

MRS. ELIZABETH A. REED.

The Gifted President of the Illinois

Woman's Press Association. Mrs. Elizabeth A. Reed, the president of the Illinois Woman's Press association, is a woman of rare accomplishments in the literary field. The work which has gained her most renown and the friendship of such savants as the late Max Muller, Dom Pedro of Brazil, Dr. T. H. Rhys Davis of the Royal Asiatic society and many more equally prominent is her research into priental religions and literature. Some of her books are "Primitive Buddhism, Its Origin and Teachings," "Hindoo Literature; or, The Ancient Books of India," and "Persian Literature, Ancient and Modern."

Even as a girl Mrs. Reed was a scholarly prodigy, and when she was only seventeen she had translated the Psalms from the original Hebrew and had besides contributed articles to the magazines on ancient literature. The University of Illinois has conferred on Mrs. Reed the degree of master of arts, and Berkeley college gave ber the degree of L. H. D.

That Mrs. Reed is popular with the women of the Illinois Press association is indicated by the fact that she is serving her second term as president of that organization, having previously held the position from 1894 to 1896. .

Mrs. Reed is also a member of several scientific societies of Europe, and at the time of her election to them she was the only woman so honored. Mrs. Reed is a homemaker, the mother of three children. Her only daughter, Myrtle Reed, has inherited her mother's literary gift, being the author of several successful books, among them "The Spinster Book," "Old Lace and Lavender" and "Love Letters of a Musician."

Possibilities of Gowning.

A girl with a pretty face has a good start toward attractiveness, but a girl with only a pretty face may, after all, be easily distanced by the other girl ho, feeling the want of this desirable item, takes great care of the detail of her appearance. The tint of the eyes and the hair should be repeated in the gowns she wears, irregular features should be framed in hats with drooping brims and waving lines, and the colors affected should be those that experience shows are suited to her complexion.

Yellow and red gowns go ill with black hair and eyes, yet a light tan may be worn by the dusky eyed girl with fine effect unless her skin is sallow. An ivory white gown with reliefs of oriental embroidery in which some gold lights are hidden will make a beauty of a woman with a pale complexion and chestnut hair who in a black frock would be a sight.

The too slender girl must wear her clothes fitted in shapely fashion indeed, but loosely, that she may seem to fill them out, and the stout girl inelined to short waist will find that a belt pointed downward and shaped bodice trimmings, plain goods rather than figured, are some of the "musts" of her dressing. Sarah Bernhardt has shown possibilities of gowning and accessories to the plain woman that are well worth studying and emulating .-Harper's Bazar.

The Double Chin.

The double chin is a hard thing to remove by home treatment, but it can certainly be modified by persistent daily application of the following treatment: Grasp as much of the chin as can be held between the thumb and forefinger and twist until it slips out. Do this many times on both sides of the chin. One can form the habit of doing it when rending. Placing the hands on the cheeks, let the thumbs meet under the chin, and draw them backward, pressing hard and flattening the chin. One must not press against the windpipe, but only against the under part of the jaw. Last of all, clasp the hands upon the forehead and bend the head slowly forward, resisting it all the time with the hands. Bend till the chin rests on the chest. When this motion is first used, a painful sensation will be felt in the cords of the neck. This is only because unused muscles are being exercised and will soon pass away. Relax thoroughly after each motion. Do it four or five times, then go to something else, and come back to it. Five minutes sally given to these three motions will begin to show results in six weeks. The flesh will leave the lower edges of the cheeks first, removing the old, beavy look which it always gives the face. Though the obstinate double chin may not be removed entirely. It will be medified and kept down.

Value of Myrrh.

Myrrh has held its esteem for the tollet from the earliest ages and deserves to have its benefits particularly looked into. A more thorough antiseptic for interior organs is hardly known, whether the trouble lies with a decaying tooth, tubercular lungs or ulcerating membranes.

If families would only use pints of myrrh where now they only use ounces, it would save many doctor's bills. You on't want to use it simply to perfume tooth wash or gargle. Its astringent effect should be felt in the mouth.

Each cavity of the teeth should be well brushed with a drop of clear tincture poured on the brush and the mouth well rinsed two or three times with a solution of half a teaspoon of tincture to a half pint of water. The throat should be gargled with it two or three times, which will keep the voice in repair, and the last third of the glass should be swallowed. Then one can be said to have a thoroughly clean mouth and interior.

The half teaspoon of myrrh with conscientious use of the toothbrush directly after each meal will prevent most throat and digestive troubles which tell so hardly on the constitu-

The Cellar.

In housecleaning always include the cellar, turning off all registers carefully. Then attack the corners and use lime and lump charcoal freely, particularly if there should be any suspicion of dampness. The walls should be whitewashed twice a year, and all cellars should have cement floors. Hanging shelves should be used for all stored articles, so that the floor may be easily swept every week. Never pile wood on the floor, but on raised boards, so that centipeds and spiders may not collect underneath

The condition of a cellar is always a test of good housekeeping, besides being an all important factor in the health of the family. If the cellar and bathroom are always in good order, the other rooms are not apt to be much 'out of the way."

Furnaces and chimney flues should be examined once a year. It is very much cheaper than a fire caused by a defective flue. Insurance companies should send out their own experts, if they would be on the safe side.

Custard Making.

An ingenious woman who is not a slave to conventional rule, at least in housekeeping methods, has found that nothing else gives such good results in custard making as a glass fruit jar and a kettle of boiling water. She puts the custard in the jar, seals it tight, immerses it in a kettle of cold water and lets it slowly come to a boil and cook until the custard is set. By this means, she says, no steam or water is admitted, as it frequently is under the lid of the double boiler, and there is not the danger of wheying as in baking. A plate is put in the bottom of the kettle to keep the jar from contact with it. This same housekeeper often serves her custard by cutting it and heaping it by the tablespoonful in a glass dish, outlining the spoon forms of custard with berries, candied cherries or other fruits.

