

MISS L. ELIZABETH MOYER.

A Graduate of Washburn College and a Maid of All Work.

Miss L. Elizabeth Moyer, a graduate of Washburn college, is the heroine of the Rev. Charles M. Sheldon's novel, "Born to Serve."

"Since I was old enough to have any fixed purpose in life I have had as my motto, 'I will do the things that I can do, the best of the things that need doing the most.'"

"We had no experience with servant girls on the farm, and I did not get interested in the subject until I attended the academy in Hawatha. There I heard and read a great deal about this vexing problem, but I never realized what a great subject it was until I came to the city. I was really shocked to learn the necessity for reformation most homes stand in need of in this particular.

Washing of Fine Laces. In washing fine laces, says the Millinery Trade Review, have a strip of flannel on which to baste the lace, using care to have every point basted down smoothly.

Cake Flour. Cake flour should always be sifted twice—first when it comes from the barrel and before it is measured, next when the baking powder or the soda has been added.

The Country Working Girl. The girl who as bookkeeper, clerk, stenographer, milliner or teacher in her village home receives a weekly salary of $7 is far better off financially than the girl in the same occupations in the city who gets $15 a week.

Draw a Thread. Before cutting linen or damask be sure to draw a thread, for otherwise do matter how straight it may fold it will probably only look so till it is washed.

Working long hours at muscle wearying, brain wearing, nerve rasing tasks in shops, offices and counting rooms causes the city working girl to long for rest above everything else and in itself precludes the chances of her making desirable outside acquaintances except such as may be offered through church affiliations, and even these she is too tired to improve.

Window Gardens. All the windows of a house can be utilized for plant growing, provided one is careful in selecting and adapting the plant to the window it is to grow in. A list of plants adapted to the several exposures would be something like this: For eastern windows, fuchsias, begonias, calla, Chinese primroses, Primula obconica, azaleas, plumbago, strelitzia, lobelias and all kinds of bulbous plants; for southern windows, geraniums, roses, chrysanthemums, carnations, lantanas, oxalis, oleanders, abutilons, hibiscus, marguerites and most of the plants having richly colored foliage; for western windows, bright leaved plants and a few of the more "accommodating" plants like the geranium, provided the effect of too strong sunshine is modified somewhat; for the northern windows, ferns, arcararias, English ivies, palms, aspidistra, ficus, and selaginellas. Roman hyacinths, Primula obconica and Chinese primroses will often bloom well in sunless windows.—Home and Flowers.

Face Care. "Few women realize," says a French expert, "that the secret of face care is to treat each feature separately. American women in particular do not seem to understand that there are as many complexities as there are figures and that no one cosmetic can be good for all faces nor for all parts of the face. Rarely is the skin of nose and cheek of the same quality, and what is healing for one may injure the other. For example, the skin may be of good quality all over the face except on the nose, where too much oil is secreted. Bathing the skin with a soft sponge dipped in borax water will be of value, while such treatment would be too drying for the rest of the face, or the wrinkles around the eyes may be treated with cocoa butter, which might be harmful for nose and cheek. Leave all cosmetics entirely alone or understand their use," is her closing advice.

For One's "Turnovers." A dainty little bag to hold soiled neckbands is made from two lawn handkerchiefs. Choose two alike having a pretty embroidered edge and put them together to form the bag. Those with a rather narrow embroidery should be selected, and they are stitched together around three sides just below the embroidery to form a frill. Around the opening at the same distance from the edge stitch a bending, through which ribbon of the desired width is run. A narrow ribbon is to be preferred. This can hang at the side of a dressing table or bureau and are both useful and ornamental.

Home Cures in Rhyme. If poisoned, take mustard or salt, table-spoon. In a cup of warm water and swallow right soon. For burns try borax and a wet bandage too; If blistered, then oil and dry flannel will do. For children's convulsions warm baths are the rule. With castor oil dose, too, but keep the head cool. Give strip of ipecac when croup is in store. For fainting stretch patient right out on the floor. To soak in hot water is best for a sprain. Remember these rules, and 'twill save you much pain.

