

DEATH OF SALISBURY

British Statesman Passed Away Quietly at Hatfield House.

MADE PRIME MINISTER THRICE

Bright's Disease Ends Life of Eminent Successor to Lord Beaconsfield As Conservative Leader—Short Sketch of His Career.

London, Aug. 24.—Lord Salisbury died peacefully late Saturday night.

LORD SALISBURY.

Lord Edward Cecil had been warned by telegraph that the end was near. All the other members of his lordship's family had gathered at the bedside.

Viscount Cranborne, who now assumes the title of Marquis of Salisbury, immediately notified King Edward and Queen Alexandra, the Prince and Princess of Wales and others, including Lord Edward Cecil, the soldier son of Lord Salisbury, who is now in Egypt and who was the only child of the marquis absent from the deathbed.

The death of Lord Salisbury occurred on the 50th anniversary of his entrance into public life as a member of the house of commons for Stamford.

In accordance with his recently expressed wish, Lord Salisbury's body will be interred beside that of his wife at Hatfield on Monday.

Career of Dead Statesman.

From 1853, when he was first elected to parliament, until he resigned the premiership of Great Britain, in July of the present year, to be succeeded by his nephew, the Right Hon. Arthur James Balfour, Lord Salisbury was a dominant figure in politics.

Sir Robert Talbot Gascoyne-Cecil, K. G., P. C., D. C. L., LL. D., third Marquis of Salisbury, was born in Hatfield House, February 3, 1830, and is in his 73d year.

He was educated at Eton and at Christ Church, Oxford, and entered politics in his 23d year, being elected in 1853 a member of parliament for Stamford.

As Lord Robert Cecil, the marquis in 1857, married a Miss Anderson with no fortune, in defiance of his father's command, and was turned out of his father's house mainly on account of his marriage and his allowance was stopped, obliging him to work for a living. It was then that he turned his attention to newspaper work.

Lord Robert represented Stamford in the Conservative interest until his succession to the marquise on the death of his father, April 12, 1868.

In Lord Derby's third administration he was, in July, 1866, appointed secretary of state for India.

November 12, 1869, he was elected chancellor of the University of Oxford, and when Mr. Disraeli returned to office in 1874 he was again appointed secretary of state for India.

He was appointed secretary of state for foreign affairs April 2, 1878.

He went out of office with his party after defeat at the general elections in 1880.

At a meeting of the Conservative peers in May, 1881, he was elected to lead the party in the house of lords. After that his career was identified with that of the Conservative party.

The general elections of 1885 turned him out of office, but after the general elections in 1886 he was once again made prime minister.

The general elections of 1892 caused Lord Salisbury to go out of office, though his ministry did not actually resign till it had suffered defeat in the commons.

In October, 1895, the Liberal government was defeated, and Lord Rosebery immediately resigned. Lord Salisbury was sent for and formed an administration.

During 1896 Lord Salisbury was much occupied by the conduct of the relations between the United States and Great Britain over the Venezuelan boundary dispute. President Cleveland's strong stand on the Monroe Doctrine and the American disposition to twist the lion's tail brought about a state of affairs which required very delicate handling by the diplomatists, and Lord Salisbury showed himself equal to the occasion by backing gracefully down, his conciliatory attitude being fully and quickly appreciated at Washington.

Wanted to Lynch Trolley Crew. Scranton, Pa., Aug. 25.—It required all the force and strategy of the police of Old Forge to prevent the possible lynching of a trolley crew whose car ran over and disemboweled the 4-year-old son of Antony Stefane, a prominent resident of the Italian colony. The Italians became wildly infuriated at the sight of the child's mangled body lying on the track, and laid hold of the crew. Threats were made to lynch them, and it doubtless would have gone ill with the two men had the police and English-speaking citizens not rescued them. They were looked up on the charge of murder, but were later released on $2000 bail each, furnished before Judge Kelly.

The Crane's Courtship

The Widow Owl was sitting on the stump of an old tree early one evening when he should come along but gallant Mr. Crane. He made his best bow and wished her the best of health. The widow said she was feeling well, thank you, and then they fell to talking about the weather and one thing and another.

After awhile Mr. Crane sighed a deep sigh and the Widow Owl exclaimed: "Dear me, Mr. Crane, what is the matter that you should sigh that way? It really sounds as if you were in love."

"I am in love, Mrs. Owl—deeply in love," replied the long legged bird.

"I thought so," said the widow. "And with whom are you in love?"