Eau de Cologne.

The use of cologne water is one of the quickest and surest means of restoring temporarily tired nerves and invigorating tense muscles. One of the most efficacious and delicious cologne waters is made from the following formula:

Oil of neroli, 4 drams; oil of bergamot, 11/2 ounces; oil of cedrat, 2 drams; oil of limette, 2 drams; oil of Portugal, 4 drams; oll of rosemary, 11/2 ounces; oil of petit grain, 4 drams; tincture of ambreth, 1 ounce; tincture of orris root, I ounce; extract of orange water No. 1, 4 ounces; deodorized alcohol, 1 gallon; orange flower water, triple, 1 quart.

Candy For Children.

It is a mistake to suppose that good candy will hurt children. If given to them just after meals and in reasonable quantities, it is a decided benefit. Children need sugar for heat and easily digested nourishment, and pure candy is a convenient means of giving it to them. Dr. Fothergill, a distinguished London hospital surgeon, bas said that molasses taffy, containing both sugar and grease, is an ideal preventive for children of a consumptive tend-

Repairing Sheets.

Repair sheets that have become thin by tearing them from end to end down the middle and then sewing the selvages together to form a new middle. Of course the sides will then have to be hemmed, and the four corners should have tape sewed along them for about a couple of inches each way to strengthen them and prevent their being torn out by the pegs when they are hung on the line to dry.

Nursery Furniture.

The less furniture a nursery contains the better. Much furniture obstructs the free circulation of the air and prevents the children from taking proper exercise in the room. If the floor of the nursery must be covered, let there be a rug, piece of carpet or drugget, taken up and shaken.

Sash curtains of green india silk are attractive for the dining room.

HANGING PICTURES.

The Proper Manner of Placing Them on the Wall.

The proper hanging of pictures is as important as a wise selection of subjects or as tasteful framing. To give the walls of a room a dignified and restful feeling nothing must be placed upon them to disturb the vertical effect. A wall should remain a flat surface. The first illustration shows front and back views of a picture hung with two hooks so that the wire forms vertical lines that harmonize with the lines of the frame. The picture, being flat against the wall, casts no unrestful shadows. The second illustration shows similar views of a very common but mistaken fashion of hanging pictures. Here the eye is distracted from the picture, which should be the center of interest. The oblique lines of the wire are obtrusive, and the ugly shadow usually cast by the outhanging frame is still more so. In fact, all the lines confuse the eye, so that a wall thus bung with pictures can never be beautiful or reasonable from an artistic standpoint .- J. H. in Good House-

Overstimulation of Children.

Professor Barnes cautions parents against the overstimulation of young children and cites various ways in which this is accomplished. One of these is to provide elaborate playthings in large quantities, which have. he says, a bad influence on children. A child's interest is so easily aroused that many attractions prove confusing and wearlsome and generally injurious to his development. He considers that an Iron engine with two or three; cars, a good supply of building blocks and one limited Noah's ark will make an ample list for a boy under six years of age. If another toy is supplied, one of the three should be taken away, it being extremely desirable that a child's attention should be concentrated on a few things at a time. The professor deprecates many of the summer outings given to children, considers travel bad and condemns in wholesale fashion the "sin," as he puts it, of allowing a little boy or girl to sing and dance and give recitations for friends. He qualifies this statement with another that to do these things in a class or before his parents only is quite another matter and may be permitted in moderation. Everything to make a child's egoism die out should be encouraged. "It is impossible," he sums up, "to arrange a life for a child that would b too simple."-New York Post.

Well Kept Hands.

Over my sink are two bottles and a nail cleaner. One bottle contains five parts of lemon juice to one of alcohol, which will keep indefinitely. The other contains the following lotion: Onefourth of an ounce of gum tragacanth added to one pint of rainwater which has stood three days, then one ounce each of alcohol, glycerin and witch ha zel, also a little good, faint perfume After washing dishes or preparing vegctables I apply a little of the lemon juice, then the lotion, and in a moment my hands are dry, soft and very smooth. All stains disappear as if by magic, and the nails are cleaned easily. The time required is not over two minutes. This process repeated five or six times daily will certainly repay house keepers, for what is there more indicative of refinement than well kept hands? Then, too, the expense of these lotions is comparatively nothing Be sure to have them in a handy place. -Woman's Home Companion.

Emergency Assistant.

One of the latest occupations for women is an "emergency assistant." This assistant stands ready to belp her acquaintances through times of domestic storm and stress, for a consideration. She will take charge of a home and children when its mistress is suddenly called away, she will superintend housecleaning or run a wedding and is ready to come to the rescue of the distressed housewife whose servants have left her on the arrival of unexpected visitors. As may be seen, the occupation offers infinite possibilities to the woman of education and refinement, tact and common sense and some experience of general domestic problems. -New York Commercial Advertiser.

For a Burn.

The best remedy for a burn is to keep away the air, and flour, oil, or plunging the burned part in cold water which may be easily and frequently taken up and shaken.

Cover the rust spots on nickel plate with mutton fat and let it remain a few days, then rub with powdered rottenstone or tripoli and oil. Give the final polish with whiting and oil.

Renovating Wall Paper.

Wall papers that have become bruised or have been slightly torn and that cannot be matched are not becessarily ruined. They can be touched up with water color paints so that at a very little distance no change is perceptible. The paints from a child's pox will be good enough, but you must mix the colors to get the right shades and then touch the broken pattern.
