

MRS. NELLIE MATHERS HORN

A New Hampshire Woman Who is Renowned as a Portrait Painter.

In a cozy little old fashioned house on State street in Portsmouth, N. H., lives Mrs. Nellie Mathers Horn, the young artist whose portrait of Hon. John D. Long for the Bucksport (Me.) Public Library is, in the ex-secretary's opinion, the best likeness of him ever put upon canvas, and who has painted more distinguished New Englanders, perhaps, than any other woman in the country.

The square, low studded house, hung thickly with sketches and canvases, seems to have been planned purposely for an artist's home, but the heavy eaves and small paned windows were never intended for an artist's work.

MRS. NELLIE MATHERS HORN.

shop, and Mrs. Horn's studio is half a mile away in the business center of the quaint old city.

There, with Mr. U. D. Tenney, New Hampshire's distinguished portrait painter, with whom she began as a pupil to become later his assistant and still more recently his fellow workman as well, Mrs. Horn spends much of her days at her easel.

In the studio, which is up three flights of stairs in one of the typical business blocks of the old New Hampshire city, there is evidence of the wide range in portrait painting covered by Mrs. Horn's efforts.

Her canvases and Mr. Tenney's hang intermingled on the walls and share the easels.

There are several Revolutionary and colonial personages; there are men prominent in the business and government of the Granite State; there are women, representatives of its social life and domestic interests.

Almost across the way from the studio is the city building, in which hang portraits of the living ex-mayors of Portsmouth, all of which are the work of Mrs. Horn. They have been made from time to time, most of them within the last three years, and Portsmouth people think them such particularly good likenesses that they are one of the show features of the city pointed out to visitors.

The large New Hampshire fairs have seen several of the pictures of this young woman artist, and at two she has taken prizes, not only for the excellence of her execution, but for originality in conception.—Boston Globe.

Women and Golf.

"Golf," says a physician, chatting upon the subject of sport and woman to a contributor to Fashion, "affords more than health giving physical exercise. It serves also to distract the mind and thus act as an antidote to one of the worst yet commonest of modern mental ailments—namely, the habit of introspection or self-analysis." It was tennis, he continues, which marked the birth of the new era, which he has very aptly termed "the era of health reform," and when tennis died a natural death it did so merely in order to make way for the still more invigorating yet less violent form of exercise known as golf. At many of the clubs women are eligible for membership, while at nearly all those open only to men women are allowed to play on the club links on certain days. The result is that thousands upon thousands of girls and young women—and old women, too, for that matter—who a couple of decades ago would have been compelled to spend the greater part of their lives in comparative dullness and inaction now indulge regularly in outdoor exercise of a sort most beneficial to their constitution physically, and, being thus brought into contact with plenty of their fellow beings, their thoughts unconsciously drift into fresh channels and thus drive away, at any rate for a time, unpleasant recollection of domestic troubles and minor worries, with which all women are at times more or less afflicted.

Becoming Colors.

The red haired woman looks her best in browns shading into the tones of her hair or rich dark greens. Much depends, of course, on the complexion and eyes, but with a white or pink and white skin, especially if the eyes be brown or black, exquisite results can be obtained with a little care.

The yellow haired lassie can wear red The greens, too, are delightful on her; also certain yellows and blacks. White is less becoming, but she must be brilliant in complexion or else must be delicate as to tints to wear grays and blues to advantage. Blues, particularly the pale and cold blues, are best adapted to brunettes.

The woman whose hair is a dull brown and whose complexion and eyes lack brilliancy may still be most attractive, but she should avoid bright hued or glittering hats. Dull browns, neither yellowish nor reddish, should be selected. Avoid the satin straws. Take the dull finished. With this color of hat certain shades of dull pink or subdued yellow can be used. With a dull or muddy complexion as well as dull eyes and hair the problem is indeed difficult.