"With you, widow; with you," answered the crane tenderly.

"Oh, my!" exclaimed the widow. "Yes, I am in love with you," continued the crane, "and I want you to be my wife. You are the fairest female in the land."

"And you," said the widow shyly, "you are the handsomest I know."

"Then will you be mine?" cried the crane.

"Alas, I can never be!" replied the widow.

"Why not, dear heart?" he asked.

"You live in the day and I live at night. Our paths must ever be separate."

"Too sad!" exclaimed the crane, brushing a tear from his eye.

"But I will be a sister to you," added the Widow Owl.

And then the crane shed a few more tears and went to sleep, while Mrs. Owl flew away to catch her nightly supply of mice.—Chicago Tribune.

"I'M IN LOVE, MRS. OWL."

The Divided Apple

Mr. Pig and Mr. Goat met one day under an apple tree, and after they had hidden each other good morning they turned their eyes toward the upper branches to see what amount of fruit was on the tree.

And what do you suppose they saw? Only one apple. But such a fine, ripe apple it was and large enough to make up for any number of smaller pieces of fruit.

"Will you do me a favor?" asked the pig of the goat.

"What is it?" asked the goat.

"Won't you butt up against this tree as hard as you can and shake that apple down for me?"

"Oh, ho!" cried the goat. "I was just going to ask you to rub up against the tree as hard as you could so as to shake that apple down for me."

"No, I'll not shake it down for you, but I'll shake it down for myself," said the pig.

"If you do, I'll get it and eat it," answered the goat; "but I think that I'll have to butt the tree so as to get the apple for myself."

"If you do, I'll get it and eat it," replied the pig.

So they both went to work to think of a plan that would insure their getting the apple. After awhile the goat said:

"I'll tell you what we'll do. You rub against the tree, and I'll butt the tree, and when the apple falls we will run to the spot, and the first one to get there may have the apple."

The pig agreed, and they set to work. The goat butted as hard as he could, and the pig rubbed as hard as he could. The tree shook, and down came the apple.

Both of the animals rushed for it, and they got there about the same time. The apple in falling had split in halves, and each of the animals grabbed a half.

"Well, that was the best way out of our controversy after all," said the goat, munching his half of the apple.

"I believe it was," assented the pig as he chewed on his half.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Three-Ring Show is Coming.

The Great Wallace Shows have completed all arrangements to exhibit in Bellefonte on Tuesday, Sept. 8th. The Wallace Show has advanced rapidly during recent years until it has reached the front rank of tented enterprises, and is one of the biggest on the road. It advertises a greater number of features than any other show, and, judging from the comments of the press, the commercial traveler and others who have seen it, the Wallace Show produces all it advertises. With the Wallace Shows from six to eight acts are to be seen at one time in the three rings, hippodrome track, on the stage and in mid-air. The management of a show the size of Wallace's does not expect the people to be able to watch all of the many features, but they arrange to have several acts of various kinds at the same time, so that the spectator may take his choice and enjoy those that he admires most. Since people's tastes differ, it is necessary for a circus the size of the Wallace Show to be cosmopolitan in character in order that all may be pleased, and those who have seen it know that it pleases and satisfies the most critical.

The Great Wallace Shows will positively appear in Bellefonte for one day only, giving two performances on Tuesday, Sept. 8th.

FAIRBANKS GAS & GASOLINE ENGINES

FROM 1 TO 100 HORSEPOWER.

NO FIRE, NO ASHES, NO ENGINEER, NO DIRT, NO DANGER, NO RISK.

The name "Fairbanks" on any engine or tool is a guarantee of highest excellence. Several thousand of our Gas and Gasoline Engines are being successfully operated today in all parts of the United States, and are not an experiment but the result of years of experience. It is a most convenient power, capacity can be developed in half a minute, and when it stops there is no further consumption of fuel. Costs less than any steam engine to operate, requires no special attention, and is easily regulated.

This shows our Horizontal Type built from 3 to 100 horse power, and can be equipped for either gas or gasoline, which is ignited in the cylinders by an electric spark, causing the explosion that drives the piston with great force.

Recently a 4-horse power engine like above was installed in the Centre Democrat office, Bellefonte, Pa., and has proven very satisfactory, and can be seen at any time.

The Vertical Engine

occupies less floor space and is built on the same principle as the horizontal, and is made in from 1 to 4 horse power. It is a convenient engine for driving small machinery.
