In a mad gallop. Ten-year-old Teddy of Neill. Western Union messenger boy, cut suddenly into the avenue from a side street and circled on his wheel like an eagle. His eyes followed the truck with longing. It was not content with books. It dwelt upon Amy, as she appeared but a short time before. It occurred to him that he had thought of her many times in the past few weeks. But then it was purely professional—their common integrated by the truck with longing. It was purely professional—their common integrated by the truck with longing. It was purely professional—their common integrated by the truck with longing. It was purely professional—their common integrated by the truck with longing. It was purely professional—their common integrated by the truck with longing. It was purely professional—their common integrated by the truck with longing and taken us a little collection for fail to interest other women through-long the truck with longing and taken us a little collection for fail to interest other women through-long the truck with longing and taken us a little collection for fail to interest other women through-long the truck with longing and taken us a little collection for fail to interest other women through-long the truck with longing and taken us a little collection for fail to interest other women through-long the truck with longing and taken us a little collection for fail to interest other women through-long the truck with longing and the truck w lowed the truck with longing. It was a struggle 'twixt duty and pleasure. Then an engine dashed into sight. It was drawn by three magnificent blacks, and in the darkness it gleamed blacks, and in the darkness it gleamed that elways cycled even by the darkness it gleamed that elways cycled even by the darkness it gleamed that elways cycled even by the darkness it gleamed that elways cycled even by the darkness it gleamed that elways cycled even by the darkness it gleamed that elways cycled even by the darkness it gleamed that elways cycled even by the darkness it gleamed that elways cycled even by the darkness it gleamed that elways cycled even by the darkness it gleamed that elways cycled even by the darkness it gleamed that elways cycled even by the darkness it gleamed that elways cycled even by the darkness it gleamed that elways cycled even by the darkness it gleamed that elways even cents. What a God-send! Teddy should have a royal Christmas—even to the "ingyne" that would go by itself.

There was now no doubt that Teddy was improving. Day by day the thin like a demon, spitting fire and smoke. Teddy gave a howl of enthusiasm and before him. But pshaw, it meant nothfollowed in its wake.

wheel of the engine, bending low over his handle bars. Something of the spirit of the fire-fighters of old was in the spirit of the his blood, and though his little heart and that he was hopelessly in the toils. was pounding with sudden stress he held the pace, his short legs dancing mechanically with the pedals.

blocked the way. A collision seemed inevitable. The driver rose in his seat, jammed the brake down, and drew with all his strength on the lines. The blacks came down on their haunches and with stiffened forelegs had lived with an aunt, who beat him; alid on the smooth pavement. Just so he ran away and finally graduated in time the heavy engine came to a from newsboy to telegraph messenger.

knew not of the obstruction. Suddenly the shining engine loomed

A crowd gathered-quickly. Gentle hands bore the limp and mangled body to a nearby hospital. When Teddy awoke he lay in a white tron bed, in a long room, with many well?" other beds on each side of him. He tried hard to remember. What did it might be worth gettin' well for," he all mean? And what made the pain in his head, his chest, his legs? He gave a little groan. gave a little groan.

woman came to the bed and leaned over him. Years afterward he light faded from his eyes and the old that always curled over her ear stood ing. Thus he tried to trick his con-

This is love's alchemy. In the dimly lighted ward Amy was at Teddy's bedside. The boy was wake-At the cross street a trolley car ful and restless. He wanted company.

But Teddy, pedaling as though for that patron saint of the children, was to him a myth—"only for rich folks'

But when she told him how Santa before him. He threw up his arms and with a little cry dashed into the heavy steel-shod wheels.

A crowd gathered quickly. Gentle

But when she told him how band in her eyes. Something told her that his interest was not in Teddy alone. his interest was not in Teddy alone. "Ask me Christmas morning," she lived, his eyes grew big with interest. whispered, "and I will tell you; not a day before." And try as he might he will come here on Christmas day and bring you lots of presents and a Christmas tree will you try to get well?"

day before. And try as he might be day found and snow and bitter cold. Teddy found the weather would keep Santa Teddy thought hard. "Guess that morning. Too busy to see you, but will leave a few reminders. Hang up Santa Claus. He looked up into her face with an stocking. expression of rapture. "That's straight goods," he said. "It's the real thing. even to the press copy." Then his thoughts took a long jump. "How long before Christmas?" he asked.

