

BUGOLOGISTS AT WAR.

Prof. Surface Comes Back at Dr. Groff With Hot Stuff.

Several weeks ago we published an article by Dr. Geo. G. Groff, of Bucknell College, Lewisburg, Pa., in which he criticised Prof. Surface, State Zoologist, of State College, upon his efforts to destroy the San Jose scale.

Prof. Surface sends the following to us as a reply to Prof. Groff, and seeks thereby to put his harpoon into the editor of this paper as well. We publish his ill-tempered communication, with no further comment:

San Jose Scale in Centre county—Prof. Surface Replies to Groff—Spraying only way to Save Trees—Errors Shown in Groff's Unmanly Attack.

State College, Pa., Dec. 7, 1905.

To the Editor of the Centre Democrat:

DEAR SIR:—In your issue of Nov. 23rd you aid in the dissemination of a nonsensical article by Geo. G. Groff, in which he makes certain false statements and tries to lay serious blame on someone when it should be placed on himself. You very blindly and unjustly turn his asinine charges upon me, although I have had nothing whatever to do with the Nursery Inspection in this state.

I do not usually reply to such absurd attacks, but in view of the great importance of the San Jose scale in destroying many fruit trees right here in our own county, as well as elsewhere, I respectfully request you to give this reply as much prominence as you gave Groff's bitter attack and your own personal remarks.

Groff's "prominence" and "text books" in anatomy do not make him an expert or reliable authority in entomology or zoology. I have written more books than he, but that gives me no just claim to ability to kill the scale.

I never was nursery inspector, and this is and always has been in the direct charge of the Secretary of Agriculture. Groff was nursery inspector five years, and it was then that the scale started to run riot in this state.

Groff's early discovery of the Scale is against him, rather than for him, as in these twelve years he has been unable to check its spread from his own tree as I have personally seen within the past two weeks. The scale is spreading from tree to tree and from orchards to orchards in this county and state, and if tree owners remain idle in belief of Dr. Groff's wrong views and statements they will be sure to lose their trees.

From Dr. Groff's orchard in Lewisburg, it has spread over ten miles, as two of us have recently traced it. In Rebersburg, Phillipsburg, etc., my assistant in this region, Prof. C. A. Heiss, has recently discovered it and traced it from place to place across the property of many men. I, with my inspector (of orchards), R. F. Lee, examined hundreds of trees in Lewisburg and found the San Jose scale on absolutely every tree of a variety liable to attack which had been planted there long enough to have had the pest carried to it.

Dr. Groff could not resist the embittered impulse to take a fling at my "men of a month's training." What inconsistency! When he showed his own son out to fumigate a house and sent him out as an "expert" to fumigate the abodes of men and upon the scientific accuracy and success of which human life must depend. How about an "expert of a day's training, and an inexperienced boy as such "expert" My inspectors and demonstrators are highly educated students and teachers of most expert fruit growers who have successfully controlled the Scale for years on their own premises by the means we are advocating.

Groff has nothing to lose in this dirty attack, because he is doing nothing practical for any man to watch and criticize. I am in the orchards with my men. If my work in such an orchard as Col. Reynolds' does not result in saving that most valuable orchard in this county from absolute destruction I shall resign as State Zoologist, withdraw my "men of a month's training," and let Dr. Groff take the field with his experts of a day. At present, however, if persons have infested trees they should lose no time in learning the same and applying the boiled lime-sulphur wash, or they will soon learn that our self-appointed critic made one statement which is true when he said "The scale would die out in the orchard where it is, but it would kill the trees." (These are his words). No statement could more emphasize the necessity of the work we are now trying to do to save the otherwise certainly doomed orchards, inspecting them, telling owners to be present, showing them how to treat it.

The trees in his orchard that "are not yet infested" are varieties that do not attack (Kieffer pears, generally sour cherry, etc.) and he should be honest enough to say so.

Respectfully,
H. A. SURFACE, State Zoologist.

CANDLE SHADES.

They are Charming Ornaments When Used With Discretion.

Candle shades are lovely things when used discreetly. Table candles demand shades always, but mantel candles and bedroom candles do not invariably need them, and a great deal of good judgment must be used to avoid millinery displays. Some woman said that candle shades were a necessity on the table because they nearly always caught on fire and thus gave people something to talk about. There is a deal of truth in her statement that they nearly always catch on fire, but if shades are justified at all the first duty of the housekeeper is to see that all such dangers are removed. The flimsy paper shades and even the silk shades ordinarily seen are menaces in this direction and should not be tolerated.

