

SUBDUED LIGHTS.

Try Colored Shades For Toning Down the Trying White Light.

Women who pride themselves on having artistic homes are selecting neutral and subdued shades for shielding the glare of the trying white light in an effort to get becoming and restful tones.

Few women will be subjected to an awful greenish glare, a purple hue or even pale blue rays at any time, for careful housekeepers realize the advantage of having a soft shade of light to give a desirable tone to the surroundings as well as to make the most of their personal appearance, and for this reason delicate shades of yellow, pink and rose will be found ingeniously twisted around almost all the electric light bulbs in an apartment, particularly in the dining room, where a glaring or trying light frequently causes untold discomfort to the nerves of guests, besides making them look unreal and often ghastly.

The strong light will be toned down by a ground glass or silk shield that has recently been invented. Those made of glass are screwed to the fixtures beneath the light and usually fit inside the globe. They really add to the appearance, because, being of glazed glass, the inside view of the framework is shut out.

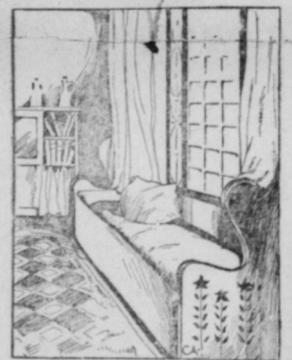

Those made of sheer silk are round, or of whatever shape will fit the bottom of the globe. They should be fitted to a fine wire frame that can easily be fastened to the fixture. The silk, of course, is put on smooth, so that, while the light is softened, it is not dim.

In a dining room the artistic scheme is to have all the light concentrated on the table, leaving the rest of the apartment in subdued shadows. This is readily accomplished by placing the lights directly above or right on the table. Candelabra dropped from the ceiling are most frequently used above dining tables and are sufficiently high not to interfere with the placing of floral decorations in the center. The glare from these lights is softened before it falls on the white linen, sparkling cut glass and shining silverware by placing a shield of glass or thin silk beneath the bulbs and around the edges of the globe. It should be of light yellow, pale pink or red if the desire is to get a becoming light.

A WINDOW SEAT.

Use a Settee From Which the Back Has Been Removed.

The accompanying illustration shows a modern room environment in which has been added a window seat which is a separate piece of furniture. This special construction of simple character is merely a settee without a back.

A MODERN WINDOW SEAT.

made to fit the window trim and placed closely against the wall. The upholstery is a movable cushion, and the ends of the settee have been decorated in a simple conventionalized flower design.

The comforts of the window seat are being appreciated, particularly in colonial period homes, into which it enters without incongruity or inappropriateness. Its charm grows with familiarity. It makes for comfort always.—Interior Decoration.

Cleaning Velvet.

A jeweler told this splendid secret for cleaning velvet. I had taken to him for riveting a little dangling bag, to be suspended from a silver clasp. As he gave it back into my hands he said, "It will need to be brushed." Then, with a smile, for I was an old patron, he added: "I'll tell you a secret. Dip your velvet brush in damp sand, and see, the velvet comes forth as fresh as though it were new. It is a cleaning process, too, for the slight moisture removes dust, and the harsh action of the sandy friction gives new life to the nap which has been worn down."

A Damaged Mirror.

To repair a damaged mirror pour upon a sheet of tinfoil about three drams of quicksilver to the square foot of foil. Rub smartly with a piece of buckskin until the foil becomes brilliant. Lay the glass upon a flat table face downward. Place the foil upon the damaged portion of the glass, lay a sheet of paper over the foil and place upon it a block of wood or a piece of marble with a perfectly flat surface; put upon it sufficient weight to press it down tightly; let it remain in this position a few hours. The foil will adhere to the glass.

Pineachions.

If you were to take apart an old pin cushion you would find an astonishing number of needles in it. To prevent this, when you stick a needle into the cushion, stick it in slantwise, not straight down, as if put in the fashion it is sure to work its way into the cushion and get lost.

GOOD MUSIC.

Its Value in the Home Is Not Sufficiently Recognized.

There's all the attention in the world paid, as a rule, to the books and magazines which are left in the paths of the younger members of the family, but the class of music played in the average family of culture is a disgrace.

In one home, where the children are brought up upon simplified forms of the classics and upon only the sweet, pure, wholesome stories that, in spite of pessimists, are still being written, not one child knows anything of the finer types of music. Where Shakespeare is a name known by everybody, his plays and those inimitable stories of his plays familiar objects upon the library table, Beethoven has practically never been heard of.