During the next three weeks Amy was very busy. She had to calculate closely for the money. Her salary was Clang - clang - clang -a-lang-a-lang-a-lang-a-lang-a-lang! Down the broad, brilliantly lighted avenue swept a heavy fire truck, its five dappled horses united in a mad gallop. Ten-year-old Teddy O'Neill Western Union messanger dwelt upon Amy, as she appeared but the clange of the salary was small, and there was her widowed mother to care for. But her anxiety was unnecessary. One day a note came from the manager of the telegraph company. The boys in the office was improving. Day by day the thin love of its adventures than face filled out. His color returned, results which it brings about, He was eating regularly, sleeping Six years' service in connection with soundly, and the spells of coughing were less frequent. The doctor spoke private work have given to Miss Russaid to her one day. It was just a week before Christmas. "The gain is most remarkable. Tell me, Miss Norton, what wonderful elixir have you given him? I may need it myself be fore long. I, too, have a malady that defies drugs."

She looked at him in sudden Tearthen flushed before his strong, tender gaze. "I cannot tell you now." Her eyes were turned away. Her face was bright with pleasure. "But can't I know soon?" he asked, with an almost boyish pleading in his voice. "Name a day when I may ask and be answered."

She turned to him with a new light in her eyes. Something told her that Claus away. But Amy reassured him. "Oh, Santa Claus likes the snow. He rides in a big sleigh with a long team of reindeers. He's sure to get here some time in the night. We'll hang been a bitter disappointment, for the up your stocking right here on the bedpost. And then you must go to sleep early."

At eight o'clock she went off duty. Teddy didn't get to sleep as directed, for excitement, but finally he fell into a deep slumber. His telegram in his hand, and his long black stocking hung in plain sight on the bedpost. All over the city, fathers and mothers. were commencing their work of love, and Amy, tired though she was, began

In a private room stood the tree. The floor was strewn with packages. She had no assistance, but she worked on, with strings of popcorn and cran-berries, fancy bags of candy, brilliant glass balls, and showers of tinsel. Near midnight four strong men came from the lower ward, and Teddy's lit-tle iron bed, with Teddy sound asleep, was carried gently into the private sion of incidents well calculated to room. Then she slipped away to her weave themselves into a score of melo-sathed her face again and again in the old water until she felt able to keep her eyes open. It was five o'clockstill dark.

She entered Teddy's room and urned on the electric light. He was alceping quietly. There was a step in the hall and the door opened. It was the doctor his face a study. She held up a warning finger, then turned to the bed and reaching down took the boy in her arms and kissed him. "Teddy," she cried, a little sob in her voice "Teddy, Merry Christmas! Merry Christmas! Teddy."

Teddy woke suddenly and sat bolt upright. He gave a shout of joy. "Oh-h-h," he cried, in a long, echoing gasp. "Oh, Jimminy Whillikins, ain't that great." Then words failed him, and he could only look and look, him and placed him on the floor, for he was not yet able to walk. By his side Amy laid the stocking, now bulging with treasures. In front of him stood the "ingyne" and many other things dear to boyish hearts. He handled them one after another in silent awe. Then he took the stock ing and with delicious deliberation poured from it a wealth of treasures.

waking. From without came the tooting of horns. Bells were ringing all over the great city. It was Christmas he would watch Amy at her work, his eyes following her up and cown the room. He was disinclined to eat, and daily his face became whiter and thin ner, and his eyes bigger and blacker.

It was Dr. Stone's custom to meet Amy in the operating room several times a week for consultation. One evening they talked of Teddy. The doctor shook his head gravely. He doctor shook his head gravely. He was a handsome, young man, with she wrote a note to the manager of the doctor went with her to her door. Even in the dim light of the hall he could see the drawn lines about her mouth and eyes, her tremulations and tucked him in snugly. "I'll tell him, dearie," she said. "And I just know he'll bring the 'ingyne'. Now go to sleep and you'll wake up in the morning lots better." She stroked the little head gently. Slowly his eyes closed and he slept.

Amy went to her room. At her desk that she would cry instead.

when the doctor came in. But it was a part of their plan that the doctor hould not know, and though Teddy was on the peak of expectancy he cept the secret.

