Huckleberries Pose as Cherries.

A remarkable huckleberry tree was discovered near Brandonville, two miles north of Shamokin, by Newton Banks, a berry picker. Hundreds of people have already inspected the curiosity. The two inches thick. It is laden with huckleberries the size of cherries. Pooh, that is nothing. In the Bear Meadows, 8 miles from Bellefonte, there are several hundred acres of buckleberry trees, from 20 to 30 feet in height, that bear the most delicious berries, large and slightly tart in flavor. Berry pickers gather many bushels each season, and the writer has picked many quarts of them. We know of no other section where these huckleberry trees grow.

HE RODE THE DEER ASHORE. Bank Clerk Leaped Into Stream and Tackled Big Game.

The following beats the record, snake and fish stories are not in it: A fierce encounter with a deer in Pine Creek, at Hartranft's Island, three miles from Jersey Shore, was waged by Frank Lovelace, a clerk in the Jersey Shore, National Bank. Lovelace was seated on the bank, holding a fishing rod, when he saw the animal coming toward him. At first he did not know what it was, but soon discovered that it was a deer. Without hesitation he jumped into the water, and, swimming to the animal, grasped it by the head and yelled for his companions to secure a rope. After a brief struggle in the water the animal gained the bank, with Lovelace on its back. Once on land, the deer had little difficulty in shaking the young man off and disappeared in the thicket.
