EDITORIAL.

PENNYPACKER'S attitude the past few weeks has been such as to cause a feeling of mistrust among the gang and hopefulness among the friends of good government. But—all are waiting to see.

The rumor of an additional increase in wages for the employees of the Pennsylvania railroad company has been flatly denied by W. W. Atterbury, the new general manager, at Altoona. In discussing the matter he said: "There is not a word of truth in the report."

DURING the past week a great many complimentary tickets to attend the inauguration at Harrisburg, were distributed about Bellefonte by certain factions of the republican party in this county. It looks as though the judiciary contest was now on in earnest. Many new factors have been introduced in this game.

MR. MORGAN "made $42,000,000 last year," is going the rounds of the press. The statement is another evidence of the improper use of language. The facts are: it required the combined labor of thousands of skilled and unskilled men to produce, (make) that wealth. All that Morgan did was to "absorb" what others "made," correctly speaking.

Now it's governor Pennypacker, and Quay was conspicuously absent from the inauguration on Tuesday. The cause is alleged to be that the boss did not find the new governor endorse all his slate for appointments. If so, mark one mark to Pennypacker's credit. If Pennypacker concludes to be governor without Quay dictation, all good people will uphold him.

BELLEFONTE has been called the town of governors. There was scarce a day, in days gone by, that there could not be pointed out from one to three Ex-governors on our streets. The number since the death of Ex-governor Hastings, has dwindled down to one, Ex-governor and now superior court judge Beaver, who, when not absent holding court, is at home and can be seen on our streets. Judge Beaver is the picture of youth and health and has every appearance of many years in store for him—which we fondly hope will be his good fortune. But is Bellefonte going to quit furnishing governors for the Keystone state? Hardly, for we see material lying around loose and sighing to be governors of this great commonwealth. We have men here fit to make good and safe governors, and local pride should impel us to put them forward, whenever a good governor is needed. Curtin was a good governor, Beaver was a good governor, and Hastings did well. It would be wise to fall back upon Bellefonte therefore, and run no risks—our town has been tried and not found wanting. Gov. Beaver bids fair to be with us many years yet, and before he scores another decade, new gubernatorial timber should be in training and fitted to keep up the reputation of the town for furnishing good and safe governors.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

The past week in Congress has been one of democratic rejoicing and many jokes have been made at republican expense. The haste with which the republicans rushed through the bill removing the duty from coal to relieve the present emergency demonstrated how correct is the democratic contention that a lowering of the tariff is all that is necessary to cause a reduction of prices and defeat the efforts of the trusts to maintain the cost of necessities far above their normal value. By the same measure was demonstrated the sophistry of the republican claim that no single schedule of the Dingley bill could be revised in accordance with the necessities arising from changed conditions without a general revision of the entire tariff and the precipitation of extended financial depression.

A bill providing for the rebating of the duties collected on coal during the next year was reported to the House by the Ways and Means committee and was passed by the House. It went to the Senate, which so amended it as to place coal on the free list permanently and was returned to the House where the amendment was accepted. The President signed the measure the next day. Thus the first schedule of the sacred Dingley tariff was revised without any serious results and it is hoped that the precedent established may prove a useful object lesson in the future.

Wearied with the do-nothing policy of his own party, Judge Jenkins, chairman of the House committee on judiciary has introduced a resolution borrowed from the public ownership plank in the New York democratic platform which, it was claimed, defeated Coler for Governor of that state. Judge Jenkins' resolution calls upon the Judiciary committee to make an examination into the possibility of seizure by the federal government of the coal mines of the country and their operation by the Federal authorities in such emergencies as exist at the present time. Had Mr. Jenkins' resolution been introduced by a democrat it would have been greeted with cries of "anarchy," "socialism," etc., but coming from a republican, and he the chairman of one of the most important committees of the House, it is received with all respect and it is yet possible that Congress may be forced by the strength of public opinion to afford the consumers some relief from the intolerable conditions now prevailing with regard to coal.

The sub-committee of the Judiciary committee, to which was intrusted the drafting of an anti-trust measure in accordance with the recommendations of the Attorney General, evidently made a series of blunders in the performance of their task for they were sent back to do the work over again. They had announced that they would be prepared to favorably report their bill on Friday but when it was submitted to Mr. Knox he told the authors it was all wrong and they must do it all over. They are now working under the immediate supervision of Mr. Quay's subordinates and is hoped that eventually they will succeed in framing a measure which will please the people, work no hardship to the trusts and stand the test of the Courts.

It is quite obvious that most members on the republican side of the Senate are delighted with the set-back which the Attorney General has administered to the cause of anti-trust legislation. They have from the first desired to avoid all anti-trust legislation. Forced by the determined stand of the President and his announced purpose to call the next Congress in special session if nothing was accomplished at this session, the republican leaders consented to give the matter consideration, stipulating however that any measure which would pass the Senate must be extremely conservative, in other words, must prove innocuous to their favorite corporate interests. Now that a member of the President's Cabinet has taken occasion to hold up the measure and postpone its consideration until a later date, the sentiment is growing that it will be possible to pass the matter over and then say to Mr. Roosevelt that he is responsible for the failure to legislate on the subject as earlier in the session the Senate was ready to give the matter due consideration.

THE New York World informs the freezing population of that city that in its neighborhood there are thousands and thousands of cars filled to their utmost capacity with anthracite coal. For miles in length the cars have been standing there for days and weeks waiting to be unloaded, and protected by armed guards against raids of coal robbers. It is estimated that not less than 150,000 tons of anthracite are thus accumulated, while the people of New York are freezing because of the alleged scarcity of coal and the real exorbitancy of its price.

Among other Bellefonters who attended the inauguration of Gov. Pennypacker were the following: Judge Jno. G. Love, G. W. Rees, and wife, John Bilger, Wm. Derstine, Frank Derstine, Joseph L. Montgomery.

Theodore Wahrendorff, the well known piano tuner of Altoona, is taking orders by general mail delivery, at Bellefonte, for one week.

WHEN the coal operators, "Independent" or regulars, make a dauntingly raid upon the purses of the consumers, it is equally fair when the latter make a raid upon the coal of these sharks when compelled by necessity.

ATTEND CAUCUS MEETINGS.

Saturday afternoon and evening is the time set for holding most of the caucus meetings over the county to nominate candidates for the coming Spring elections. Both parties will hold their caucuses on this date. The spring election is of more direct importance to you than any other for the reason that you choose men to look after your home affairs such as the schools, roads, poor, etc. The caucus or primary meeting is the place where the political roosters do their effective work and to which the average voter pays little or no attention. The result is that undesirable and unfit men are often placed in nomination, to the detriment of the community.

No matter what your politics may be, Democratic, Republican, Prohibition, Populist, or any old party, if you have any interest in the welfare of your community, go to the primaries on Saturday and see that good men are placed in nomination for the various offices.
