ity of the controlling stock. Mr. Hyde's prominence as a lavish entertainer was regarded as injurious to the prestige of the business. At the meeting, however, the Hyde interests were clearly in the majority, but Mr. Hyde made no objection to the proposal to extend the suffrage to the policy holders. On the other hand, President Alexander and his friends remained in their former positions. A committee of seven was named to devise a mutualizing plan which would compensate stockholders for surrendering their voting power.

Ethics of the Biscuit Trust.

Some evidence that a great corporation may evolve a conscience is found in the annual report of the National Biscuit company. It takes pains to say that the future welfare of this tions, and consequently every officer of tories. a company should try to act so as to make the people friendly instead of hostile. To this end "the corporation must not be separated from the individuals who manage its affairs, and these individuals must carry into the management of the corporation the Judge Urges Flogging. same rules of conduct that they apply Judge Baldwin of the Connecticut to their private lives."

on which the National Biscuit company proposes to do business.

A significant feature of this company's growth is that 2,071 of its stockholders are employees, who have purchased 16,666 shares on installment, not counting the holdings of officers and managers. The sales have grown from $34,051,279 to $41,040,405, and profits have increased to $3,731,927. The company protests that it has no objection to fair competition and that it wants neither to crush nor buy out competitors.

Leather Trust's Reorganization.

The committee in charge of the readjustment of the United States Leather company has put into operation a plan which calls for a new company having $45,000,000 twenty year 5 per cent Placid club, in which he is interested, bonds, $40,000,000 of 7 per cent preferred stock and $40,000,000 common stock, out of which all reservations are made for future use. This plan is said to be backed by the Armours. As soon as the new company acquires sufficient librarian. stock the assets of the present company will be taken over.

Nev- in field operations are described by A. ******* Revolutionists Execute Duke Sergius Who next? In that single query is concentrated the frightful, but nevertheless hopeful, condition of the Russian mind on hearing that the revolutionary decree of death had been executed against the chief reactionary of the imperial family, the hated Grand Duke Sergius, by the explosion of a bomb under his carriage as he was entering the historic kremlin at Moscow Feb. 17. The bomb was thrown by a young man believed to be a student, who when arrested cried out loudly: "Freedom! Freedom!" Although he refused to give any account of himself it is known that the Moscow students had sworn to slay Sergius, especially for the massacre of Dec. 19. Some say that it is the work of the same group which destroyed Minister of the Interior Plehve in almost identical fashion. These stern conspirators always forewarn their victims before striking. They warned M. Plehve, and they warned Sergius. They have already warned Grand Duke Vladimir and two or three others. They have made no threat against the czar.

The czar was notified at once and preparations were made for the state funeral at the capital. All the world speculates on the effect of this latest blow on the progress of the country toward real reforms. It is hoped that the utter fear and misery of life for the rulers, will drive them into concessions
