High Valley.

(PENN TOWNSHIP.)

As some of the readers of the Democrat wonder what has become of the High valley news writer and wish to know his neglect. The reason is, the news was delayed on account of too busy working in the woods, and the well freezng up. But now will tell your many readers what calamity has befell the Coburn scribe, the republican nominee for assessor; on election day, his face was all laugh and wrinkles, but on Wednesday morning natural wrinkles were gone; he explained how Danny knocked him out of the saddle; it was a doleful sight crat will have the blame for this doleful

George Eisenbuth, who is working at Seanor, Somerset county, was here and spent a week with the children, but dreamed of the calamity that was to befall the Coburn scribe on Tuesday; so he left on Monday. On Saturday I saw the Coburn scribe on his bicycle, but did not see the pouch. The assessors have to carry the assess book.

Jess Suyer says there is a disease among the hogs which he calls mumps, but my idea is not so.

On Saturday while calling at the Coburn house to have a chat with our landlord, William Egkut, republican nomince for judge of the election, I was surprised to find him sick on the sofa. C. T. Weaver said he never heard of such a calamity in township politics, and has no doubt we will hear of more being housed up-a doleful thought anyhow.