Sometimes a dash of rich color used in the proper spot will impart a certain brightness that seems a feature of the face itself. One must experiment and never give up the battle. Perhaps a facing of black velvet on a straw hat is the best for such, as black velvet of good quality is always beautifying in its effect.

Send the Girls to College.

The thoughtful reader will need no argument to prove that as a rule women are still addicted to the eighteenth century learning. Many reforms in living, in sanitation, in social affairs, are blocked for this reason. How little fitted most of them are to deal with questions of food, of buildings, of administration, the records of many unsuccessful experiments show. It is not because they are women, but because they have not the larger, wider, fundamental knowledge of "things and what can be done with them" which every person, man or woman, should consider it his or her birthright to possess in this age. Rather send the wide awake, capable girl to college, where she may learn to use her body as well as her mind; where she may learn what makes a nation great and powerful to-day, as well as what made Rome the mistress of the world; where she may gain some little insight into the wonderful unity of the known universe, from the infinitely small atom or ion to the infinitely distant star.—Woman's Home Companion.

Let the Baby Romp.

A healthy child travels miles in a day—plays cars with the chairs in the dining room, playing conductor, taking tickets, riding his broomstick horse. He will look at pictures or books, but all the while he is squirming, rolling or kicking. He must not be restrained. Give him plenty of room and freedom of movement. Thus he will digest his food and thrive as a child should. If he is kept still, then begin sick spells. He must not feel that he is hampered. He must know, however, that some one is in authority, ready to enter into fun with him or to put a brake on when advisable. The child is to be pitied who has not the strong arm of authority to lean upon.

The Dining Table.

The care of the dining room table is very simple. Once a week rub hard with a soft flannel moistened with paraffin oil and turpentine, then with a piece of soft old linen. Let it rest for an hour and rub hard with a piece of chamois or clean old linen. Give it a daily rubbing with chamois or linen. White spots on a table can often be removed by rubbing with kerosene. If the spots are very deep, rub gently and rapidly with linsed oil and powdered rottenstone. Do not use great pressure, and be sure not to let the powder get dry.—Ladies' Home Journal.

For Falling Hair.

Half an ounce of camphor with one ounce of borax dissolved in a quart of water, preferably rainwater, makes a very efficacious wash for falling hair. Heat the water before adding the camphor and borax, as this will facilitate the dissolving of the ingredients. Bottle and keep closely corked for use. Apply freely to the scalp two or three times a week.

Plaster Stitches.

To clean plaster stitches make ordinary cooked starch as stiff for the laundry, only not quite so stiff. While it is still hot cover the whole of the cast with it. Set it aside for a day and then peel off the starch, when the statue will probably be found quite clean. If, however, it is badly soiled, it will probably need a second application of starch.

Washing Fluid.

A simple and convenient washing fluid is made by this recipe. Have your druggist give you one ounce each of ammonia and salts of tartar. Dissolve one pound of potash in a gallon of boiling water. Add one tablespoonful of the boiling suds and rub the clothes after they have been boiled.

Clothes Hangers.

Skirt and bodice hangers are now so inexpensive that they can be a feature in every woman's wardrobe. The frames may be wound with strips of cloth or silk. Oris powder or some delicate sachet may be used in the lining to impart a faint fragrance to the garment.

A worker in metals is authority for the statement that an ornolu clock may be cleaned at home by applying with a soft brush a thin paste made of ammonia and whiting mixed.

Housewives will find the soap bill diminished if both laundry and toilet soaps are bought in quantity and kept without wrappers for weeks at a time.

Brooms when wet should be hung up to dry and not left standing.

Drying faces by clapping them between the hands injures them.

ANOTHER OPERATION

President Roosevelt Again Submits to Surgeon's Knife.

Doctors Give Assurance That There is No Cause for Alarm, and Say Area Affected is Very Slight. Speedy Recovery Looked For.