Some one has aptly called "ragtime" "the slang of music," and it is strange that parents who are particular in the extreme about the use of slang in the home laugh indulgently at the vigorous banging out of impossible melodies.

Ragtime has its place, there's no denying that, just as some slang passes into the English language under the stately name of "idioms." But it's not the music to be the main—perhaps the only—sort to be accustomed to.

Nothing develops tastes so definitely as environments. If fine books and pictures as well have their share in educating and in the bringing out of finer feelings—if, in a word, they are the root of culture—surely music, that most subtle of influences, has its share.

GIVING LUNCHEONS.

Etiquette to Be Observed on Formal and Informal Occasions.

In the formal luncheon, if the table is a handsome wood, without scratch or blemish, it may be left bare, using small doilies under the plates and dishes and a centerpiece. This gives an unusual opportunity to display rare embroideries, but the fine damask tablecloth is always in good taste.

When luncheon is announced the hostess asks her friends to follow her to the dining room without formality. The soup is served in two handled cups, the heavy roast is omitted generally, and few vegetables are served. The hostess may serve the salad, the dessert and the coffee, although these are more often served from the side.

At the informal luncheon tea may be served by the hostess with the teapot, sugar bowl, cream jug and cups and saucers neatly arranged on a large tray under a cloth, or the tray may be omitted, using only the cloth. Two or more courses may be served, all of the dishes arranged on the table and the second course, the sweets and cakes, placed on side tables.

DRESS HINTS.

Never dress older than you are. Dress younger.

Velvet that has become crushed may be restored by placing the linen side over a basin of hot water.

Make bloomers of the same material as the dress for schoolgirls. Make quite full, with elastic at the knees and waist.

To dry damp feathers throw a handful of salt on the fire and hold the feathers over, shaking them vigorously. Don't put them so near the fire that they will burn.

If a new wash dress is mussed, but not soiled enough to go into the tub, make a little thin cold starch, squeeze a rag lightly in this, brush the wrong side of the dress first with the starchy rag, then with your bare hand, and iron as you go along. It will look like new.

A Hint About Garnishing Dishes.

The garnishing of a dish has a good deal to do with its appetizing appearance, but there is one hint which it would be well for all cooks to bear in mind—no dish should look as if it had been fingered. The idea is repugnant to a nice taste and takes away more than any added prettiness could compensate for. What can be put to the dish in question that may look as if it were carelessly and easily done is one thing. It is quite another if the result has the appearance of having been handled much.

The Bedroom Lamp Shade.

On a plain silk lamp shade for use in sleeping apartments in an upper hall or in a dining room dainty red roses or forget-me-nots could be painted in the center for ornament, making a border at the top and bottom by joining the flowers into wreaths. Or if the plain shade needs decoration a pretty piece of gimp could be sewed on diamond shape, running from the top to the bottom.

Blistered Linen.

To prevent blistering in linen, which is almost always due to bad starching, but occasionally to ironing the articles when too wet, each article must be well starched through, and when about to iron it must be dampened evenly, but not wet. Use a hot iron. Collars and cuffs that have to be turned down should be fixed in the proper shape immediately after each one is ironed, for then the starch is still flexible.

Orange Salad.

Sour oranges may be utilized in a delicious salad. Slice the oranges not too thin and remove the skin, leaving the pulp in small triangular pieces. Serve on lettuce or crisp water cress, with French dressing or white mayonnaise. The little oranges called cumquats are very good indeed served in exactly the same way. Blanched English walnuts combined with such salads are a great addition.

When you work, don't make a fuss. The noisy sizzle of the locomotive is not force. All force is silent. The heehaw of a mule may startle, but it is not as dangerous as his hind legs. Bear in mind that it is only the empty wagon that makes the noise while in motion. The noise of the drum is due to the fact there is nothing in it.

A bad man makes himself scarce; a good man is already scarce.

Many a silver wedding is really a silver-plated one.

PREDICTIONS FOR 1906.

An Exchange Engages in the Weather Guessing Business.

The spring if not severe will be unusually mild. During the summer months there will be a marked increase in temperature. As heretofore, June 21st will be the longest day. The weather will be unusually warm for the insurance companies; there will be a frost for the passholders on the railroads beginning January 1. The proper time to sow seeds will be in the spring; eggs should be gathered at harvest time; crops will be plenty in the theatrical business; the corn crop will be about the same if No. 5 feet are put in 3 shoes. In case of a lack of rain there is every indication of a prolonged drought; toppers should re-form and keep on the water wagon; heavy winds will blow at the opening of the legislature; the plum crop will not be as plentiful as heretofore.—Exchange.
