

MISS CAROLINE A. HULING.
A Clever Chicago Woman Who Publishes Trade Papers.

Miss Caroline A. Huling of Chicago is said to be the only woman in the world who makes a business of editing and publishing trade papers. Almost every possible or imaginable kind of newspaper and literary work has been placed to Miss Huling's credit, but the trade publishing and editing she makes her specialty. Connected on her mother's side of the family with such well known and famous literary workers as Fanny Fern, N. P. Willis and Rev. S. Ireneus Prime. Miss Huling has written almost ever since she can remember. She has written a novel and any number of newspaper and magazine articles.

Miss Huling claims laughingly that she is a regular "seventh daughter" of the literary and publishing impulses. Through her mother she is a member of the fourth generation to engage in editorial work, her mother's father, Colonel Alden Spooner, a direct descendant from John Alden, being an editor and publisher in Brooklyn for nearly forty years. Her mother's grandfather, Judah Paddock Spooner, was the first printer in the state of Vermont, establishing an office in Westminster in February, 1781, and claiming the offer of the state to give a bounty of 100 bushels of wheat to any one who would establish a printing office therein. His press, the Vermont Gazette, or Green Mountain Post Boy, the first press to be brought to this country from England, is now in the rooms of the Vermont Historical society at Windsor.

On her father's side of the house Miss Huling claims three generations of printers, booksellers, editors and publishers. She herself began newspaper work as her father's assistant and associate editor on the Saratoga Sentinel at the early age of twelve years, and, although she never learned to set type, she knows just how every mechanical operation connected with editing, printing and publishing should be conducted and personally supervises the printing of all the publications coming under her care.

As editor, publisher and owner of the Bookseller, a monthly magazine devoted to the interests of the book trade, Miss Huling does much of her own work, overseeing it all. She is also the editor of the Dry Goods Review, another monthly of which she has full charge. She was for some time editor of the Paper Trade and also of the Western Stationer. Her work on all these periodicals has been characterized by steady growth and speedy and permanent improvement of the various organs. For nearly a year before she purchased the Bookseller, July 1, 1902, she had been its virtual publisher and in full and absolute control of its work and workers. —Chicago Record-Herald.

Kissing the Baby.

There are many mothers who give themselves infinite trouble about the big and obvious things connected with nursery management, who strive bravely to be up to date in the matter of plumbing, ventilation and infectious diseases, who yet fall woefully when it comes to certain details. One of the most important of these is the disgusting and dangerous habit of allowing every comer to kiss and maul the baby.

A baby no doubt is a delightful object and almost irresistible, but that is no reason why advantage should be taken of his helpless condition to offer him hygienic outrages.

Here is a speech a well meaning goose of a young mother made to the father of her child on his return from business: "Mrs. Smith called today, John. She has a fearful cold and sore throat. She thought the baby was just too sweet for anything and would not let him out of her arms. He took to her wonderfully too." Naturally the baby developed a bad case of the snuffles in a day or two, and then it was: "The baby has a dreadful cold. We cannot think where he got it, we are always so careful."

This mother and the hundreds like her should be taught the lesson that promiscuous kissing is a bad and vulgar habit, productive of much danger to adults as well as to children. Adults can protect themselves if they like, but infants cannot, and so it is the duty of the mothers to protect them.

Colors We Should Wear.

Few colors are so advantageously worn as yellow under artificial light—yellow in all its shades, from palest cream, ecru, daffodil, canary and

"My mother was troubled with consumption for many years. At last she was given up to die. Then she tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was speedily cured."
D. P. Jolly, Avoca, N. Y.

No matter how hard your cough or how long you have had it, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is the best thing you can take. It's too risky to wait until you have consumption. If you are coughing today, get a bottle of Cherry Pectoral at once.

AWAY FROM THE ORDINARY

THESE few words explain our Fall and Winter stock in a nutshell.

We have strained every effort to make this stock as near perfect as it could be. Those who have given it a look think we have succeeded.

At any rate we have a line that you will do good to look through—it's not the best in America, there are some better and plenty just as good—but it stands in size, in newness without an equal in Central Pennsylvania.

It means a big thing when we make such an assertion. We must have the merchandise to back it—and we have—others are likely to claim as much. You'll profit by comparison.