Too Tired to Sleep. If you are overtired—"too tired to sleep," as we sometimes say—bathe the neck and temples with hot water. Bathe the back of the neck particularly. This seems to relax the muscles and the veins that supply the brain with blood. Lie down to sleep in peace, for it will come surely. The same treatment will wonderfully refresh during the day. A headache may often be relieved, sometimes cured, by hot applications to the back of the neck.

The Care of Shoes. Don't forget that shoes are greatly the better for a thorough airing every time after wearing. They should never be stowed away in a cupboard directly they are taken off. A little French chalk sprinkled in every time before wearing is good for people who are troubled with excessive perspiration.

A Curling Fluid. The following is a recipe for a curling fluid: Take an ounce of borax, a dram of gum arabic, a pint of hot water and two tablespoonfuls of camphor. The camphor should be added after the other ingredients are dissolved. Before curling the hair slightly moisten it with this mixture.

The Clever Kittens. "My cat speaks French," said little Jeanne. "As plainly as can be; Says 'si vous plait' (that's 'if you please') And thanks me with 'merci' I know, because I understand Each word she says to me."

Vases discolored from having flowers in them are easily cleaned with powdered pumice stone.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS

THE MAGIC ARROW.

A Pretty Trick With Which to Entertain Your Little Friends.

Here is a pretty little trick with which you can entertain your playmates at an evening party: Cut from a fourfold piece of paper an arrow shaped like the illustration. Then place this arrow on the point of a needle vertically situated in a cork, at its center part marked X, but without causing the needle to pierce the paper. After the cross has been properly balanced on the needle cover the whole with a common glass thoroughly dried.

Now get a dry woolen cloth, and by placing your hand or fingers on top of the glass to insure its steadiness rub the cloth briskly up and down the glass at a point between the points of the cross, and the pointed end of the cross will slowly but surely move toward or revolve on the needle until it points to the place on the glass where the cloth is being rubbed.

The point of the cross is attracted by the electricity which is generated by rubbing the glass with the woolen cloth.

Live Lamps. In India there is a bird called the bottle bird, because it builds a nest which looks just like a bottle. But it is not the wonderful nest I wish to tell you about, but something much more wonderful, I think. You know in India birds have many enemies, and these enemies are afraid of light.

So when Mr. and Mrs. Bottle Bird make their home they stick ever so many balls of clay all around the front door. These are really candlesticks, but I do not believe you can guess what the candles themselves are. They are fire beetles. Fire beetles are something like our fireflies, only much brighter. Mr. and Mrs. Bottle Bird catch the fire beetles and stick them in the balls of clay, and there they stay, making the whole nest quite bright with light.

A Parrot at Breakfast. A funny parrot lives in Brooklyn and is very fond of the lady she lives with. When the breakfast bell rings in the morning, she will push open the door of her cage with her bill, fly down to the breakfast table, take her own chair, which she always knows and occupies at each meal, and wait till the family assembles. If they should not gather as quickly as she thinks they ought, she will call out, "Hurry up, folks; hurry up!" and at the same time hop over to the oatmeal dish and attempt to lift the cover, for she is very fond of oatmeal and will make her entire breakfast of it. She would not touch the oatmeal even if she were able to lift the cover, for she is a very good Polly. After finishing her breakfast she flies right back to her cage.—Exchange.

Rain From Heaven. The story is told of a little girl in England who when rainwater was scarce saved up as much of it as she could and then sold it for a cent a bucket. In this way she earned nearly $5, which she brought to the missionary society. She was a modest little girl, and when the secretary of the missionary society asked for her name she hesitated and failed to answer. "But I must put down where the money came from," said the secretary. "Call it rain from heaven?" replied the little girl.
