Big Order For Locomotives. The New York Central railroad has awarded to the American Locomotive company one of the largest single contracts for locomotives ever placed. It calls for from 400 to 500 locomotives at a cost of about $7,000,000.

Suburbanizing City Industries. Montgomery, Ward & Co., the big mail order establishment of Chicago, around which the recent teamsters' strike was centered, have announced their intention of moving the entire plant to an outlying section of the city in order to escape a recurrence of their dependence on city team associations.

RELIGIOUS

Great Hebrew Celebration. Toward the end of the year 1654 the first Jewish settlers on the soil of what is now the United States landed at New Amsterdam, and in commemoration of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of that event the Jews of America held a special service of jubilation on Thanksgiving day.

Work of Torrey and Alexander. The American evangelists, Torrey and Alexander, concluded their three years' crusade in Great Britain with a farewell mass meeting at Liverpool. They say they have made 95,000 converts during their stay in England.

A Successful Church For Men. Secretary W. Scott Corlis of the Buffalo Y. M. C. A. tells in the Christian Advocate about the success of a recent interdenominational movement started by his organization in that city in the holding of gospel meetings for men, without regard to class or creed.

It now appears that the statue of the devil erected by Herman Meutz, the free thinking stone cutter of Detroit, in his own yard is not to be molested, the tempest of popular disapproval having blown over. The statue bears this inscription in Latin: "Man is not a creation, but an evolution; God did not make man, but man has made the gods."

SOCIOLOGICAL

Profit Sharing With Customers. Eltwed Pomeroy in the December World Today quotes N. C. Nelson as saying that "it is a disgrace for a man to be rich," claiming thus an improvement on Carnegie's alleged saying that "it is a disgrace for a man to die rich."

in view of his experiment of the current year in sharing profits with the company's customers as well as with its employees. His position is that, the business having been made by the co-operation of employees and customers, he wants them to have the benefit of it.

gradually he expects to see it pass entirely into the ownership of the employees and the customers. He believes it can be made more profitable by this mutual interest and that the additional profit will go to those who make it.

Islands For Bird Preservation. The Louisiana Audubon society has leased for ten years seventeen islands off the coast of Louisiana to be used as wild preserves for the nesting and breeding of birds under the care and guardianship of wardens.

At the Tuberculosis Show. The American tuberculosis exhibition has opened at the American Museum of Natural History, New York, under the auspices of the Association For the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. The object is to show by models of sanitariums, of hospitals, of tenement houses, etc., the progress and methods that have been adopted in recent years for the prevention and cure of consumption.

Editor McClure's Proud Boast. S. S. McClure, editor of McClure's Magazine, has a signed editorial in his December issue speaking of its advertising pages as "the market place of the world." But he calls attention to the fact that in this market place no saloons can be found, the "best" liquors are not announced, there are no 20 per cent investment offers, and "a sufferer from cancer must go elsewhere."

Largest Fossil Flesh Eater. The fossil remains of a flesh eating land animal known as Rex tyrannosaurus, the largest thus far known in this world, have just been brought from northern Montana to be reconstructed in the American Museum of Natural History at New York under the direction of Professor Henry F. Osborne, curator of the department of vertebrate paleontology.

Importing Bugs to Fight Bugs. The first 150 pound case of minute hymenoptera flies in embryonic stage has arrived at Boston from Zurich, Switzerland, to be used in waging war on the brown tail moths which have made such havoc in New England vegetation in the last few years.

November's Weather Record. Prior to the recent storms the month of November had been the warmest and driest November on record in the eastern section of the country.

Text of the Lesson, Neh. viii, 8-18. Memory Verses, 17, 18—Golden Text. Luke xi, 28—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This lesson should be one of special interest to all who are privileged to attend Bible studies or conferences and an inducement to others to do so. It is an account of a seven days' conference for Bible reading, at which the book of the law of Moses was read in the hearing of all the men and women who assembled from morning until midday (verses 1-3, 18).

An account of the seventh month, with its feasts of trumpets, atonement and tabernacles, is found in Lev. xxiii and should be carefully studied in connection with this lesson. The three might be summarized in such words as these: The proclamation of the forgiveness of sins causing great joy to all the people.

Verse 8 of our lesson is, I think, the best definition of good reading that I have ever seen. I do not know why it might not be applied to singing also, especially to solo or duet singing, or such like. But, if so applied, what about the singing that does not come under this head? Well, away with it all.

As to both the law and the prophets, God took care that the words should be very plainly written, so that those who read might run to obey (Deut. xxvii, 8; Hab. ii, 2). The necessity of understanding the word and how to understand it may be learned from Matt. xiii, 19, 51; xvi, 9, 11; Acts viii, 30; Heb. xi, 3; iv, 2. What shall be said of the sermons and essays which few of the hearers can understand, but which are supposed to indicate superior talent on the part of the speaker?

