EDITORIAL,

"PENNSYLVANIA ILLS."

"Pennsylvania has no ills worth mentioning," says Pennypacker. Very well, then give her a dose of Pennypacker, and the old Keystone will be laid up worse than Philip's wife's mother who lay sick of a fever.

By unblushing bribery, with the knowledge of Pennypacker, a senator was elected last winter to represent this great common wealth at Washington. And cousin Pennypacker announces, "Pennsylvania has no ills worth mentioning."

The notorious ripper bills were put through the last legislature without notice, and signed the next minute at midnight, behind closed doors by Governor Stone. And cousin Pennypacker says, "Pennsylvania has no ills worth cast an aspersion on the people responsimentioning."

The last machine legislature gave to a score of rotten politicians all the valuable franchises for trolly and other purposes, over the entire state. These franchises would have been worth to the state many millions of dollars, gladly purchased by capitalists. All this was stolen by legislative enactment. And cousin Pennypacker says, "Pennsylvania has no ills | worth mentioning."

The school funds of the city of Philadelphia were withheld from the army of male and female teachers of that city for many months, also of a number of counties in the state including Centre, amounting to several hundred thousand dollars, and the money used for purposes of speculation by machine politicians. This was done right under the nose of Pennypacker and to his perfect knowledge. Yet Pennypacker declares, "Pennsylvania has no ills worthy of mention." Rah!

Dishonest elections, ballot box stuffing, and fraudulent registration were practiced to such an alarming extent in this state that the people with one accord demanded ballot reform; and to still this cry Quay, from the platform of the Altoona convention in 1895, on down to the platform of his last year's convention promised most sacredly that his legislature should give the people the demanded ballot reform, yet down to last winter's session every pledge was broken, and in the face of these broken promises, cousin Pennypacker writes "Pennsylvania has no ills worth mentioning."

A plot was laid by the machine in the last legislature to give away, for a few dollars, all the valuable coal beds in the state, under the beds of the rivers, to a knot of corrupt politicians. The infamous plot was discovered by a member of the House and exposed, and this alone prevented the consumation of the great wrong. These coal beds are estimated to be worth fifty million dollars. If these scamps had not been halted in this astounding attempt at theft, they would now be skinning the consumers of coal by putting up the price. And cousin Pennypacker says, "Pennsylvania has no ills worth mentioning."

THE Harrisburg "Patriot," the only morning paper at the State Capital, has Darwin G. Fenno, formerly of the Philadelphia "Times," is the new editor. The Patriot, for some years has not sized up to the opportunity. Its publishers always had a personal political axe to grind and it was continually voicing factional strife in the organization. Under the past management it was a spite organ, in a minority party. We hope that strong dignified organ at the Capital City. Such a paper will receive hearty support as soon as it merits confidence.

THE Republican senatorial conference of the 34th district, embracing the counties of Clearfield, Clinton and Centre, will be held at Tyrone, August 14.

SENATORIAL CONFERENCE.

The Democratic Senatorial Conference for this district, comprising the counties of Centre, Clinton and Clearfield, will meet at Bellefonte, Thursday, August 14th. Their duties will be soon consummated as there is but one candidate in the district, Hon. Wm. C. Heinle, of Bellefonte, who will be nominated. All the counties have instructed for him, as he merits a return for the splendid record he made in the recent session :

The following clippings made the past week show the high estimate placed upon Mr. Heinle's Senatorial career:

RE-ELECT SENATOR HEINLE. From the Harrisburg Star Independent:

The renomination of State Senator William C. Heinle, of Bellefonte, by the Democrats of the Thirty-fourth Senatorial district is the cause of popular congratulation throughout the state. It is a fit reward for splendid past service and a practical guarantee of not only capable but honest representation of the district in the Senate for another term. During the last two sessions of the Legislature Senator Heinle was among the most earnest guardians of the interest of the people in the body in which he became, during the last session, an acknowledged leader.

It is not alone because Senator Heinle was scrupulously honest that his return to the Senate is a matter for rejoicing. That is a negative virtue which all public officials are expected to possess and though the temptations to become venal were unusually common and strong during the period of his service, resistance ought not to attract especial attention. But Senator Heinle was more than that. He was capable and vigilant as well as honest, and an active foe of corruption as well as an earnest champion of the cause of the people. He not only saw corruption behind its mask, but attacked it wherever and whenever it appeared. There will be a determined effort made to defeat Senator Heinle's re-election, it is said, for the machine cherishes up reseatments and his work during the last session is remembered against him. But if the people of the district are just to themselves he will be re-elected by an increased majority. The defeat of a public official for no other reason than that he was faithful to his obligations would ble for it and if Senator Heinle is defeated it will be for no other reason.

From Philadelphia Record, August 2nd:

"The renomination of State Senator Heinle, of Centre county, in the Thirtyfourth district, is a proper tribute of appreciation for capable public service. No other man in the late Legislature was a more steadfast and determined opponent of the rascally plundering which was sanctioned by that infamous body. It is estimated that no pains or expense will be spared by the unscrupulous Quay leadership which seeks to choose a new Legislature of the same pattern as the last to defeat Senator Heinle. He is recognized as an indefatigable opponent corrupt legislation. The enmity of the Machine leaders should prove a source of strength rather than weakness among the honest voters of the interior. There is no flaw in Senator Heinle's record."

PENNYPACKER tried in 1882 to get elected to the Legislature in a district that had always wobbled and in a year when it should have wobbled to the Republican side. He was defeated by over 400 majority by a notorious ward healer. Will his final Waterloo come twenty years later ?

PENNYPACKER says that cousin "Quay is a greater statesman than Webster or Clay." And he also says, Pennypacker does, that "Pennsylvania has no ills worth mentioning." The plain interpretation of these sayings is, that Pennypacker is an out-aud-out endorser of all the iniquities and disgrace that Quayism has heaped upon this commonwealth.

AGAIN were the faithful Dale's snubbed. Never faltering, never failing in support of the g. o. p., from the present sons to father and grandfather, along with a large and influential connection, they were unceremoniously "Locked" out and knocked out of Tuesday's "harmony" convention. The youngsters of recent years, now running the machine craft in the county, for another time, bid the Dales go way back and sit down. The new settlers are driving the band wagon, and the old settlers can't get a Foresman, of Williamsport, were named. George A. Brown was re-elected County Chairman over J. W. Smith by a vote 51 to 20.
