This is the son's second visit to Centre county, and he came to attend the Shaffer-Hazel reunion held in Grange Park yesterday, to meet and become acquainted with the "freundschaft," which he found quite large, and we know just as respectable as large—for that is the deserved reputation of our Centre county Hazels. MR. HEWIT'S OPINION.

As to the Establishment of the Pruner Home for Friendless Children.

From Tyrone Herald, June 8th: At the request of certain citizens of Tyrone O. H. Hewit, Esq., of Hollidaysburg, examined the will of the late E. J. Pruner, and authorities bearing upon Mr. Pruner's bequest of certain properties in trust to Tyrone and Bellefonte boroughs for establishment and maintenance of a Home for Friendless Children of the two boroughs; and he prepared an opinion upon the validity of the bequest and trust under the existing circumstances, which was read before Tyrone council at its last meeting. Omitting only two quotations from legal authorities, we here publish the opinion in full, Mr. Hewit says:

"I have carefully examined Mr. Pruner's will, as well as such authorities, English and American, as I have been able to find bearing upon the subject, and I am convinced of the following propositions:—

"First, Mr. Pruner's devise of the property in question constitutes a valid and enforceable charitable trust.

"Second, The boroughs of Tyrone and Bellefonte are named as the trustees of this charitable devise, and as such take title to the property as joint tenants, so that in the event that either of the boroughs declines to act as trustee, or to accept the trust, the other borough if it accepts the trust, takes title in trust as a survivor, and becomes the sole trustee. There is only one exception to this rule, and that is where the surviving trustee, or the beneficiaries of the trust, so desire, the Orphans' Court will appoint a co-trustee to execute the trust in conjunction with the survivor.

"Third, A careful reading of Mr. Pruner's will discloses the fact that the contingency under which the devise of this property lapses, and the property goes to his niece, Sallie M. Hayes, is in the event that the boroughs named 'cannot carry out the provisions of the bequest.' This does not mean that any discretion is left in the boroughs as to whether or not they will accept the trust, but means that if for any reason the boroughs have not the power to carry out the provisions of the will, then the property reverts to Sallie M. Hayes. In other words, if the boroughs have corporate power to accept and execute the trust, then the devise cannot lapse. That municipal corporations have power to execute charitable bequests there is not the slightest doubt, and if both the boroughs had declined to accept the property and carry out the trust, the courts would have appointed trustees for the purpose. In view of the fact that both the boroughs have adopted ordinances specifically accepting the trust, it is little short of ludicrous for one of the boroughs to attempt to rescind its acceptance in hope and belief that the trust will lapse.

"Fourth, Neither the borough of Tyrone, nor the borough of Bellefonte, has one dollar of interest in this charity, so that neither borough has anything to sell, nor can a declaration to accept the trust by either of the boroughs, affect the vesting of it; therefore the acceptance of money by either borough, or both boroughs, from Sallie M. Hayes, in consideration of declining to act as trustee, would be, as we lawyers say, a nudum pactum, or nude contract, which would not be enforceable at law, and even if the money was paid by Sallie M. Hayes to the boroughs, it could be recovered back from them by her at any time. Neither borough has power to make such a contract with her.

"Just a few words by way of general discussion of the facts concerning the case. It has been held by the Supreme Court of our State that a devise to the poor people maintained in a Hospital of a given parish, in Reading, forever, is good, although the poor, not being a corporation, were incapable of taking by that name; and it was decreed in this case by the Orphans' Court that the Mayor and Burgess of Reading, who were the corporation, should take the devise for the benefit of the poor. This is a case very much like that under the Pruner will. In the Reading case, the property was devised to the poor people, not naming them, nor describing even what classes of poor should be benefited, and no trustee at all was appointed to take title to the bequest and execute it. In the Pruner case, while the beneficiaries are not specified with any greater particularity than in the Reading case, trustees are named, so that it is not left in doubt at all as to who will take title to the property. Many other cases of like character could be cited to establish this point.

"It is a rule of law that admits of no exception whatever, that equity never wants a trustee. In other words, if a trust has once properly been created, neither the incompetency, disability, death, or non-assignment of the trustee shall defeat it. Thus, where property has been bequeathed for charitable purposes, and no trustee, or a trustee disabled from taking, or one who refuses to take, is appointed, the court will decree the execution of the trust by another.