The word of God is quick and powerful, discerning the thoughts and intents of the heart (Heb. iv, 12); hence the people mourned and wept as by the words of the book they saw their sin before God (verse 9). The Spirit of God convicts of sin and of righteousness and of judgment (John xvi, 8-11), and without conviction of sin and repentance there can be no real blessing.

of Edward of the agricultural department. They were promptly sent to the North Saugus parasite station to be cured for until they have grown sufficiently to be set to work on the moths.

College Heads Menace Football. The agitation against college football under existing methods and rules was brought to a decisive issue by the death of Harold R. Moore of the Union college team in its game with New York university. This, taken in connection with the season's long list of serious accidents and fatalities, has set on foot a movement to bring the college presidents into conference on the subject.

Statistics prepared by the Chicago Tribune for the football season up to Nov. 25 showed that ten persons had been killed and 137 seriously injured. This record of deaths is more than double that of the yearly average for the last five years.

The Columbia university committee on student organization, which controls athletics, was called together by President Butler and took action formally disbanding the football association. The committee recommends that the game of football be abolished and prohibited at Columbia university. On the same day the council of the New York university called a conference of twenty eastern colleges which it had had athletic relations with to consider whether the present game of football should be abolished, whether it can be reformed or what games can be substituted.

November's Weather Record. Prior to the recent storms the month of November had been the warmest and driest November on record in the eastern section of the country. Rain, snow and blizzard conditions prevailed throughout the northwest the last three days of the month.

Accidents. The storm on the great lakes was disastrous to shipping, more than twenty vessels being wrecked and the loss running into the millions. From twenty-five to thirty were reported drowned. The wind at times reached a velocity of seventy-five miles an hour.

The sealing schooner Fawn was wrecked on northern Vancouver island and her crew of twenty-seven lost, together with a cargo of 500 seal-skins, news of the disaster having been brought to Victoria later. Eighteen persons were drowned in the collision of Japanese transports at Simonoseki.

A rear end collision between two passenger trains on the Fitchburg division of the Boston and Maine railroad occurred, resulting in the death of seven persons and the injury of forty. The Montreal express, which ran into a local, appears to have passed several danger signals, and it is supposed that the engineer's brain had suspended action. The engineer was among the killed.

An express train on the Central Railroad of New Jersey was derailed near Stony Brook, Pa., Nov. 30, and plunged into the Lehigh river, two trainmen being killed and eighteen passengers injured.

An Animal Story For Little Folks HOW THE FROG WON THE RACE

Everybody knows what a fondness Mr. Frog has for engaging in contests of all kinds with his fellow creatures, so that when he one day met the crane that long legged bird was not surprised to receive a challenge.

"I can get across that pond before you," declared Mr. Frog. "No you can't," replied Mr. Crane, with a laugh. "Well, we'll have a race," declared Mr. Frog, "and the first to get on the other side of the pond shall marry the miller's daughter."

"I shall win without trouble," cried Mr. Crane, who was thinking how far he could stride with his long legs.

"We shall see," said Mr. Frog. "Are you ready?" asked Mr. Crane. "Yes," answered Mr. Frog.

"Go!" cried Mr. Crane, and away they both went into the water.

Mr. Crane strode boldly in and went through the water with long steps, rapidly leaving the shore behind.

Into the water also went Mr. Frog with a big splash.

When Mr. Crane had gone some distance he stopped and looked around to see where Mr. Frog was, but that wary creature was not in sight.

"Well, I guess I've left him far behind," said Mr. Crane, with a laugh. "I shall just wait here for him to catch up."

So he waited and waited, and no sign came of Mr. Frog.

But presently he heard a voice calling to him, and when he looked over at the other side of the pond who should Mr. Crane see but Mr. Frog.

Mr. Frog had swum all the way under the surface of the water!

"I told you I would get here first," laughed the frog—Atlanta Constitution.

COLLEGE GIRLS.

Statistics Which Go to Show That They Make Good Mothers.

An instructor at Vassar college has an odd and interesting collection of photographs—the photographs of the babies of young women who are college graduates. The babies in this collection are strong and beautiful. They number over 300. The instructor said of them:

"I began to collect pictures of the children of female A. B.'s and A. M.'s because I had heard so much talk about the higher education unfitting woman for her natural sphere, and so on.

"My collection proves that the higher education makes mothers of an excellence hitherto unknown. Highly educated women don't weaken themselves with tight corsets, with overmuch dancing and card playing. They are athletic and strong. Their bodies as well as their minds are developed.

"They enter upon the duties of motherhood with a unique courage and wisdom and strength, and the result is that their babies are the biggest, strongest, handsomest little creatures—but just look at those pictures," she cried, "and judge for yourself!"