Washington, Sept. 30.—Another operation was performed Sunday on the abscess on the left leg of President Roosevelt. In the former operation, a simple needle was used to relieve the trouble, but Sunday the surgeons with a knife made an incision into the small cavity, exposing the bone, which was found to be slightly affected. The president's case has been progressing satisfactorily, but it is believed by the physicians that the further operation made Sunday will hasten his complete recovery. While none of the doctors is willing to be quoted, they give the most positive assurances that there is not the least cause for alarm, and say that on the contrary there is every indication of a speedy recovery, that the area of bone effected is very slight, and will not result in any impairment of the president's limb, and that there is no evidence whatever of any matter that would produce blood poisoning. They confidently expect that the president will be on his feet within a reasonable time and will have his robust constitution to aid in his recovery.

Dr. Shaffer of New York, who long has been acquainted with the Roosevelt family and has attended the president's children at various times, and who also is a well-known bone specialist, joined the president's physicians in their consultation Sunday. It was noticed that there had been a slight rise in the president's temperature and an increase in local symptoms and the physicians thought his recovery would be aided by making an incision to drain the wound. The president stood the pain very well and expressed his satisfaction at the result. Dr. Rixey, the surgeon-general of the navy, performed the operation, assisted by Dr. Lung, the president's regular physician. Dr. O'Reilly, who also was present with the other physicians, is the surgeon-general of the army. Drs. Edward R. Stitt, another of those present, is in charge of the naval museum of hygiene and medical school.

The physicians took a roseate view of the president's prospects for getting out again. He has become somewhat restive because of his close confinement and the physicians are considering the advisability of permitting him to take a ride in a few days. The physicians say the question now is simply one of the healing of the wound and reiterate that this will be hastened by the operation performed Sunday. Mr. Roosevelt passed an uneventful day yesterday, spending the time in his wheel chair, by which means he was able to be moved to various parts of the room. Last night he was reported to be progressing satisfactorily. There were no visitors except Dr. Lung, the regular White House physician, who made his usual call. Dr. Newton M. Shaffer, the New York bone specialist, who came here Sunday at the president's request and joined the other physicians in their consultation prior to the operation, returned to New York yesterday afternoon. No arrangements were made for another visit from the doctor.

Misses Alice and Ethel Roosevelt joined the president and his wife at the White House last night, the former coming from Tuxedo Park and the latter from Oyster Bay. Miss Ethel is to attend school here.

PENSION STATISTICS

Total Disbursements of Government Amount to $2,992,509,019. Washington, Sept. 29.—The annual report of the commissioner of pensions, Eugene S. Ware, made public yesterday, shows that the number of names on the pension rolls is still under the million mark, despite a net gain of 5,732 pensioners since 1898. The total enrollment July 1 last was 999,446, against 997,735 last year. The total comprises 738,809 soldiers and 260,637 widows and dependents. The aggregate includes 4,695 pensioners outside the United States.

The report says that the death rate among the pensions for the coming year will be about 40,000 and the losses to the rolls from other causes will be about 6,000. The total amount paid for pensions during the fiscal year was $137,504,268, and the yearly cost of operating and maintaining the bureau and the agencies, outside of the payment of pensions proper, aggregates $3,590,529. The pension system, says the report, since the beginning of the government, has cost $2,992,509,019, exclusive of the establishment of the soldiers' homes. The pension disbursements by the United States from July 1, 1790, to June 30, 1865, were $96,445,444.

Skeleton in a Trunk.

Rappahannock, Va., Sept. 30.—Bayard Wright, local agent for the Weems Steamboat Company, yesterday discovered a skeleton in a trunk which had been stored in the company's warehouse here for about eight years. The skeleton was apparently that of a child twelve years old. Some tattered clothing hung around the remains. The trunk was rather more than medium size, and the body was considerably bent in order to get it inside. The trunk and contents were thrown into the river and were carried down stream by the tide. There was no name or address of any kind on the trunk.