Plain satin and satin paper shades properly protected by isinglass screens are not dangerous, and some exquisite little models are for sale in the shops. There are also to be had fluted paper shades treated with a composition which makes them look like semitransparent glass and renders them nearly fireproof. Pierced brass shades are good, but are a little heavy for light candlesticks. The little gelsia shades are as safe as paper shades can be. If the purse is unlimited the most beautiful shades to be had are of saic glass, made and designed by artist craftsmen. Satin shades covered with Bruges and Brussels lace have been seen, but the effect is too frivolous to be admired. Lace is not meant for such utilitarian uses as that. Be very careful how you deck out the candelabra, three and seven branch of Russian brass. Some of these are strictly ecclesiastical in design, and shades of any kind are inappropriate, as a general rule.—New York Post.

WALLOPED PRESIDENT.

Just for That He Got a Good Appointment From Teddy.

Because he walloped the President of the United States in a set-to with boxing gloves, Capt. Frank Prantz, formerly of the Rough Riders, has been appointed Governor of Oklahoma. He will take his seat on Jan. 1, after having been postmaster at Enid and later Osage Indian agent—all as the result of his boxing ability.

Captain Prantz went to see the President soon after Roosevelt entered the White House. During a reminiscent talk Prantz hinted that he used to box some when at Harvard. This interested the President, and he insisted that Prantz put on the gloves with him. During the first round Roosevelt got a soaking on the jaw and went down.

"Bully," remarked the President. "That was a good one. But you can't do it again."

Again the two got into their positions. After two minutes of sparring Prantz landed a left hook on the President's jaw, and Roosevelt lay on his back on the gymnasium floor. He wasn't out, but he had lost his eagerness to "mix" it again.

"Just for that I will give you an appointment of some kind," remarked the President, after the bout was finished. Prantz took the President's remark as a joke until a few months later, when he was appointed postmaster at Enid.

Railroad Trains.

Fifteen headaches cured for 10c by using "Moyer's Headache Tablets." If a dissatisfied boarder wrote: Backward, turn backward, oh, time in your flight; feed me on gruel again just for to-night. I am so weary of sole-leather steak, petrified biscuit and galvanized cake; oysters that sleep in a watery bath, and butter as strong as Goliath of Gath. Weary of paying for what I can't eat, chewing up rubber and calling it meat. Backward turn backward, how weary I am; give me a swipe at grandmother's jam; let me once more have an old fashioned pie, then I'll be ready to curl up and die.

Don't go to bed without a bottle of "Oil of Gladness" in the house. Your darling may have croup. The oil will cure it.

CARE OF FURNITURE.

Keep New Pieces as Long as Possible Without Restoratives.

New furniture should be kept as long as possible without the use of restoratives. Furniture which has been finished with shellac or varnish, whether in glossy or dull finish, should never be cleaned with soap and water. Soap is made to cut oily substances and thus eats out the oil from the waxed, oiled or shellacked surface and works destruction. If an oil restorer seems a necessity, raw linseed oil and raw turpentine in equal parts applied on a piece of cheesecloth will be found most often of service.

For carved portions which require daily attention soft brushes, such as are used for the cleaning of silver, are the best agent. Brush the ornamented portions thoroughly with a dry brush and use a second for the real cleaning. Dip the second in turpentine and use without fear of scratching the surface of the wood.

Where white spots appear on surfaces from the dropping of liquids or from heat the immediate application of raw linseed oil generally restores the color. The oil should be left on the affected spot for several hours or overnight. Alcohol performs the service if applied at once to rosewood or highly finished mahogany. In each instance when the color has returned the spot should be repolished with a piece of cheesecloth moistened with turpentine.

Forestry.

The government bureau of forestry reports that land owners, lumbermen, stockmen and miners are beginning to see that conservative forest management means dollars and cents directly to the industries of this country. Not very long ago many people of the land regarded our forest experts and outsiders who interested themselves in forest preservation as meddlesome faddists, whose ideas were wholly sentimental. Now eleven states have some form of forest administration, and several colleges are making forestry a special line of study.

The annual waste by forest fires in this country is estimated at $25,000,000, a small sum in comparison with the annual product, but nevertheless worth thinking about. To a great extent the fires are due to lack of scientific efforts to preserve the timber. It is generally admitted that unless the destruction of forests shall be arrested a timber famine in the future is inevitable. In the past five years there has been a large gain in the popular acceptance and application of the principles which govern the proper care and use of wood lands.

Creating the Fashions.

Who sets the fashions? Sometimes an original idea emanates from a humble workwoman, and after fusion in the brain and improvements and suggestions given by the great gutocrat.

Costly Correspondence.
"I see that a letter supposed to have been written by Henry VIII. has just brought $2,000."

"That's nothing. A letter of mine just brought $10,000."

"Indeed?"
"Yes; to a girl who sued me for breach of promise."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Up to the present no 1905 dollars have been coined by the mints, and the chances are that only a few may be struck, says the Philadelphia Record. Their scarcity would in a few years boost the value of the coins to collectors, just as the rarity of 1804 dollars has made them worth from $1,000 and upward to numismatists.

Another treasure seeking party is working on the island of Mauritius to recover $100,000,000 or thereabouts.
