On Monday night about eleven o'clock, just when our 400 citizens had fallen into their first deep her daughter Mrs. sleep, the cry of fire was wafted through the air, arousing them from their sweet slumbers and soon nearly half of them were at the scene of disaster. The store house of Mrs. E. J. Monte Musser broke the door open but an immense volume of smoke and flame confronted them so that it was impossible to save anything from the devouring element. The building was constructed of yellow plank and lined inside with North Carolina pine and that, with about 50 gallon of coal oil, made an intensely hot fire and required the most strenuous efforts of the bucket brigade to save the valuable residence of Mrs. Wm. A. Peters, which for a time it was thought was doomed. The boys worked like heroes and deserve much credit for their Chas. Griest deserves special mention for his daring and heroism in risking his life which he almost forfeited to save Mrs. Peter's house. He doffed his shoes and got on the roof pouring on the water as it was handed to him from the ladder, but being overcome by the heat and smoke he fell heavily, striking the back of his head on the comb of the roof, and cutting a terrible gash on his poll-but recovering himself, he slid quickly to the ladder and climbed down, and being shoeless he trod on a piece of glass and cut a big gash in his foot. He now carries his head and one foot in a sling and "locomotes" on crutches, looking very much as if he had gone through a separator. The loss of the burned store and stock is estimated to be about $1000. Insurance $800. Notes of the fire: Wm. A. Peters' house and furniture was damaged to the amount of $100-no insurance; the store was under the management of J. T. Barton; P. J. David Haller died at Castanea, Clinton county, last Saturday evening after being ill a long time with paralysis. He was 83 years old. His wife and one daughter, Mrs. Harry Jones, of Philipsburg, survive.

The capacity of the Lock Haven hospital has at last been exceeded. With all beds and rooms upstairs full, and with patients down stairs on cots, the superintendent was compelled to send a patient to the Williamsport hospital.

A sad and fatal accident occurred at Mill Hall on Saturday, when John Packer, the 8-year-old son of Charles W. Packer, was instantly killed a short distance north of the old wagon bridge on West Water street, by being run over by a wagon loaded with apples.

A man named Pennington and the wife of Samuel Shetram, of Portstown, Huntingdon county, have disappeared and the indications are that they have gone away together. They are doubtless splurging wildly on a ten dollar bill Pennington's wife gave him to purchase stock for their little candy and cigar Tyrone is to have a new bank in the near future. The application to organze the Farmers and Merchants' National bank of Tyrone was approved by the Comptroller of Currency a few days ago. Frank M. Waring, formerly cashier of the Blair county bank, is looking after the preliminary arrangements for the proposed institution.

Ex-Councilman Sidney Clark, of Lock Haven, was arrested by Constable Myers last week. He is charged by Clinton Castle, K. G. E., with failing to return the funds belonging to that organization which he, as treasurer, had in his possession. The amount is $487. There oversensitive and not of good constiare three counts in the indictment. He made no effort to obtain bail, in default of which he went to jail for a hearing.

A broken ear of corn got Joseph Ulrich, of Lewisburg, into jail last week. Farmer George Rinehart had been missing corn from the field. He broke a red ear into two pieces, keeping one part and throwing the other back on the pile. Next morning the pile was gone. He heard of Ulrich selling corn cheaply to I. M. Pines, and among this corn was the discarded half of the red ear. Justice Nesbit held Ulrich for trial and sent him to jail.

John Riley, of the firm of Riley & Orcutt, liverymen and dealers in horses at Clearfield, was killed in the Altoona yard Sunday night. He had come in over the Pittsburg division with extra freight 164 which contained a car of horses for his firm, and in the yard left the cabin, and when he bad reached the first car in some manner he fell to the tracks and the cabin ran over his head. crushing it badly. Arm, Head and Leg Cut Off.