At three o'clock a messenger brought Amy a yellow envelope, and the took it straight to Teddy's bed. He reached for it eagerly, tore it open, and with shining eyes read the message:

Will you say yes? I cannot live without you."

Then he was gone, and on her trembling lips his kiss burned like sweet fire. Half fainting, her heart going like a trip-hammer, she closed the door and sank upon the bed. Gradually peace came to her, and slumber. In her dreams she heard him calling: her dreams she heard him calling: "Amy. Amy. I cannot live without you."

And suddenly she awoke, in the broad sunlight, smiling, and whispering to herself: "Herbert, Herbert, yes, with all my soul."

Will you say yes? I cannot live without almost instantly. She is handsome and has a weet speaks a half dozen languages duently, is a gifted musician, and has a keep sense of a clue which would do honor to the best men detectives in the business.

On one occasion when she was on the second of a forger in New York, she was obliged to follow him from the house in which they were both stopping to a rallroad station. He took the train for Philadelphia, and all-

CLEVER WOMAN DETECTIVE.

MISS ADELAIDE C. RUSSELL AMONG MOST SUCCESSFUL OF MODERN SLEUTHS.

Assumes Many Peculiar Disgulses and Visits Little Known Sections-Is Talented Musician and Accomplished Linguist.

Equipped with a personality as charming as it is distinctive Miss Adelaide C. Russell has joined the army of women workers, but in such a unique commonly supposed to go hand in hand with this profession are wanting in the case of this interesting young woman who follows it rather from a love of its adventures than for the sion of incidents well calculated to dramas if she would only relate them. It seemed to Amy that but a few minutes had elapsed when she was but during the six years she has been awakened by the alarm clock on her a detective; she has been all around bureau. She arose, made a light, and the world and has adopted many different. Miss Russell is still in her twenties through her own personality, but adopts the various disguises as the occasion warrants. Further than this she has the remarkable record of never having known failure. Of the hundreds of cases on which she has worked she has obtained the results for which she started and to-day her record is one of continual successes

Has Figured in Famous Cases. If one were given a thousand chances to name Miss Russell's profession, that of detective would never figure on the list. One might take her for a singer, probably for an actress, maybe for a newspaper woman, but never class her as a clever sleuth who has figured in some of the most famous cases in this country and Europe. During the Paris Exposition Miss Russell worked on several forgery cases which had their locale in Paris. In order to gain knowledge to be used as evidence in these cases Miss Russell, who is a talented musician and plays the harp skillfully, dressed as a street musician, again as a newsboy and still again as a hotel waitress.

One of the most celebrated divorce cases this country has ever known was brought to a climax through evidence secured by Miss Russell. The husband was the offender and went to Mexico. poured from it a wealth of treasures. He was dazed by his sudden accumulation of riches. He looked up at them with a smile. "That's a bully Santa Claus," he said. "He done his part nobly. I'm goin' to get well all right."

After a while they put him back to bed, with his gifts spread around him and together left the room. The dawn was breaking. The busy world was waking. From without came the tooting of horns. Bells were ringing all was only momentary.

Miss Russell followed him there, hired herself as a maid and traveled with the people all over Europe. She was gone eight months and when the case gone eight months and when the case similarly came to trial and the man found that he had been paying the expenses of a detective for nearly a year he attempted to kill Miss Russell. Her ready use of a small pistel which she always carried saved her life. Miss Russell admits that for once her heart was in her mouth, although the fright was only momentary. Miss Russell followed him there, hired was only momentary.

ing of horns. Bells were ringing all over the great city. It was Christmas morning.

The doctor went with her to her door. Even in the dim light of the hall he could see the drawn lines about her mouth and eyes, her tremulous lips. "You must go back to bed," he said anxiously. "I will see that you are not disturbed until noon. You are tired out."

She did not try to speak, fearing that she would cry instead.

"You have won a great victory over death," he said. "The injuries are nothing now; he will recover. It is the desire to live that you have implanted in him—that is the triumph." Then, on sudden impulse, he put his arms about her. "Oh, Amy, Amy," he said brokenly. "You have saved his life; will you not save mine, dear? Will you say yes? I cannot live without you."

Was in her mouth, although the fright was only momentary.

Disguised as a Newsboy.