"I am very clearly of the opinion that once the trustee has accepted the office, either expressly or even by implication, it is conclusive; and he cannot afterwards, by disclaimer or renunciation avoid its duties and responsibilities. The reason for this is, that if the estate has once vested in the trustee, it cannot be divested by his mere disclaimer or renunciation; nor can he convey the estate against the consent of the beneficiaries without committing a breach of trust, except in a case where the instrument creating the trust gives him that power, or unless there is the decree of a court to that effect. Now it is perfectly clear that it was the intention of Mr. Pruner to provide a charity for Friendless Children, and that only in the event that these boroughs could not accept the trust, the property was to go to this niece. Not only could the boroughs accept the trust, but they did accept it, and thus the trust vested, and it is not in the power of either or both of the trustees to divest it. Possibly they may both rescind as trustees, but the property is vested and the trust is fixed, and its execution is but of minor importance. Our Orphans' Courts take delight in protecting the helpless and the fatherless, and if it should happen that the Councilmen of Tyrone should so far forget the common principles of humanity as to attempt to barter away, for filthy lucre, which they cannot legally obtain, the property of these helpless little ones, as the Councilmen of the Borough of Bellefonte have attempted to do, this court will very quickly and effectively stretch out its strong arm of protection to these little ones."

White and Rowe.

The nomination of our esteemed townsman, Dr. F. K. White, is highly gratifying to our people, regardless of political affiliation. The Dr. is one of our very best citizens, has a legion of warm friends, and he may be assured if he is not the next treasurer of Centre county it will not be Phillipsburg's fault. It goes without saying that the burg will give him a big vote on election day. We join the Dr. in heartiest congratulations.

The re-nomination of John C. Rowe, a former Phillipsburger, for Recorder, was naturally expected. He had served faithfully the present term, and according to custom was entitled to a re-nomination. We extend him our hearty congratulations.—Phillipsburg Journal.

Reception to Dr. F. K. White.

Dr. F. K. White, the newly nominated candidate for County Treasurer on the Democratic ticket, on his return from Bellefonte last week, was escorted from the train to his home by the Reliance band and a delegation of Democrats. They displayed a banner bearing the description, "Our Next County Treasurer." The Dr. is busy receiving congratulations.—Phillipsburg Journal.

ADJOINING COUNTIES.

Phillipsburg is to get a new garment factory. The plant will have a capacity for employing 350 people and will add to the prosperity of that place. The stock of the company is $50,000.

One evening last week a carrier pigeon flew into Mrs. Stover's house, near the Eagleville railroad station. The bird has a metal band on the leg with a number of figures and characters marked on it. It apparently was exhausted and had lost its way.

The Pennsylvania railroad has awarded a contract to the Carnegie Steel company for eight miles of steel ties that will be experimented with. Ten miles of track of the new ties are in use on the Lake Shore railroad and are said to be a success in every way.

One of the features of the Barnum and Bailey circus had to be omitted at Pittsburg Monday. It was the troupe of Japanese acrobats. The Japs positively refused to work and every mother's son of them painted the town red that night, celebrating the Japanese victory.

An old criminal was once asked what was the first step that led him to ruin. He said: "The first thing that led to my downfall was cheating an editor out of two year's subscription. When I had done that the devil had such a grip on me that I could not shake him off."

For the first time in many years all the furnaces in the Lebanon valley are now in operation. The last stack to be lighted was the second Lebanon furnace, of the Pennsylvania Steel company. There are twelve furnaces located in the cities—Cornwall, Sheridan and Robesonia.

Fast trains between New York and Chicago are exciting the minds of the railway officials. A New York Central man intimates that a 16-hour train will be put on if competition be sharp enough, and a Pennsylvania official says, "We have not announced a 17-hour train yet, but I think you will see it made a 16-hour train as soon as we get our new station in New York."

The Methodists of Central Pennsylvania, comprising some 200 congregations, will hold an outing at Reservoir park, Harrisburg, on June 20th. The committee on arrangements met last Wednesday at the home of Rev. Dr. Isaac Woods, of Grace Methodist Episcopal church, Harrisburg, and decided to make "Methodist Day" the greatest celebration ever held at that place.

While Spangler's circus was giving a performance in Williamsburg, Blair county, Friday night several sections of the seats collapsed, due to overcrowding and two persons were fatally injured while a score or more were hurt seriously. Mrs. Wm. Strassar and Mrs. Wm. Ruth were the persons fatally injured, receiving broken limbs and internal hurts. Men and women fought to free themselves and the cries of the injured could be heard blocks away.