H. P. Spence, of near Emporium, recently built a saw mill. A few days ago he was on the carriage when his foot caught on a dog throwing him forward. He put out his arm to save himself and it was caught by the circular saw and severed from his body. This threw him further off his balance and next his head was cut off, the saw throwing it over twenty feet. Then one of his limbs was Mrs. Uriah Auman and daughter and mangled by the fast revolving saw. It was a most horrible sight for those who

A PRETTY WORKBAG.

One With Mimosa as Its Decorative and Color Scheme,

Mimosa with its feathery leaves and downlike blossoms has been little used in embroidery, its effectiveness being hardly known, but it is a very easy flower to work, as the blooms can be composed entirely of French knots of shaded yellow silk and the leaves worked in the easy spike stitch, which consists of merely a long cross stitch emanating from the middle stem. (See illustration.)

I am now going to show you how to make a workbag decorated with embroidered mimosa and having mimosa tints as its color scheme.

Procure two pieces of cardboard the shape shown in the design and cover them with a Roman satin (a shade lighter than the gray green mimosa leaves) on to which mimosa sprays have been transferred and embroidered. The inside is lined with pale yellow, and two gussets of yellow satin must be cut, which, when sewed in the sides, allow the bag to lie quite flat when empty. The outside edges of the two pieces of covered cardboard are sewed to the outside edges of the two satin gussets. The top is edged with a piece of pale yellow silk ball trimming, and the handles can be either satin ribbon, finished off with dainty side bows, or yellow silk cord.

Women In Journalism.

Not a few of the women who have gained notable success in the newspaper field within the past decade have graduated into higher literature, such as play writing and story writing, and have thus achieved additional reputation. Others have sunk the undoubted promise of their future into the more pleasant paths of domestic life.

The question of the suitability of the journalistic field for women is one which may be looked at from many vantage points. Where there are so many who have made successes in this line, who shall say that it is not a desirable line? The same rule applies to this as to every other walk of life requiring good health and nerves, grit, perseverance and steady, earnest industry. It is generally acknowledged that the work of journalism is a difficult one even for a man. A woman tution, and, above all, without plenty of pluck, might better choose some other arena for her battle with life than a newspaper office.--Kate Masterson in Era Magazine.

A Cobweb Party.

Invitations are sent on paper on which a cobweb has been drawn, with a spider in some part of it. Cobwebs and spiders are easily drawn and need not be very accurate. The invitation should be worded thus: "Will you walk into my parlor?" at such a time, naming day and hour. For the cobwebs have macrame cord fastened about different parts of the furniturechairs, piano legs, tables, pictures, etc. Have sticks or pieces of pasteboard about three inches long attached to each end of the several strings that may be wound up as they are taken from their several places. As the guests proceed to unravel the web each gentleman will have to escort or entertain the laiy whose string terminates at the same place as his own. The fun is caused by the unraveling of the strings. The lady and gentleman who are fortunate enough to get their string unraveled first get a prize. There may be a second prize; also a consolation

Sleep-the Benutifier.

The subject of sleep is one in which every woman is interested. Sleep is not only necessary and a great physical comforter and restorer, but it is a beau-

It is pretty little Mme, Butterfly who says, "If I sleep an hour, then I shall be pretty again." The Japanese women understand the arts of beauty. They know how to brighten the hair and make it shine. They understand the trick of gesture and the using of the voice. And, more, they know the value of sleep.

Sleep in the right amount clears the skin, brightens the eyes and gives expression to the face. It takes away that haggard look, fills out the hollows around the eyes, fills out the cheeks, removes those lines about the mouth, smooths out the forehead and makes a new woman of you.

For Ironing Days. Try making your iron holder this way if you do not want your hand to get dry and heated on ironing day: Cut from the upper part of an old boot a piece of leather the size you wish the holder to be. Cut a piece of brown paper and two pieces of flannel or cloth the same size; then cover the holder in the ordinary way, except that on the top two thicknesses of material should be put instead of one. Sew all round the edge; then slit the top upper cov ering across the center and bind the edge of the slit. This forms a pocket on each side, into which one's thumb and fingers are slipped.