In New York Miss Russell has sold dozens of newspapers among the crowd of "newsies" about Wall street. She acknowledges that in nearly all the divorce cases which fail to her share her sympathy is with the wife. Recently she had such a case to follow up and having located her people in the outskirts of a certain large city Miss Russell visited the house nearly every day, but always in a different disguise. First she went as a man, wearing a little light mustache; again whe went as a little old German woman selling herbs. Her accent was so broken that she could hardly be understood and she put up such a story of hard luck that she was invited to come again, which of course, she did. The lady has a particularly charming personality. Her voice is soft and cultivated, but can be made to change almost instantly. She is handsome and having located her people in the divorce cases which fail to her share her sympathy is with the wife. Recently she acknowledges that in nearly all dozens of newspapers among the crowd of "newsies" about Wall street.

She acknowledges that in nearly all dozens of newspapers among the crowd of "newsies" about Wall street.

She acknowledges tha

LADIES THIS Handsome Fur Scart GIVEN AWAY

Send us your name and address and we will send you free and post-paid 24 pieces of our lewelry noveitles to sell at 10 cents each. Everybody you show them to will buy them of you. When sold send us the $2.40 and we will at once send you this

Handsome Fur Scarf

It is nearly 48 inches long, made from black Lynz fur, has six full, bushy tabs, very latest style, and we know you will be more than pleased with it. When you receive it we know you will say it is the most elegant and thoroughly good fur you have ever seen. Nothing similar to this scarf has ever before been offered as a premium; it will give years of satisfactory wears. It gives a stylish, dressy effect to the wearer's appearance. The only reason we can offer them is we had a large number of them made up for us by one of the large furriers during the summer when trade was quiet; this is the only reason we are able to offer such an expensive premium. We hope you will take advantage of our offer without delay. This is an extraordinary offer and cannot be duplicated by any other reliable concern. We trust you with our lewelry until sold. It costs you nothing to get this fur. Address,

COLUMBIA NOVELTY CO., Dept. 655, East Boston, Mass.

though Miss Russell had not time to put on her hat and coat she, too, jumped on the train. Her badge carried her, but when she got to Philadelphia she gave the tip to a depot detective to watch the man while she hurried into the ladies' waiting room and paid the maid two dollars for the latter's hat. Miss Russell declares it was not the most modish hat she ever known, but it covered her head and gave her an opportunity to continue "shadowing" her man, whom she finally ran to cover, and made her Free Training of Nurses.

An excellent work has been undertaken by the Philadelphia School for Nurses, which is providing free training in nursing, for a number of young women in every county in Pentsyl vania.

The young women will be provided with room, board, uniforms, and all the conveniences of a well-appointed Christian home. The course is two years of training, in nursing the sick poor of the city, under skilled leaders. In addition to regular nursing, the young women are taught how to preserve their own health; how to recognize, avoid, and destroy contagion and how to establish and maintain perfect sanitary conditions about the

An Appeal.

My hand is lonely for your clasping, dear,
My ear is tired, waiting for your call;
I want your strength to help, your smile to cheer;
Heart, soul and senses, need you, one and all.
I droop without your full, frank sympathy.
We ought to be together, you and I.

We ought to be together, you and I.
We want each other so to comprehend
The dream, the hope, thing planned or seen or wrought.
Companion, comforter, and guide and friend,
As much as love asks love, does thought need thought;
Life is so short, so fast the love hours

Me ought to be together, you and L.

Cut It Out.

The late Senator Hoar was informed that a very dear friend was seriously ill with appendicitis.

He had hardly finished his note of sympathy when he was informed th it was an attack of acute indigestion instead, and so he sent the following: Dear A-I am sorry to hear that you are ill, but rejoiced to learn that the trouble is with the table of contents rather than with the appendix."

Sold everywhere, or mailed for $1.00 and 10 cents postage.

State kind and color desired. It engraved, 75 cents per pair extra, with not more than three letters on a buckle. Photos reproduced, 25c. per set of two, to fit buckle.

HEWES & POTTER

argest Suspender and Belt Makers in the V Dept. 64, 87 Lincoln St., Boston, Mass.
Our suspender booklet, showing many styles ada for every purpose, and giving valuable informs about correct dress, will be sent FREE ON REQUI

PHOTOGR'APHERS Throw Your Bottles and Scales Away

Obviate this by using our Developers, but no BEADY trouble? Simply empty our tubes into the developing tray and add the waterwe don't charge you for the latter. Large quantities of developer made up at one time exydize and spoil. With our developers you only make up enough for immediate use.

