A Woman of High Finance.

The notice of a suit brought at New York by H. D. Newton, a banker of Brookline, Mass., against Mrs. Cassle Chadwick of Cleveland, O., for $190. 000, the sum loaned her, and the coincident closing of the Citizens' National bank of Oberlin, O., which carried large notes of Mrs. Chadwick's, made a financial sensation last week. One story was that Mrs. Chadwick was none other than a notorious clairvoyant, carded the Westminster Confession of Mme. Lydia Devere. Mr. Carnegie denied it. Later the Newton suit against Mrs. Chadwick was called off, and it was announced that the woman would meet her obligations. It was intimated that she had a fortune of $5,000,000 in securities. Nevertheless several Cleveland creditors lacked confidence and got a receiver appointed for the woman's estate.
