Spring Mills, Pa., Dec. 30, 1901.

An initiatory meeting was held in the Academy building for the purpose of organizing an Alumni Association of the Penn Hall and Spring Mills Academy, and to celebrate the Golden Jubilee Anniversary of Dr. D. M. Wolf, sometime during the summer of 1902 at Spring Mills, to which all former students of Dr. Wolf are to be present, including Oley Academy, Fairview Seminary, Boalsburg Academy and Bellefonte school.

A temporary organization was effected as follows: President, Dr. A. E. Gobbie; Secretary, T. M. Gramley; Treasurer, W. M. Allison. Enrollment showed forty-three present. The following committee on permanent organization was selected: Prof. W. P. Hoosterman, A. M. Allison and J. S. Meyer, Esq., and the following executive committee was selected, with power to appoint sub-committees on invitations advertising, program, entertainment, music, finance etc.: J. C. Meyer Esq., Bellefonte, W. M. Grove, C. P. Long, P. W. Leitze and Mrs. H. F. Roseman of Spring Mills, Pa.; Rev. G. W. Kerahner and Mrs. Henry Kreamer of Centre Hall.

As the early records of students of these academies were destroyed by fire some years ago, the organization has no full list of Dr. Wolf's pupils—hence it is the earnest desire of this Alumni Association to have all who ever attended Dr. Wolf's school, communicate with this organization by reporting names and addresses of all classmates to

T. M. GRAMLEY, Secretary.

Charged With Libel.

Editor P. Gray Meek, of the "Democratic Watchman," was arrested Monday on a charge of criminal libel, preferred by State Treasurer elect Frank G. Harris, of Clearfield. The information was made before Justice Woodring, of DuBois. The article in question was published in the issue of the "Democratic Watchman" of August 30, and drew a caustic comparison between Mr. Harris' legislative record and that of A. K. Palm, the Democratic candidate for State Treasurer. The case will likely be called at February term of court in Clearfield county.

Rings a Century Bell.

Prof. Hughes, of the Bellefonte Academy, on New Year's morning, at 9 p. m., rang his students to their duties by the ringing of a century bell. The bell on the Academy has stamped on it the year "1802," making it a century old on the above morning—a venerable bell used on the venerable institution since its founding. Prof. Hughes has been at the head of this famous academy a long term of years and under his care it has attained its most prosperous days. May he live to ring it far into its second century.

SERIOUS HUNTING ACCIDENT

Boy Shot His Father Thinking it was a Bear

ALONE IN THE MOUNTAINS

The Boy Was Almost Frozen When Found—The Deceased Formerly Resided Near Howard—Was Killed Instantly

Joseph DeHaas, who lived at Two Mile Run, Westport, Clinton county, Pa., was accidentally shot and killed on Saturday, 21, by his son Roy, a boy about 13 years of age. Mr. DeHaas and his son were on the mountain along Two Mile Run hunting for bear in the afternoon. When they reached a certain point Mr. DeHaas told his son to remain there while he went to reconnoiter, instructing the boy that if he saw a bear approaching him to shoot at once. Later the boy saw a movement in the underbrush and supposing it was a bear, fired. Running to where he had seen the bushes move he found his father lying unconscious. He had shot him in the head.

The sorrow-stricken lad took off his coat and vest and placed them over his father to keep him warm, shouting and crying for help. Fortunately Andrew Calhoun and his two sons were also out hunting for bear Saturday afternoon, and the screams of the boy attracted their attention. They hurried to the spot and found that Mr. DeHaas was dead and the boy in a perishing condition from the cold. The lad's hands were badly frozen, but he still held his dead father's head on his knee. An examination showed that a large buckshot had struck Mr. DeHaas near the right temple and had passed through his head coming out above the ear on the opposite side of his head. Another buckshot struck him in the shoulder.

About ten years ago Mr. DeHaas resided at Howard and later at Romola and then became a resident of Beech Creek. He is survived by his wife and five children. One daughter, Mrs. Claire Berry lives at Beech Creek, and two brothers, Joseph and Wm. also reside at that place. Mr. DeHaas was aged 48 years. The peculiarly sad fatality has cast a gloom over that community.

MIGHTY NIMRODS.

During the holiday week some of the noted nimrods about Pleasant Gap got unduly excited over a remarkable bear chase. It is a common thing in winter time for bear to wander in the cleared fields at the edge of the mountain near that place, and there is no section of country that contains as many noted hunters as "The Gap," and heart-thrilling tales that are spun out in the evenings in Noll's store or over at Mulfingers retreat, are enough to make the average man yearn for the excitement of a chase.

Among the prominent hunters there, Harry Zimmerman holds a front place and is always on the lookout for game, large or small. The other day his eagle eye discerned several bear up at the edge of the mountain and in a short time he had his trusty rifle on his shoulder and off for brain. Billy Kerstetter, another gamey lad, was shingling his smoke house when he heard the news of the bear and was in the act of driving a nail, but left the hatch banging in the air, so eager was he, and slid down the roof and off on a dead run to get his rifle and join the expedition. By this time quite a lot of riflemen were on their way to surround the game, while the people of the town stood anxiously gazing at the black spots on the mountain side that seemed to be tumbling about in playful sport, and not aware that they would soon be slain by the unerring skill of the hunters. The populace waited and waited but there were no developments, not a shot was fired nor did a bear stir.

A half hour later Billy Kerstetter was seen pounding shingles on his smoke house roof, as industrious as ever, and had little to say. He and the rest of the mighty nimrods had sneaked into town by a roundabout way unobserved. The reason was that when they surrounded the game on different sides they discovered that they had corralled only a few old burnt stamps, that had been there these many years.

A Great Conference of Lutherans.

The Lutherans of Pennsylvania will hold a great missionary conference in the city of Philadelphia, at St. Mark's church, Thirteenth and Spring Garden streets, January 6 to 8, 1902. This promises to be one of the largest gatherings of Lutherans, as scores of laymen and women from about six hundred parishes in the state will join their pastors to attend this convention.

Among the mainstays of society, we cannot deny the corset a conspicuous place.

Rev. Nevin F. Fisher, who was born at Boalsburg, this county, in 1856, has just been appointed by Archbishop Ryan, to the charge of St. John's Roman Catholic church, on Thirteenth St. below Market, in Philadelphia. The position is for life. Being irremovable it was only attained through a competitive examination in which six candidates for the honor contested.

He studied at the theological seminary at Overbrook for three years and in 1882 was sent to the American college in Rome to complete his theological course. In 1883 he received minor orders; in 1885, deaconship, and in 1886 was ordained to the priesthood by Cardinal Parichi at St. John Tateran's. Father Fisher celebrated his first mass in the Borghese chapel of Santa Maria Maggiore.

On his return to this country in August, 1886, Father Fisher was appointed professor in St. Charles' theological seminary, Overbrook, where he remained until 1890 when he was made inspector of parochial schools. An Attack of Pneumonia Warded off.
"Some time ago my daughter caught a severe cold. She complained of pains in her chest and had a bad cough. I gave her Chamberlain's Cough Remedy according to directions and in two days she was well and able to go to school. I have used this remedy in my family for the past seven years and have never known it to fail," says James Prendergast, merchant, Annot Bay, Jamaica, West India Islands. The pains in the chest indicated an approaching attack of pneumonia, which in this instance was undoubtedly warded off by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It counteracts any tendency of a cold toward pneumonia. For sale by Green's Pharmacy.

"Oh!" she cried, as he stood trembling
