Abolish The Card of Thanks.

A gradual sentiment of opposing the card of thanks, which almost invariably appears in local papers on the death of a friend or relative is rapidly becoming apparent. To make a public display of your grateful sentiments to persons who are visiting the sick and burying the Andrew Woutz, of Clearfield, and dead and have only performed their George of Minnesota, are visiting at duty, is at all times bad form and grates harshly on the nerves of a refined and Edward Poorman made a flying trip to sensitive nature. When people visit afflicted or bereaved families or otherwise render assistance they do so with the kindest of intentions, and are not looking for or expecting a public avowal of gratitude. A sincere and personal expression of thanks is ever so much more effective and impressive and accomplishes far more than a public demonstration in journals.