Send 25 cents for half a dozen tubes sufficient for 24 ounces of developer for Velox, Azo, Cyka, Rotox, or other papers, or 60 ounces of Plate and Film Developer - a Developer which will not stain the fingers or nails, and is non-poisonous. We have a Sepia Toner for gaslight papers, 6 tubes, 25c.

NATIONAL PHOTOGRAPHIC CHEMICAL COMPANY 11th St. and Penn Ave., Washington, D. C.

Every reader of this paper should have this book. Cut off the coupon and mail to us with $1.50.

Eugene P. Lyle, Jr. Published August 1st

> 13TH THOUSAND ALREADY All Bookstores,

tures of John Diswiddle Driscoll (nicknamed "The Storm Centre at the Court of Maximilian in Mexico, where his secret mission comes into conflict with that of the beautiful Jacqueline. The best romantic American novel of re-

"Has what so few of its class possess, the elements of reality, wrought by infinite pains of detail, verisimilitude, suggestion." -St. Louis Republic

"A remarkable first book, of epic breadth, carried through unsucretingly. A brilliant story."—N. Y. Times Saturday Review.
"There is no more dramatic period in history, and the story bears every evidence of careful and painstaking study."—N. Y. Giobe.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO. 133-137 East 16th St., New York

THE SPIRIT OF THE FIRE FIGHTERS OF OLD WAS IN HIS BLOOD.

recalled that vision—the sweet, serious look of despair crept into his face. face, the white uniform, the pretty cap resting on waves of brown hair. She smothed his hot brow and gave him cool water. Then delirium seized him, and for weeks he hovered between life and death, while Amy Norton, the head nurse, watched him as though he were large were and laugh and he happy. And the physical anguish, when he could com-prehend only two conditions—pain and as I am." the absence of pain—Amy seemed to lt was a large idea, and his him a brooding Spirit of Deliverance. mind could not take it in easily. Always there, when he needed her, divining the cause of his discomfort divining the cause of relief, she

"How can you tell him where in the was suspicious."

"Why, I'll send him a letter." and quick with measures of relief, she became in the highest sense a mother and doctor and awoke to consciousness of things about him. His twisted arm was almost restored to use; his crushed leg, though in a heavy plaster cast, was mending rapidly; but he complained of pain in his chest, where the engine wheels had broken the "Yes," he said finally. "If he says the engine wheels had broken the "Yes," he said finally. "If he says ribs. It hurt him to breathe, he said. he'll bring me a tree with lots of red panting for breath. Then, recovering, comotive ingyne what'll run all by it-he would watch Amy at her work, his self."

doctor shook his head gravely. He was a handsome, young man; with close-cut, dark beard. In their common purpose—the rescue of this dying orphan child—their hearts beat together. "Can you not stimulate him somehow?" he asked. "He is very low, Any little complication—a fever, even a cold—might end it all. He is too passive. He does not care. He seems to be merely awaiting the end. We cannot get results under such conditions. The doctor of the manager of the telegraph company, and taking it to the front door dropped it in the letter box with a little prayer. Teddy's first words the next morning were full of anticipation. "Got that wire yet?" Amy smiled reassuringly. "Oh, it's too early. Wait till this afternoon." not get results under such conditions. there was a new note in his voice. It is not now a case for medicine. There when the doctor came in. But it was is not now a case for medicine. There is nothing in all the pharmacopoeia that I can think of to awaken him."

For some minutes they sat in silence. All the mother love in Amy's heart was stirred. Poor little waif—no paragraph of the secret.

At three o'clock a messenger house the secret. ents, no home, and Christmas close at hand. A great light dawned within her. Christmas—the day of days for children all over the world! She turned her deep, 'houghtful eyes upon the doctor. "Let me take the case," she will stop by some time Christmas.

er very own.

In those endless days and nights of first thing you know all the pain will

It was a large idea, and his little "How can you tell him where I am?"

"Couldn't you send him a telegram?

to this metherless waif.

So the days passed, and gradually him to answer paid." He was on familiar ground now.

Teddy responded to the care of nurse miliar ground now.

She thought it over a little before

Now and then a spell of coughing an' blue an' green an' yellow things shook his little frame and left him on it, an' some candy, an'—an'—a lo-